CAPT. HARRISON STUDIES DRAKE MURDER TIME

Reviews Story Told by Daughter.

[Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wife of a state department attache, has been mortally wounded by "another woman" in her eighth floor room in the Drake. Her glamorous daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, has also been fired upon, but escaped harm. Who shot at her? Who killed her mother? Why? These are questions all Chicago has been asking since the occurrence of one of this century's greatest murder mysteries last Jan. 19. In reporting his study of this strange case, Capt. Harrison has sketched the cast of characters, headed in order by Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Goodbody, and "the killer"; he has also described in detail the movie like setting—Room 836, The Drake. Today Capt. Harrison continues with his report.]

It is Jan. 19 at about 4 p. m. when we look into Pierre & Paul's fashionable beauty salon at 920 N. Michigan av., diagonally across the street in a southwest direction from the Drake hotel.

According to her testimony before Coroner Brodie and a jury at the county morgue on Feb. 8, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody—the daughter of Mrs. Adele Born Williams, who was slain—arrived at the hairdresser's at about five minutes to 4 p. m.

"Did they take you immediately?" she was asked.

"Yes, sir, at 4 o'clock."

The hairdresser who attended Mrs. Goodbody was Pierre Courtois, 10 W. Elm st. He was questioned on this point by police on Jan. 26 and the record reads:

"How long had Mrs. Goodbody been there [in his salon]?"

"She came at 4."

"You remember that distinctly?"

"Yes, the sheet shows an appointment on the book for 4, and I took her at 4:30."

Variation of 30 Minutes.

You will notice a variation of 30 minutes between Mrs. Goodbody's recollection and Courtois' recollection of the time she actually received beauty service.

I cite this as a minor example of the many variations police contended with in their subsequent investigation.

There is no question that Mrs. Goodbody arrived at Pierre & Paul's just before 4 p. m. and that she received Pierre's professional attention shortly afterward. Some time later Mrs. Williams, who knew that her daughter would be in the salon, arrived to "wait for her." Mrs. Goodbody fixed the time of Mrs. Williams' arrival at "about five minutes to 5," Pierre at "a few minutes before 5."

Escorts Them Downstairs.

Mrs. Goodbody has testified that she and her mother left at 6 o'clock. Pierre said they left "around 6, maybe two or three minutes before 6." He is certain of the time because elevator service in his building ended at 5:30 p. m., and Pierre personally took the two women down because the elevator boy already had left.

Thus, by the testimony of the hairdresser and Mrs. Goodbody, we account for Mrs. Williams' presence, say from five minutes to 5 to five minutes to 6. In fact, we have one person testifying where Mrs. Williams was a few minutes earlier, for Mrs. Eva Fritz, a maid on the eighth floor of the hotel, testifying at the coroner's inquest, said that she had passed room 836 at 15 or 20 minutes to 5. "The indicator was out and I heard her [presumably Mrs. Williams] talking [on the telephone]." [The indicator is a tiny button above the outside doorknob which sticks out when the door is locked from inside.]

Originally some interest was displayed in Mrs. Fritz's story, especially in view of the fact that some one made a telephone call from room 836 to the Prow, a near north side cafe, at about that time. To whom the call was made has not been learned. In any event, Mrs. Williams could have been making

Army Clamps Gag on Letters to Newspapers

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 7 [Special].—Soldier resentment over army censorship of letters sent to editors of newspapers was disclosed today at the Mississippi ordnance training center at near-by Flora.

The restriction was made galling, it was said, by the arrival of New Deal propaganda, particularly from Mayor Kelly of Chicago, which the soldiers must accept but to which they may not respond in print unless their views meet with the approval of an army public relations officer.

A soldier, whose name is withheld to avoid involving him in difficulties, said he was amazed at the order forbidding the men at the post to write to any newspaper editor unless the letters first were sanctioned.

Limit Personal Expression.

The order, which he said was read to the men from a headquarters bulletin and was "especially emphasized," states:

"Attention is hereby directed to army regulations 600-10, paragraph 6, and army regulations 600-700, paragraph 5, limiting the expression of personal opinion by members of the federal military service.

"The war department bureau of public relations has interpreted public presentations to include letters to the editor.

"The above restrictions will be brought to the attention of all personnel of this command. All 'letters to the editor' will be cleared thru the post public relations officer."

Propaganda Received.

"This is something new to me," the soldier commented. "Why doesn't this business operate both ways? Today, for instance, several of the fellows in my barracks received some political literature from Edward Kelly of Chicago.

"Now, if the Kelly machine can propagandize in the army, why should it be so terribly wrong for a soldier to put his views in writing?"

The political letter was addressed "Dear Friend" and was signed, "Edward J. Kelly, chairman, central committee of the Democratic party of Cook county, Democratic national committeeman."

Boosts F. D. R. Candidacy.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt has been nominated for reëlection as President of the United States," the letter read in part. "Feeling that you would like to vote for him in the forthcoming election of Nov. 7, 1944, we deem it not only our privilege but our duty to aid you in doing so. We enclose herewith an 'application for ballot.' . . ."

The letter named the leading Democratic candidates in Illinois, stressed the war records of those who had any, and on the reverse side presented a sample ballot marked for "straight ticket" voting, which the soldier was advised to follow as the "simplest and quickest way."

Tragic Coincidence Takes 2d Son in Same Backyard

Waterford, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP).—Henry John Searle, 5, was strangled by the rope of his swing today—the second 5 year old son of that name to perish in the same backyard. The first Henry John Searle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Searle, burned to death in 1939 while playing in a small chicken coop.

THREE CHILDREN DIE IN 'FLASH' FIRE THAT BARS USE OF STAIRS

Mary Elizabeth Beauchamp, 8, Dolores, 6, and Robert, 4, children of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Beauchamp Jr., Negroes, died of suffocation last night in a "flash" fire that swept up the stairs of the 38 family Garfield Plaza apartment building at 335-337 E. Garfield blvd. and barred escape. Approximately 150 persons lived in the apartments.

The three children who died were being given baths by Mrs. Mary Smith, a Negro, while their mother was in a hospital awaiting another child. When Mrs. Smith heard the cry of fire, she took Frances Beauchamp, 2, Dawson Jr., 1, and her own daughter, Barbara Smith, 11, and ran for help. Tony Booker, 31, a Negro, dashed to the third floor, but could not find the children. His right elbow was fractured when he jumped from a window.

Philip Waddell, 17, of 5452 South Park av., a Negro, saved four children before he was overcome. Deputy Fire Marshal Michael Cody estimated the loss at $10,000 and said the fire started in the basement. Many tenants were taken down ladders.

JOINT PACIFIC AIR RULE ASKED BY NEW ZEALAND

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 7 (AP).—Prime Minister Peter Fraser told the house of representatives today he strongly advocated that New Zealand, Australia, Canada, and the United States participate in joint ownership and operation of trans-Pacific air service.

"While we do not want to enter into antagonisms with our friends," he said, "I represented it [the proposal] to authorities in Washington.

"We are asking the right to establish a British air route from New Zealand to Canada, with landing rights in Honolulu, in return for landing rights for an American service to operate to New Zealand."

Sister's Vigil Finds Yank's Wife in Tryst

Frantic letters from her brother, an army private stationed in the Aleutians and former packing company official, that he had learned his wife was being unfaithful to him, sent Dorothy Jourdan, 28, of Los Angeles, to Chicago two months ago to find out the facts.

Night after night Dorothy sat in a borrowed car in front of 1810 Lincoln Park West watching the apartment of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Maria Corlette Jourdan, 32, her brother's wife for five days before he left the country more than a year ago.

Takes Police Along.

On Saturday at 5:30 in the morning, Dorothy, accompanied by police, knocked on the door of Mrs. Jourdan's apartment armed with a warrant.

"We rang and pounded for a long time," Dorothy said. "Finally we heard my brother's wife say, 'wait until I get a robe on.' Then she opened the door. She had a robe thrown over her nightgown. There was a man in her bed with only a sheet covering him."

Yesterday in Chicago avenue police court, Mrs. Jourdan and John La Pansee, 50, 1551 N. Austin blvd., the man arrested with her, a race track mutuel clerk, faced a charge of disorderly conduct brought by Dorothy. At the request of Robert Romano, lawyer for Mrs. Jourdan, the case was continued until Sept. 7. There was no testimony.

Former Boy Friend.

"La Pansee used to go with my sister-in-law before she married my brother George," Dorothy told reporters. "She was a hostess at the 606 club for some years, and La Pansee drove a cab.

"I want to see both of them punished for what they have done to my brother. Before he left he was vice president of the Jourdan Packing company, 818 W. Cullerton st., which was founded by my grandfather. He was planning to set up his own company.

"For many nights I watched Maria and La Pansee go into the apartment together. I went to all the army agencies that might give me some advice and they suggested I have the two arrested. I'll be here when the case comes up again to see that justice is done."

COL. M'NAIR, SON OF SLAIN GENERAL, DIES ON GUAM ISLE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The death on Guam of Col. Douglas McNair, 37, only son of the late Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, was announced today by the war department. The circumstances of his death were not reported in the news message which the war department received from his commander, Maj. Gen. A. D. Bruce, commander of the 77th division now in action on Guam.

Gen. McNair, the colonel's father, former commander of the army ground forces, was killed by the prematurely released bomb of an American plane while he was observing a frontline action near St. Lo in Normandy on July 25. The younger McNair, like his father a field artillery man, served with Gen. Bruce when the latter commanded the tank destroyer center at Camp Hood, Tex.

Surviving Col. McNair are his widow, Mrs. Freda McNair, and their infant daughter, Bonny Clare, of Santa Barbara, Cal., and his mother, who lives in Washington, D. C.

GAIN 3 MILES ON GUAM; 90 PCT. OF ISLAND OCCUPIED

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Aug. 7 (AP).—American troops pushed northward three miles in the center of the fighting lines on Guam Sunday to bring about nine-tenths of the American island's 225 square miles under control, Adm. Nimitz announced today.

The advance swept over a large, new Japanese cemetery where there was "evidence of the mass burial of enemy dead," Nimitz reported.

This was the first mention of a new enemy cemetery in the Marianas Islands, where Saipan and Tinian, 125 miles northward, already have been conquered. Previously Nimitz reported that the Japanese have been carrying back their dead as they retreated, apparently trying to conceal the extent of losses.

The village of Yigo was captured in the northward sweep, along with considerable ammunition and supplies. Yigo is west of Santa Rosa peak, 870 foot mountain just ahead of the Yanks and on their right or eastern flank.

TELL HOW U. S. TROOPS DEFEAT ENEMY ARMOR

Bazookas Knock Out Many 'Tigers.'

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ., IN FRANCE, Aug. 7.—How American forces stopped the most severe German counter-blows of the French campaign and recaptured Mortain, 19 miles east of the allied coastal base at Avranches, was told here tonight by eyewitness observers.

The Germans used at least four Panzer divisions and possibly more in their smash along a narrow sector, but failed in their goal of dividing the allies' Normandy and Brittany fronts.

Thru the gray mist of early morning the Nazi Tiger tanks poked along stream beds, thru hedgerows, and into waving fields of grain between Mortain and Sourdeval. Clinging to their backs, in the same manner as Americans fight on tanks, were swarms of German infantrymen, about 14 or 15 to each tank.

They came probing for weak spots in our line. Finally in a stream bed below Cherence-Le Roussel, 15½ miles northeast of Avrances, they found one and piled in more power, attacking a sector held by a few American battalions.

Fire Point Blank at Tanks.

For several hours those battalions faced their worst moments of the campaign. But the Yank artillerymen stayed with their guns until they almost dropped from exhaustion, often firing point blank at 60 ton Tiger tanks.

And the infantry held on. Bazooka teams sneaked thru the grain fields, holding their fire until the tanks' vulnerable flanks were within a few hundred yards and then blasting with their rockets.

German soldiers who ride these Tigers into battle are supposed to protect them from just this kind of attack, but the American doughboys with their rockets and rifle grenades knocked out 12 tanks despite the screen of German foot soldiers.

The attack paused while the Germans brought more tanks up from the rear to take over the spearhead. Then it was resumed. And it was then that the doughboys saw their most welcome sight.

Allied Planes Arrive.

Twinkling wings of silver appeared from nowhere. They were Thunderbolts from the United States 9th tactical air force and Typhoons from the R. A. F.'s 2d tactical air force.

The fighter-bombers sped low over the area to reconnoiter, a maneuver made possible by the scarcity of German anti-aircraft guns. Then they came again, this time for the kill.

Within plain view of the doughboys, the Typhoons hurled their rockets and the Thunderbolts fired their banks of guns directly against the German tanks. As the rockets smashed into the armored hulls there would be a burst of bright flame and then a column of oily black smoke as the tank began burning.

Field Day for Flyers.

All afternoon these fighters ranged the front line seeking German armor. Whenever the Tigers or Panthers ventured onto roads or came into the open, the waiting planes would crash down on them to set scores of tanks and self propelled guns ablaze. For the air forces it was a field day and for the hard pressed doughboys these planes meant all the difference in the world.

Meanwhile other doughboy units held onto the high ground around Mortain after having been forced out of town by German armor. Then they crashed back in to retake the town.

Pool Hall Only Business Place Left in County Seat

Murphy, Idaho, Aug. 7 (AP).—Sheriff Claude Sullivan, injured in an automobile accident, decided to close his general store. That leaves a billiard parlor as the only place of business in this Owyhee county seat [population 314].

Hear Germans in Southwest France Flee

IRUN, Spain, Aug. 7 (AP).—German forces in southwestern France, whose communications are menaced by the American drive eastward into France, began a full scale evacuation last night, it was learned here today. Only a handful of gestapo agents and gendarmes was left to cover the French-Spanish frontier.

Regular army forces moved out of the region south of Bayonne more than a week ago, leaving SS [elite guard] units behind. The SS forces began leaving last night, reports said, and today only French custom guards and two or three German gendarmes were on duty at the international bridge across the Bidassoa river here.

Patriots Cut Railway.

As the Germans moved north from Hendaye, Biarritz, Bayonne, and Bordeaux, several hundred French Maquis [patriots] raided railroad communications on the outskirts of Bayonne. They dynamited a bridge north of the city last night and cut a direct line from Bordeaux.

German police forces at the Hendaye bridge said the evacuation of the troops was a temporary withdrawal caused by the reassignment of the border region forces. Frenchmen living on the Spanish side of the frontier, however, said they were convinced the Nazi high command was abandoning southwestern France.

Report Nazis Leave Paris.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 7 (AP).—The British radio and dispatches from Switzerland today said the Germans were moving their administrative offices from Paris to Nancy, nearer the German border.

[Another unconfirmed report from Zurich, Switzerland, said Marshal Petain had been taken from Vichy to Germany.]

Minute Men of Brittany Pave Way for Yanks

Honor Paratroopers

LONDON, Aug. 7 [Reuter].—A regiment of French paratroopers was dropped over Brittany in June and gathered around it more than 6,000 resisters, it was disclosed in Algiers today. This regiment, first to fight again on the soil of the motherland, has been awarded the croix de la liberation.

BY WES GALLAGHER.

VANNES, France, Aug. 7 (AP).—The "minute men of Brittany," members of the French resistance movement, handed this city of 20,000 over to the American army today.

The American column was given a tumultuous welcome, tears, wine, and flowers mixing with bayonets and blood.

The armored columns cut the Brest peninsula at this town, after finding the last 60 miles paved for them by the French resistance movement, which captured dozens of villages, gathered up hundreds of German prisoners and jailed the collaborators.

The minute men put white arm bands on their sleeves and wore helmets from the last war. They strung grenades in their belts; dug up the rifles and submachine guns allied planes dropped by the thousands; met secretly with careful organization, and then fell on the retreating Nazis.

French Are Joyful.

Some died or were wounded as they seized bridges, destroyed munition dumps, and spread confusion among the Germans.

The Americans entered the city and the tanks halted in the streets. The town was theirs and crowds begged for autographs. The French

RETAKE TOWN AND FOIL BLOW TO SPLIT LINES

Americans' Thrust at Paris Gains.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 8 [Tuesday].—American troops, guns, and planes last night crushed the heaviest counter-attack yet undertaken by the Germans in France.

Striking at the narrow neck of land which unites the Normandy and Brittany fronts, four Nazi tank divisions plunged forward at least three miles, pushed the Americans out of Mortain, 19 miles east of Avranches, and threatened to split the three allied armies in north France.

Rallying quickly and summoning swarms of warplanes to the attack, the American forces smashed the German spearhead, retook Mortain, and knocked out 135 enemy tanks.

Attack on Eight Mile Front.

The German tank units, striking along an eight mile sector of the narrow allied held "neck" of southern Normandy, were reported to have driven thru Cherence-Le Roussel, five and a half miles northwest of Mortain, before they were halted.

Some observers, in light of the rapid German withdrawals on other parts of the rapidly growing French front, believed these retreats might have been linked to the new attack in a general plan to stretch out the American forces into a thin line, which the enemy hoped ultimately to cut off with a swift westward movement to the sea. Tho acknowledging the importance of the thrust, the officers emphasized that our coastal base of Avranches never was threatened.

Other United States forces captured a town on the north coast of Brittany, struck within 12 miles east and nine miles north of the U-boat base of Lorient, and on the east swept beyond the Mayenne river in the direction of Paris. An armored column was reported simultaneously to be approaching Brest.

Push On Toward Paris.

Southeast of the German salient United States forces drove to less than 120 miles of Paris by thrusting 15 miles beyond their last reported positions across the Mayenne river. There they ran into their first organized German resistance in their dash toward the former French capital, but this defense was not in strength. The fighting had advanced beyond both Mayenne and Laval, to the south.

At least five American columns have thrust across the Mayenne river, advance patrols have surged into Domfront, 135 miles west of Paris, and the widening line of the push stands at an average distance of 125 miles from the metropolis in good tank country. The advance was pressing on Le Mans, a great transportation center which protects the southwestern approaches to Paris, 100 miles away, after taking Chateau-Gontier, 42 miles west of Le Mans.

British Widen Hold on Orne.

At the northern end of the front, the new British bridgehead across the Orne river, 3 miles north of Thury-Harcourt, was being consolidated and expanded. Tanks and guns were driving across the river on a two mile front in what appeared to be an imminent threat to the German hinge position south of Caen. This push took La Moissonniere and La Bocotiere, near the Nazis' Thury-Harcourt stronghold.

Mont Pincon, the dominating hill of the high ground in southern Normandy, also was captured. This maneuver means the British troops are nearing open terrain after having fought for weeks in the difficult bocage country of high hedges and thick undergrowth.

Late reports said the Americans have taken 85,543 German prisoners since D-day and have buried 14,171 others.

YANKS WIN BRETON TOWN

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN BRITTANY, Aug. 7.—American forces in Brittany late today captured the town of Guingamp, 18 miles west of St. Brieuc, on the north coast of the Brittany peninsula. At the same time a force advancing along the southern coast was reported 12 miles east of the U-boat base of Lorient and a second force was nine miles north of the same important seaport.

The situation in Brest, where our forces two days ago were reported "within the city limits," was still not clarified altho our armored columns were now said to be approaching that city.

Fight Outside St. Malo.

Fierce fighting still was raging on the outskirts of St. Malo on the north coast of the peninsula where, prisoners said, the German commander has vowed to fight to the last man. The German defenses at St. Malo consisted of concrete fortifications, including gunboats firing from the Rance estuary, guns firing from the vicinity of Dinard across the Rance, and heavy artillery of up to at least 8 inch guns emplaced on the Island of Cezembre, which controls the port, and other islands just north of St. Malo.

The Germans were making use of steel and concrete roadblocks as well as heavily mined areas. The defenders included army, navy, and marine personnel whose fighting ability and morale seemingly were very high. They refused demands that St. Malo be surrendered.

The St. Malo fighting was being waged almost exclusively by infantry troops supported by planes and artillery. Among midwesterners in one artillery unit with whom I talked today were Master Sgt. Lowell J. Pigg, 3522 Cortland st., Chicago; Lt. Howard K. McIntyre, Sioux City, Ia.; Corp. Alex Meyer Jr., Saginaw, Mich., Staff Sgt. Edward Eagle, Alpena, Mich., and St. George Barker of Royal Oak, Mich.

Destroy Nazi Guns.

These men were serving under Lt. Col. J. S. Billups, Columbus, Miss., in a half dugout under a camouflage net somewhere on the St. Malo peninsula. At the moment they were engaged in firing on gun positions on Cezembre Island. Billups said his outfit had just neutralized a couple of enemy gun positions and had set afire another when it scored a direct hit on ammunition.

There was as yet no indication the Germans were in a position to form a new line to halt the American armor which was ranging almost at will thruout the Brittany peninsula, throwing German communication and supply lines into complete confusion and causing the capture of hundreds of prisoners.

Some of these advances, which compared in speed with those directed by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton in North Africa and Sicily, covered even greater distances in a single day than armored maneuvers back in the United States.

Artillery Very Mobile.

Our artillery has proved itself exceedingly mobile, providing excellent support for our armor and infantry, as does our air arm, including bombers, fighters, and tiny spotter and liaison planes which buzz unarmed thru hostile skies.

The German air force is still chary of showing itself in daylight hours, but is beginning to display some strength after dark by bombing main highways and bridges to halt the steady flow of our armored trucks, guns, and a dozen other types of vehicles.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Of France, yesterday's broadcast German war bulletin said:

"The enemy, in order to engage our forces, launched numerous local attacks on a broad front west of the Orne river which were warded off after tough fighting. The enemy then started heavy attacks with about nine divisions, supported by strong air formations, in the area west and southwest of Vire and east of Avranches. These attacks increased more and more in intensity during the day.

"After several hours of fighting, the enemy succeeded, with considerable losses, in penetrating into our positions. The breaches were sealed off. Counter-attacks started immediately and made good headway.

Claim Allies Are Repulsed.

"Our garrisons of Mayenne and Laval are in a fight against enemy motorized formations. A fierce battle also is raging southeast of St. Malo and in range of the fortress itself. All enemy attacks in this sector were foiled. Our strongholds still are offering determined resistance to the enemy in Brittany.

"Torpedo carrying planes sank three enemy destroyers in the mouth of the Seine and heavily damaged two light cruisers and one 4,000 ton troop transport.

"Two hundred sixty terrorists were annihilated in fighting in the French hinterland."

Illinois Yank Charges Jap Pillbox; Wins D. S. C.

WITH THE 37TH INFANTRY DIVISION IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC. — (AP). — [Delayed.] — For "conspicuous bravery in action" on Bougainville, Tech. Sgt. Earl J. Cashmore, 26, of Wadsworth, Ill., has been awarded the distinguished service cross. Using rifle grenades to soften up an enemy held pillbox and provide a smoke screen, Cashmore charged the pillbox with a submachine gun on three occasions. He is credited with killing all seven Japs who were manning two machine guns.

Gets Divorce

MRS. FRANCES FOLSOM.

Mrs. Frances Folsom, 32, of 6316 S. Long av., divorced her husband, John, 34, a war worker, in Superior court yesterday on the grounds of cruelty. They were married June 13, 1938, and separated July 13, 1944. Meyer Weinstein, her attorney, told Judge Thomas A. Williams that she waived alimony because she planned to take a job in a war factory. The couple agreed out of court that Folsom would pay her $30 a week for the support of three children, Weinstein said.

Turn City of Vannes Over to Them.

rushed out to shower wine, flowers, and kisses on the embarrassed doughboys. French kids were riding around town in tanks and jeeps 10 minutes after machines arrived.

Just outside this town 170 Germans in a roadblock tried to put up a fight, and 145 were killed and the remainder captured. It seems apparent the Nazis remaining in Brittany are doing their best to get out, not wanting to fight except in small garrisons near seaports.

Hiss Collaborators.

Within Vannes, the crowds interrupted their cheering to boo and hiss as German collaborators marched up the street to prison. Most of the collaborators were women. In this town everybody knew who was collaborating and who was not, and when the time came picked minute men hunted them down.

Out of the prison came 100 minute men and 60 girls who had been treated badly by the Germans who tried to pry information out of them. In the window of a shop, decorated with the tricolor, were pictures of minute men killed by Germans.

The last two days I have driven 320 miles over Brittany without hearing a shot fired and mile after mile without encountering a soldier. The impression one gets is that the German army has been smashed and disorganized.

Wear Sunday Black.

Slowing up in small towns you see every one out in their Sunday best—Brittany black—with gifts of wine, ripe pears and flowers. If you stop you are surrounded by people trying to kiss you and forge gifts on you.

Apparently the Nazi high command is completely confused and the men in the field have no will to fight. There is story after story of officers deserting their men and fleeing in motor cars.

Wherever they go the French report them to the Americans. If the quarry is worthwhile a column of tanks and armored cars goes after them.

PURSUED JAPS CROSS CHINDWIN RIVER IN BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Aug. 7 (AP).—Allied forces swung into the concluding phases of their rigorous monsoon campaign which has wrecked the Japanese plan of invading northeast India, and pressed deeper into northern Burma today beyond the captured frontier base of Tamu.

The Japanese offered no organized resistance in the Kabaw valley. Only sick and wounded Japanese remain in the area west of the Chindwin river and north of Tamu.

Allied headquarters said abler remnants of the beaten enemy had crossed the swollen Chindwin, using many rafts and a few motor boats and suffering casualties.

Headquarters said captured Japanese were "in a shocking state." Piles of Japanese bodies were being buried in the ruins of Myitkyina, which Gen. Stilwell's forces captured last week.

4 ROUTES THRU FRENCH VALLEYS LEAD TO PARIS

Easiest in South Is Also the Longest.

The topography of northern France, offering several natural pathways to Paris, bids fair to figure largely in the allied tactics, and already has operated to influence somewhat the course of the invasion.

Paris itself is situated in a natural basin drained by the Seine and the Loire, both of which offer pathways to invading armies. To the west, the Paris basin is framed by the old rocks of Brittany and Normandy which, unlike those of the central plateau which bound the basin on the south, reach above 1,000 feet in only a few places.

The basin of the Seine and the Loire is floored by a succession of rocks arranged as a nest of saucers, so that the successive saucer edges stand out as scarps facing outward in each case. The command of any of these scarps by an army allows it to overlook the inward facing slopes.

Seine Drains Basin.

The fine valley to the southwest of Paris with its great chateaux is La Touraine. The west of Normandy is a part of the plateau of old rocks, but beyond it is the Seine, draining the center of the basin, and providing an historic pathway from that direction.

The shortest route to Paris for the allies from their present position, would be along the valley of which Bernay stands as the gateway; but stiff opposition by the Germans at Troarn, on the route to Bernay, may have been responsible in part for the encircling movement of the allies to the west and south, nipping off the Brittany peninsula.

The natural route thru Bernay would lead to Evreux, Mantes and Paris, or from Evreux to Dreux, Versailles, and Paris.

Three Additional Routes.

The comparatively level ground south of Avranches and west of Vire may have influenced the allied break thru to the south toward St. Nazaire. From these newly gained southern positions, three additional natural routes lead to Paris, roughly paralleling the course of the river Loire.

The northernmost of these leads from Mayenne northeast to Noguent le Rotrou and Chartres to Paris. The natural middle route would be from the Mayenne river thru Le Mans and thence to Noguent le Rotrou, while the easiest route from a topographical standpoint, altho the longest is the southern one leading eastward from the Mayenne river along the Loire thru Tours, Blois, Orleans, Etampes, and thence to Paris, an encircling route which might nip off the defense forces in the thills to the north.

BOMBERS POUND 2 NAZI OIL BASES FAR IN GERMANY

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP).—More than 500 American heavy bombers blasted at two synthetic oil plants deep in the reich today in concert with from 500 to 750 Liberators and Flying Fortresses which struck at vital targets over a wide area of France.

The 15th air force sent its heavyweights from Mediterranean bases to Blechhamer, 75 miles southeast of Breslau, where they pounded two plants which produce much of the German army's motor fuel.

Another force of Liberators, roaring into the Balkans, raided an enemy air field at Allbunar, 21 miles northeast of Belgrade, and oil installations on the Danube at Novi Sad, northwest of Belgrade.

A big force of four-engined American bombers from British bases—numbering up to 750—bombed fuel tanks and depots, bridges and railway junctions in France.

American Marauder bombers blasted two enemy freighters in the Brittany harbor of Brest. Other mediums bombed Seine river railway bridges 30 miles south of Paris at Corbeil, and at Corbie, near Vernon.

Finnish Leader

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 8 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Announcement of the new Finnish cabinet is expected today and it is reported it will include Hantti Mackzell, former minister to Moscow, as premier. Carol Enckell, member of the Finnish peace mission to Moscow in March, is reported to have been selected as foreign minister.

The reported cabinet was seen as an augury of Finnish rapprochement with Russia, as was a statement by Dr. Juho Paasikivi, former minister to Moscow, that "we Finns must always count on a strong Russia and once and for all forget Russia's weakness in 1917."

President Mannerheim told Finnish soldiers that "the battle for the existence and future of the country goes on," and appealed to them to be "steadfast and tenacious."

GEN. IKE KEEPS HIS WIFE IN DARK ON TREND OF WAR

Letters Are Good, but Lack News.

The general's wife, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who visited in Chicago yesterday, says she learns more from the newspapers about the progress of the war than she does from her husband's letters, "even tho he writes unusually good ones."

Dressed in a smart black and white print and wearing her hair in bangs, Mrs. Eisenhower posed for pictures and talked of Ike.

She is en route to Denver for a vacation away from Washington's heat. She was a breakfast guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry D. Brandon and Mrs. J. J. Pelley at the South Shore Country club.

The general, Mrs. Eisenhower said, doesn't care for "social skirmishes," but he does enjoy a good game of bridge, and is rated among his friends as an expert. He plays golf, loves to fish, and likes to read western stories.

He Carries Lucky Coins.

He rides horseback and plays poker, both of which he learned to do as a cowboy in the west. He thinks his lucky day is Friday and he keeps several lucky coins in his pocket, which he rubs together when he is in a tight spot.

Letters to his wife are the only ones the general writes in longhand. His letters are personal and contain little war news. He does write of the outstanding bravery of American soldiers.

"On Common Ground."

Mrs. Eisenhower shuns personal publicity and says she is like millions of other women who have APO husbands. "We are all marking time and waiting for the day of victory and the return of our loved ones," she said. "The wife of a private and the wife of a general stand on common ground there."

The Eisenhowers were married in 1916 when he was a captain. They have one son, John, who is a second lieutenant at Fort Benning. The Eisenhower home now is in Washington, D. C.

PLAYS 2 ROLES IN WAR DRAMA—CAPTIVE, CAPTOR

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN BRITTANY, Aug. 3 [Delayed].—This story typifies the sort of frustration which has gripped many bands of demoralized Germans now roaming almost hopelessly between our armored lines. It happened to two press relations men attached to an American armored unit who strayed onto a wrong road while returning from the "front," which now means the most advanced point which our armored spearhead has reached.

Here it is as told by Sgt. George L. Becker of East Rutherford, N. J.:

"Lt. Kenneth Koyen of Fremont, Neb., and I were coming down a road by jeep at 11 o'clock the other night when we met four Germans at a crossroad. They indicated they wished to surrender. Lt. Koyen disarmed them and ordered them to walk ahead of us with their hands on their heads. While I still was covering them with my carbine and our jeep was standing in the center of the road five German trucks loaded with gasoline and ammunition arrived.

Germans Open Fire.

"Lt. Koyen ducked behind a house when the Nazis in the trucks saw our jeep and halted. He ordered them to surrender. Suddenly a machine gun opened up and sprayed our jeep. I ran into a nearby house and hid behind a wine barrel.

"I found out later that the lieutenant had jumped a hedge and hid and then returned to our outfit. I stayed behind the barrel and heard German horse-drawn columns go by for three hours—this, incidentally, was behind our front. Then at 2 a. m. I saw a motorcycle and sidecar pull up. Then a couple of American tanks approached and two Germans ran into the house and hid behind the barrel with me.

"One—a lieutenant reconnoitering ahead of his column—drew his revolver and said in English: 'You are in my—prisoner? No—custody. You are in my custody. Perhaps tomorrow I'll be in yours.'

Flee Allied Air Raid.

"When our tanks had left the Nazis put me on a motorcycle behind the driver. We traveled the rest of the night with a horse drawn convoy. At dawn we hid our vehicles in a farmyard.

"Our planes discovered German troops nearby in the afternoon and machine gunned them, so we moved on.

"Two truckloads of soldiers asked where the Americans were. I think if we could have found our lines they all would have given up. I rode on one side of a truck hood and the officer who had caught me rode on the other. If we saw Americans I was to say the Germans were my prisoners, but if we met Germans he would tell them I was his prisoner.

Yank 'Panzers' on Way!

"In the morning we pulled into a little town northeast of Avranches. German reconnaissance units said American 'panzers' were approaching from two directions, so the officer told the men to split into two groups and flee along two different roads. Then he and I went into the house of a French priest where we found a German paratroop lieutenant having breakfast.

"The two officers talked over the situation. I understood enough of their German to know they thought things were bad, that the war was about over, and that they had better stay with me.

"When the Americans started shelling the town, we ran into a lane between two hedgerows and walked about 40 minutes until a young French boy told us American tanks were near-by.

Sends Note to Troops.

"I asked the Germans if they wanted to surrender and they said, 'Yes,' but to be sure to take them to my outfit. So I wrote a message on my pay book which read: 'I got two German officers prisoner in this guy's house and I am too tired to move.' The French boy took the note to our troops.

"Soon came an answer: 'Becker: You must move them back to this position.'

"So we walked up to a tank with its gun pointing right at us. Luckily it was part of my outfit."

Becker said he saw all sorts of badly disorganized German units whose morale seemed very bad and that both officers said they would like to go to America — the paratrooper to Chicago where he has relatives on the south side.

CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE MADE SEPARATE FORCE

WITH THE CANADIAN 1ST ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 7 (AP).—Canada, for the first time in her history, now has a separate army formation in the battlefield—the Canadian 1st army. It includes powerful units of British troops, fighting under Canadian command just as Canadian soldiers have been under British command previously.

Existence of the Canadian army was disclosed today, but it actually has been operating for 10 days as a fully organized army. Many of its men have been in the line since D-day. Canadian units left the British 2d army to form the Canadian 1st.

The battle lineup in France now is the American 1st army on the right, the British 2d army in the center, and the Canadians on the left. The Canadian commander, Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, has been in France since June 18, flying almost daily over the Canadian line. His force has held as many as eight German divisions at a time. A Canadian army formation may consist of two to five corps, with two or more divisions in a corps. One Canadian corps is fighting in Italy with the British 8th army.

Defends WASPS

Jacqueline Cochran, director of women air forces service pilots, as she scanned house bill, later killed, to militarize the WASPS.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The head of the WASPS today recommended to Gen. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces, that the organization be given military status or be discontinued entirely.

Jacqueline Cochran, director of the women air force service pilots, said their present status as uniformed civilian employes is unsatisfactory to the WASPS, who are deprived of military benefits, and to the air forces, which are unable to use them to the fullest extent because they are not subject to military discipline.

A bill to militarize the WASPS was killed in the house in June after Rep. O'Hara [R., Minn.] denounced it as "society legislation" and Rep. Morrison [D., La.] questioned the need for women pilots as long as instructors and trainees of the discontinued civilian pilot training program were denied opportunities to fly as officers in the air forces.

In her report to Arnold, Miss Cochran suggested that most of the WASPS should be second lieutenants.

GERMANS PUT 31 DIVISIONS INTO NORMANDY FIGHT

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 7.—An accounting today disclosed that Germany threw 31 divisions against the allies in the battle for Normandy. Eight were there on D day, 15 arrived 20 days later, and the others were hurled in after that.

Most of the infantry and paratroopers who have opposed the Yanks came from Brittany or were in Normandy on D day. Some of the forces fighting the British were drawn from southern France and Denmark. Two armored units were brought from the Russian front.

Before the big American offensive, the number of German troops facing the Yanks about equaled the number facing the British and Canadians, but some were transferred to the American front after the Yank break thru.

BATTERED GUAM CAPITAL TAKEN WITHOUT A SHOT

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUAM, Aug. 1 [Delayed].—Agana, once a beautiful island capital which suffered an unmerciful pounding to dislodge the Japs, was taken almost without the firing of an additional shot. A few scattered Nips remaining behind died in crude pillboxes at the hands of our grenadiers.

The oncoming marines paused only long enough to clear the streets of numerous land mines the Japs had planted, then pushed forward at the head of endless motorized columns.

I accompanied the advanced troops into Agana. Crossing the shell wrecked Fonte river bridge we passed a large native cemetery wose bullet pocked headstones not long ago hid Nip ground snipers. Near the entrance an almost life sized angel smiled beatifically despite one smashed wing and a shattered peace wreath. Many grave stones, mostly concrete affairs, with inscriptions painted on, toppled from their bases. Two mausoleums, their sides blown out, presented tiers of empty crypts.

No Rest for the Dead.

"It doesn't even look as if there was any rest for the dead around here," remarked one dusty marine.

Thru a decapitated palm grove a narrow road wound. Snipers' rifles cracked high on a cliff hemming Agana against the ocean as we plodded past devasted suburban homes of Spanish architecture.

Many buildings were demolished. Tenants had carried away everything they could, and stores were bare of stocks. The fine old walls and buildings of the governor's palace, dating back to Spanish rule, were scarred and smashed in places. But its beauty still flourished in a garden rich with white hibiscus, red poinsettias, bougainvillia and lilies.

Rose in No Man's Land.

"There's a rose that grows in no man's land," sang a marine as we proceeded thru the street rubble. He was Corp. D. W. Clark of Des Moines, Ia. During a temporary halt I met Pharmacist 2d Class Charles Lejeck Jr., 7836 S. Ada st., Chicago, who said, "This is good duty, but I get kinda scared sometimes."

He said his most thrilling moment was during his first night ashore when he and a fellow corpsman, Pharmacist 3d Class James Branch from Nashville, Ark., administered to six wounded men all night long without cover and under intense enemy fire.

The Plaza de Espana, a huge, square government building, shared the common fate.

3 ARMIES STRIKE AT EAST POLAND IN PINCERS DRIVE

Reds Take Last of 2,000 Polish Oil Wells.

LONDON, Aug. 8 [Tuesday].—Russian troops, attacking a bitterly resisting foe west of the Vistula river in southern Poland, yesterday smashed to within 25 miles of the German stronghold of Kielce, while soviet forces in the Carpathian mountains captured the last of 2,000 Galician oil wells that had been feeding the Nazi war machine.

Two orders of the day announced the fall of the oil center of Borysław in the Carpathians and the seizure of Sambor, a communications hub whose capture gave the Russians a firm grip on five routes leading into Czechoslovakia.

Simultaneously, three soviet armies far to the north began a great pincers movement on German East Prussia along a 200 mile front. This was being savagely fought by reënforced German troops.

Vistula Bridgehead Expanded.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine army captured 60 localities in expanding its bridgehead west of the Vistula. These included Szydlow, 25 miles southeast of Kielce, which is on a railway linking the Germans' Warsaw and Krakow fronts.

The Russians now have seized 650 square miles on the west bank of the Vistula in a drive which has rolled southwest to within 37 miles of Krakow, last big German bastion before Silesia.

In the north, Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's 1st Baltic army struck out suddenly yesterday in a twin drive toward Tilsit and Memel, East Prussia. His troops captured 50 towns and villages, including Saukenai, 63 miles from Tilsit and 77 from Memel, Baltic seaport. Advances ranging up to 20 miles were reported.

The Moscow radio last night appealed to German troops in Estonia and Latvia cut off by the Russians' drive to the Baltic west of Riga, to surrender. The plea came from the national committee of free Germany.

Drive Toward Riga.

In eastern Latvia and southern Estonia two Russian armies were herding German troops westward toward Riga. The daily bulletin said the railway and highway between Madona and Gulbene, 80 miles east of Riga, had been cut in their advance.

The drive on Tilsit from the northeast was aided by attacks south of that front and west of the Dubissa river. Forty villages were captured in a seven mile gain that put the Russians 53 miles from Tilsit.

Moscow reported a drive toward the southern border of East Prussia by Gen. G. F. Zakharov's 2d White Russian army.

Zakharov's troops captured Knyszyn, 15 miles northwest of Bialystok and Lapy, about the same distance southwest of that base. These spearheads both were about 35 miles from the German stronghold of Lomza.

German broadcasts said hundreds of thousands of men, women, and even children had been mobilized in East Prussia to help the Nazi armies.

The Germans were estimated to be suffering losses of at least 5,000 men daily.

BERLIN'S WAR REPORT.

Berlin's broadcast war bulletin yesterday said: "Strong soviet attacks were frustrated on both sides of Mielec and northeast of Baranow. Enemy forces who had advanced in a northern direction were split in counter defense.

"Southeast of Warka, our tanks repulsed the Russians in an eastern direction. A soviet attack launched northwest of Bialystok after heavy artillery preparation was frustrated in hand to hand fighting. Our troops frustrated soviet break-thru attempts, which continued yesterday north of the Memel river, and destroyed 78 tanks.

"Bitter fighting developed in Latvia near Birsen and east of the Dvina river. All enemy attacks or break-thrus were intercepted and two enemy regiments were wiped out."

PATRIOTISM ON GUAM AFLAME AFTER 2½ YEARS

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUAM, Aug. 3 [Delayed].—With the return of the native Guamians to American democracy after two and a half years of Japanese rule, American troops and correspondents have been deeply impressed by their patriotism.

One of the natives, Manuel F. Leon, 29, a bookkeeper who had been educated in the United States, recalled that the Japanese "came at 2 a. m., Dec. 10, 1941."

"There were about 7,000 of them," he said, "and only about 250 American marines. It was all over by 7 a. m. Then the Japanese ran up their flag where the American flag had flown for 43 years."

It seems incongruous that these dusky skinned folks speak and understand our language, share our customs, and are rooted deeply in the indefinable but precious privileges of democracy. But you quickly get the feeling there are no more devout Americans than Guamians.

It's a thrilling experience to catch the infection of their long suppressed love of country suddenly flaming high.

Furnish Seed and Fertilizer.

Already the work of reconstruction is under way. Some natives already are returning to the land on the south end of the island from which the Japanese have been driven.

Seed, fertilizer, fishing tackle, food, and other items to help them in their fresh start, are being provided by the civil administration. Cheers greeted the announcement by Naval Comdr. John B. Cooke to the natives that "your homes and churches will be rebuilt."

Cooke's attitude is typical of that of the average trooper here. Natives gather about him for farewell before returning to their old homes. He wrings their hands and slaps others on the back.

"You're a good people," he tells them feelingly. "I'll be seeing you soon."

Never Lost Hope.

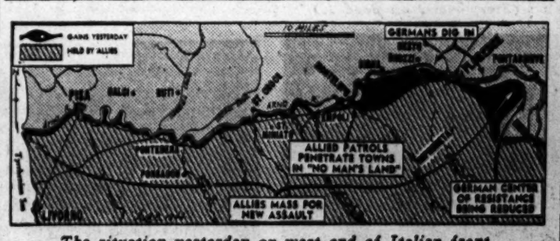
Then the natives file cheerfully southward over the rough trail.

Their homes and towns lie in waste and some of their loved ones have been killed, but their spirits are that of the gladdest holiday in the island's turbulent history. Theirs is a gladness of hope often dimmed, but never extinguished, that some day the Americans would be back.

Most of the refugees had spent the last few weeks back in the wilds without rations since our aerial attack began June 11, subsisting only upon inadequate roots and fruit. In the early days of our occupation some trickled thru, but it was not until our soldiers started northward two days ago that the mass liberation began.

At collection centers everything possible is being done to make these repatriates as comfortable as possible. In medical centers, wounds and sores long unattended are dressed; the slightly ill are given medicine, and many expectant mothers receive aid and advice from army and navy physicians and medical crews who labor heroically in the emergency.

Allies Mop Up South of Arno



The situation yesterday on west end of Italian front.

ALLIES LINE UP FOR DRIVE OVER RIVER IN ITALY

Mop Up Foes South of the Arno.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 7 (AP).—Allied soldiers moved up tonight for a great assault on an Italian water barrier—the battle of the Arno.

There were no signs, however, that the American 5th army and the British 8th were ready for an immediate attack across the broad stream barring their path to the enemy's Gothic line.

The 8th army still had a few pockets of Nazi resistance to clean out on the south bank of the Arno both east and west of Florence. These Germans were all that were left from a point three miles east of Florence to Montelupo, 12 miles west.

Allied reconnaissance patrols ranged into the river towns of Montelupo and Empoli, but these places remained in No Man's land. A center of German resistance on the ridge southwest of Pontassieve, in the bend of the Arno, was being steadily reduced.

60 Mile Battlefield.

Once those German pockets have been wiped out, Gen. Harold Alexander's forces can be massed on a 60 mile front from the Arno's mouth to Pontassieve.

South African troops made contact with the Germans on the north bank of the river in thrusts which an allied spokesman explained were only reconnaissance patrols.

Alarm expressed at the Vatican that the great renaissance city of Florence might be destroyed was allayed by word from the allied comand that the city's main area on the north side of the Arno was apparently occupied only by small parties of machine gunners, and by a declaration from an official source that "there will be no need for the city itself to become a battlefield."

Germans Dig In.

On both sides of Florence, however, the Nazis were digging in for a desperate stand. Big guns in the hills north of the Arno continued to toss shells into the 8th army lines. Allied artillery was not shelling any part of the city.

The allied command announced that more than 50,000 prisoners had been taken in the offensive from Cassino to Florence.

[Berlin's broadcast war report said yesterday: "The enemy attempted several times in vain to cross the Arno river in the Florence area. Weak forces that had crossed east of the town were smashed. In mopping up operations in the Italian area, 1,218 terrorists and saboteurs were annihilated between Aug. 1 and 5."]

CHINESE SMASH NEW JAP THRUST FOR HENGYANG

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 7 (AP).—In some of the heaviest fighting ever seen on a China battlefield, Chinese defenders have smashed another Japanese offensive against Hengyang, rail junction fortress in northern Hunan province, front dispatches said tonight.

The Chinese high command said Chinese troops had wiped out part of one Japanese force which infiltrated into their positions about the city, which the Japanese have been trying to capture for more than a month in their campaign to control the Hankow-Canton railway. Two fierce Japanese counter-attacks were foiled.

East and west of the Siang river fighting continued at points where the Japanese have established themselves to protect their main forces. In southwestern Kwangtung province, where Japanese troops burst out of the Holheng [Luichow] peninsula, the enemy was being engaged in the vicinity of two apparent objectives, Limkong and Fahsien.

YANKS ADVANCE ON TRAPPED JAP FORCE IN GUINEA

Heavy Losses Inflicted in Aitape Area.

GENERAL HDQ. SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 8 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Americans, renewing their advance against Japanese trapped in British New Guinea east of Aitape, have inflicted heavy casualties, headquarters announced today.

The advance continued toward the inland village of Afua, and penetrated behind the forward enemy positions.

In the Sarmi-Maffin bay area of Dutch New Guinea, 350 miles west of Aitape, recent allied patrols have killed 160 Japanese and captured 22, bringing the enemy's known dead in the area—including the Wakde Island operation off Maffin bay—thru Sunday to 3,297. Prisoners of war taken in the area total 64.

Hurl 30 Tons on Yap.

Bombers from the Southwest Pacific area hit Yap Island in the Carolines with 30 tons of bombs Sunday.

"The Yap air base appears to have been neutralized by our continuous attacks," Gen. MacArthur announced.

A Japanese freighter transport of 1,500 tons was sunk south of Ceram Island, in the Netherlands East Indies, in a bombing attack Sunday.

Philippines Raided—Tokyo.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Tokyo radio said today two allied planes had appeared over Davao, on Mindanao at the southern end of the Philippines, in a "half hearted attempt to invade" the southern Philippine city, and that one had dropped three bombs which caused no damage.

One large plane was sighted over the city yesterday at 1 a. m. and was followed an hour later by another aircraft which "fled before reaching the skies over Davao," the Tokyo broadcast said.

There was no allied report of such a mission.

A Japanese broadcast acknowledged that a United States task force had staged a two day raid on the Bonin Islands, but asserted as usual that damage was slight. The bulletin contrasted with the announcement of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz yesterday that the task force had sunk or damaged 41 Japanese vessels, including five warships. The Japanese claimed they had damaged an allied cruiser and said they had shot down 41 attacking planes.

8TH AIR FORCE BOMBING UNITS GET NEW HEADS

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 7 (AP).—Maj. Gen. James P. Hodges and Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, former commanders of the 8th United States air force bombardment divisions, have been given important assignments elsewhere, it was disclosed today with the announcement of their successors.

Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, Kokomo, Ind., who commanded the 8th fighter command the last year, and Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, San Antonio, Tex., former deputy commander, were announced as the new commanders of the bomber divisions.

Kepner, whose wife lives in Clarksville, Tenn., was succeeded as head of the 8th fighter command by Brig. Gen. Francis E. Griswold, Harrodsburg, Ky., formerly chief of staff.

Yugoslavs and Greeks Capture Town of Edessa

LONDON, Aug. 8 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Yugoslav and Greek Partisans have joined forces along the frontiers and have captured the Greek industrial town of Edessa, Marshal Tito's bulletin reported today.

CAPT. HARRISON STUDIES TIME OF DRAKE MURDER

Mrs. Goodbody's Story Viewed by Expert.

a phone call from her room at 4:40 or 4:45 p. m. and arrived at the beauty salon just across the street from the hotel at 4:55 p. m.

Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Goodbody left the hairdresser's and went directly to the former's room in the Drake. Mrs. Goodbody has estimated that the walk across the street, including time out for traffic delays, the elevator ride to the eighth floor, and the few steps to the room, took five minutes. That would be about right.

Accepting the time elements given thus far, the two women reached room 836 a few minutes after 6. Mrs. Goodbody at the inquest testified: "It must have been about five minutes after 6."

Story Disputed by Clerk.

Only one person has disputed that time. He is E. E. Jantz, who at the time worked as a clerk behind the lobby desk. It was he who handed the key to room 836 to Mrs. Williams.

"I happened to look at the clock at around 6:20," Jantz testified at the coroner's inquest. [Clocks in the Drake are purposely kept 3 to 4 minutes ahead of time to give its guests added time in keeping train and social schedules.]

Jantz's recollection, if correct, would be important, but after careful study of the time elements, I am convinced that he erred; that Mrs. Goodbody's estimate of the time of their arrival in their room is the correct estimate.

Allows Time for Events.

Mrs. Goodbody's estimate allows more time for the occurrence of the subsequent events; Jantz's squeezes the time too closely.

Inasmuch as Mrs. Goodbody is the only living eyewitness to the tragedy that was about to take place in room 836, we will first consider her story of what transpired.

Patricia said that her mother picked up the key and together they rode to the eighth floor. Her mother inserted the key in the door of room 836 and as she turned the key exclaimed, "O, it is open; the maid must have left it open." [House Officers John Tierney and Ray Riley have since revealed that they had warned Mrs. Williams about leaving her door unlocked]. On this occasion, apparently, Mrs. Williams was not unduly disturbed, if disturbed at all, over finding the door to her room unlocked.

Says Mother Turned on Lights.

Mother and daughter walked into the room. Mrs. Goodbody testified that she is not certain that the lights were on, and her recollection is that "mother turned them on." To do so, Mrs. Williams must have pressed the button at the entrance of the hallway, mentioned in yesterday's article. That would illuminate a large part of the room and, to some extent, the bathroom.

Mrs. Goodbody said that on entering the room, she and her mother took their hats and coats off. Mrs. Goodbody was carrying a "sack of groceries."

Mrs. Goodbody said that her mother entered the bathroom immediately after their arrival, and that Mrs. Williams called to her to come and examine a small electric stove. This is the first visit of the two women into the bathroom. When they came out, Mrs. Williams removed her dress, and they sat around and "chatted about hats and dresses."

Sees No One in Bathroom.

In a statement to police and the state's attorney's office, Mrs. Goodbody was positive that no one was in the bathroom at the time she and her mother inspected the grill. "I looked around the bathroom, and there was no one in it," she told police.

Some 10 or 15 minutes must have elapsed between the visits, for Mrs. Goodbody stated that she and her mother sat and talked for 15 minutes after their arrival.

On the basis of Mrs. Goodbody's statement it can be assumed that the shooting occurred about 6:25. In any event it was about that time when Mrs. Goodbody paid her final visit to the bathroom.

She told authorities, "I sat on the toilet which was facing the door and this woman stepped out."

Killer Behind Door, She Asserts.

"Stepped out from where?" inquired Asst. State's Atty. Joseph A. Pope.

"Behind the door," replied Mrs. Goodbody.

The bathroom door was open, she said, when she entered the bathroom. This door opens into the room and, pushed to its limit, forms a triangular space or little nook, 28 inches by 37, just behind the combination bathtub and shower. Behind the door were an ironing board, an electric iron and cord, all reducing the standing room area.

Like other investigators, I have almost microscopically examined that little nook. The one question all of us have asked is, could any adult stand behind that door? The answer is yes, even allowing for the reduction in standing room caused by the crowding in of an ironing board, electric iron and cord.

Another question asked not only by me but by other investigators is, could anybody on the toilet seat have missed seeing any one hiding behind the door? The distance between the center of the toilet seat and the center of the hiding space is five feet two and one-half inches.

That question may have varied answers. Not suspecting peril, not apprehensive, one would have had no occasion to peer behind the door. Another factor, of course, involves the degree of concealment protecting the one hiding. A third factor involves the obstruction or lack of obstruction other than the door itself.

The bathtub is ringed by a shower rail, from which curtains are suspended. The extreme end of the curtains extends in the line of vision so as to cut off a section of that space behind the bathroom door.

Curtains Could Block View.

The vital point here is that if the curtains were drawn, and the door were pushed back to its limit, no one in Mrs. Goodbody's position could possibly have seen a person hiding behind that bathroom door.

If the curtains were not drawn a person sitting in the bathroom could have seen some one behind the door. That does not mean, of course, that any one would so have detected anything unusual behind the door, because there always is the uncertainty of human perception and behavior. As a matter of fact, the door could have been partly open, the shower curtains could also have been open, the killer could have been in relatively plain sight—and yet Mrs. Goodbody or any one else might have failed to notice her.

For the sake of the record, House Officer Tierney tells me that when he arrived in room 836, a few minutes after the shooting, he found the shower curtains open.

"Something Caught My Eye."

Accepting Officer Tierney's statement that the curtains were open, it means only that Mrs. Goodbody could have been in a better position to have seen the woman said to have been hiding behind the door. It does not mean she should have seen her.

Mrs. Goodbody's story is that she did not see the woman behind the door until, quoting her inquest testimony, "something caught my eye."

Continuing to quote from her testimony, Mrs. Goodbody said: "I saw something black behind the door. I don't know exactly what I said. I must have said [to her mother], 'Some one is in here.'"

That some one, as we all understand, was an unknown woman, never seen before, never seen since, dressed in black coat. She came out, gun in hand, and opened fire!

Only one other person in room 836 saw the gunwoman, and that was Mrs. Goodbody's mother. While lying on the floor of the bedroom she gave a fragmentary account of the shooting, her chief contribution being perhaps her description of the assassin as a woman wearing a black Persian lamb coat, with something red in her hair or hat.

[Tomorrow Capt. Harrison will tell Mrs. Goodbody's story of the shooting.]

LOVERS FIGHT; GIRL KIDNAPED, THEN RELEASED

Cicero police blame the kidnaping of Miss Josephine Rudsky, 24, by four men early yesterday on a "lovers' quarrel." The kidnapers were led by a former sweetheart of the girl who took her for a long ride and released her five hours later unharmed. He was identified only as "Joe" by Miss Rudsky.

Henry Schwartz, 39, the girl's escort, was treated at Berwyn hospital for cuts and bruises suffered when he fought three of the men as the fourth forced Miss Rudsky into another automobile.

He told police the kidnaping took place in front of the girl's home, 4710 W. 12th pl., as they were seated in a parked automobile. Miss Rudsky was released at Cicero av. and Roosevelt rd.

TELLS OF 'GIFTS' FROM 14 WOMEN; FREED ON BOND

Joseph Pastori, 30, who told Joliet police that at least 14 women had given him money or presents to keep him from exposing intimacies they had with him, was released on $1,000 bond on a technical charge of vagrancy yesterday in Joliet police court. Police Chief Ernest E. Overbey of Joliet said some of the women are wives of men in military service, and that agents of the federal bureau of investigation are investigating the case. Pastori, whose home is at 11 W. Webster st., Joliet, received a medical discharge from the army a year ago.

PRISONER TELLS OF WOMEN'S AID IN CAMP ESCAPE

Denver, Colo., Aug. 7 (AP).—A German prisoner of war told a United States District court jury today that three California born Japanese women helped him and a comrade escape from an internment camp, but he startled the courtroom crowd by saying he sought his freedom so he could fight against the Hitler gang."

The witness was Corp. Heinrich Haider, 31, brought by the government from imprisonment at Camp Campbell, Ky., to testify in support of treason charges against Mrs. Tsuruko [Toots] Wallace, 35; Mrs. Florence [Flo] Shivze Otani, 33, and Mrs. Billie Shitara Tanigoshi, 32, all sisters.

Went Thru Wire Break.

The government charges that the women, who were residents of the Granada relocation center at Amache, Colo., provided the means by which Haider and Corp. Herman August Loescher, also 31, fled from a near-by internment camp at Trinidad, Colo., last October. Conviction of treason carries a possible death penalty.

Hesitating as he groped for unfamiliar English phrases, Haider, who said he was a native of Austria, said he and Loescher went thru a break in the wire at the Trinidad camp. Then, he testified, a "big, black Buick" in which all three sisters were riding, picked up the two men and took them as far as Wagon Mounds, N. M., where the men and the women separated.

Two days after their escape, the Germans were seized by the FBI at Watrous, N. M., and since then have been reinterned at Camp Campbell.

Asserts He Opposed Hitler.

Haiber said he opposed German annexation of Austria and, for writing a statement urging the Austrian people "to rise up against the Hitler power and help free the country again," he was put in a Bavarian concentration camp. He testified he was imprisoned for two years and beaten by Hitler's storm troopers.

Later, he said, he was drafted into the German army, fought first on the Balkan front, then in North Africa, with Marshal Rommel's Afrika korps, where he was captured by the British 8th army in its sweep up Cape Bon.

He said Loescher, who is scheduled to testify tomorrow, also is an anti-Nazi.

1943 Grand Jury Foreman Named on Parking Charge

John T. Moran, foreman of the October, 1943, grand jury which launched a widespread investigation into gambling in Chicago and Cook county, was named yesterday in a warrant charging failure to respond to two summonses on a traffic violation. The warrant for Moran's arrest was sworn out by park police who said that on June 9 a driver for the Gunthorp-Warren Printing company, of which Moran is vice president and general manager, violated a parking ordinance in front of 2100 Lincoln Park W.

Mangano Inquest

Rita Reyes, an inquest witness, as she testified.

At the request of Capt. Louis Capparelli of the Maxwell st. station, Coroner A. L. Brodie yesterday continued an inquest into the killing of Lawrence Mangano and Michael Pontillo, hoodlums, last Thursday at Blue Island av., Morgan and Taylor sts. The two were shot and mortally wounded from an automobile.

No light was shed on the slaying by the witnesses who testified at yesterday's session of the inquest. These included Mrs. Lillian Wilkenson, 5529 Flournoy st., Mangano's sister, who gave his history, saying he was born in Messina, Italy, March 1, 1892; Mangano's widow, Ila of 57 E. Chicago av., and Miss Rita Reyes, 2908 Washington blvd., an employe of the International Register company, who was with the two men and described the shooting.

Capt. Capparelli said he expects to question some other witnesses but added he does not wish to reveal their identity.

Judge Ward Swears in an August Grand Jury

The August grand jury was sworn in yesterday by Acting Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of the Criminal court, with John S. Mann, 7440 Jeffery av., a supervisor for the Bell Telephone company, as foreman. The jury is composed of 14 men and nine women, and was charged with no special instructions by the court.

U. S. to Open Prison Camp for Offenders Under 18

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The government is setting up a camp—first of its kind—in Jefferson National forest near Greenlee, Va., for youngsters who run afoul of federal law. The camp will be opened within a few weeks in cooperation with the United States forest service. Similar camps for adults are operated by the bureau of prisons but this will be the first unit for offenders between 16 and 18 years old.

SEDITION TRIAL, ONCE A BEDLAM, NOW DULL SHOW

Limps Into 17th Week as 'Sorry Spectacle.'

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Disowned by its originator and disregarded by the public, the mass sedition trial in the federal District court today limped into its 17th week with the end nowhere in sight.

The Washington Post, which launched the trial, has denounced it editorially as "a sorry spectacle" and "a courtroom farce." In washing its hands of the case, the Post said "the time has come to recognize the unlikelihood of securing any fair approximation of justice from this unhappy experiment."

The trial, which opened amid scenes of bedlam, has lapsed into a routine of dreary legalistic fencing. What was once the best show in town outside the monkey house of the National zoo has been deserted by the public.

Regarded as Farce.

The trial has legal facts of vital concern to every citizen, but the accepted view of the public is that no one connected with the case knows what it's all about.

It is generally agreed by visiting lawyers that nothing like it ever has been seen in an American courtroom. Fervent hopes have been expressed that nothing like it ever will be seen again.

Amid the aura of confusion and behind the antics that have made headlines, lawyers recognize the fundamental issue as the preservation of the constitutional guarantees of the Bill of Rights. If any of the responsible defendants are convicted—and the general opinion is that none will be convicted—it has been warned that the civil rights of every American will have been dangerously curtailed.

In the event of such a conviction it is recognized that the legal battle will be prolonged for years in the Court of Appeals and the Supreme court. The mass of record, accumulating day by day, will stretch over shelves of law libraries.

End Not in Sight.

No one knows how much longer the trial will last. The government has indicated that it expects to close its case at the end of the year. How much longer it will take to present the defense, if motions for a directed verdict of not guilty are overruled, no one knows.

When the court recently announced a plan for a late August vacation, a wit among defense counsel asked, "Will we have a vacation every summer?"

The sedition trial, according to charges made on the floor of congress, is the outgrowth of a campaign conducted by Eugene Meyer's Washington Post to smear pre-war isolationists by associating them with anti-Semitic propagandists and various political crackpots and pro-Nazi propagandists. The Post assigned one of its reporters, Dillard Stokes, to work with the department of justice.

Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] charged that the conduct of the investigation and the operation of the grand juries, which voted various indictments, was a disgrace. He told Stokes the time would come when the reporter and the newspaper would regret what they had done. Almost two years later the Post turned against the trial.

"Certain to Be Fizzle."

"Mass trials may possibly be successful where the issues are simple and the testimony is brief—or where the Russian technique of condemning the defendants first and putting on a trial for show is used," the newspaper said editorially last week. "But where the issues are complicated and the defendants, who have not been browbeaten stand on their constitutional rights, a trial involving more than two dozen individuals is almost certain to be a fizzle."

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] charged on the floor of the house in 1942 that the action against the seditionists was part of a nation-wide plot to purge house and senate members opposed to the New Deal's foreign and domestic policies and to communism. He told the house that Stokes, who collaborated with the department of justice, used assumed names to induce a number of those later indicted to mail him copies of the alleged seditious utterances listed in the indictments.

Three indictments were voted in the case. The first in July, 1942, the second in January, 1943, and in January, 1944. Under the third indictment 28 men and two women were placed on trial last April 17.

Two Groups of Defendants.

The defendants fall into two groups—a smaller one consisting of known Nazi agents who have been convicted and imprisoned as such and a larger group of critics of the administration. It is recognized that some of the latter are racketeers and some are crackpots, and the rest are vigorously against the New Deal. All hate communism and almost all are anti-Semitic.

Early in the trial one defendant, Elmer Garner, 80, of Wichita, Kas., died in his sleep in a rooming house. Three other defendants were granted motions of severance. The elderly and ailing James True of Arlington, Va., and the deaf David J. Baxter of San Bernardino, Cal., received severances because of their physical handicaps.

The third, Robert Noble of Los Angeles, Cal., officially was dropped for obstreperous and obstructive conduct during the trial, but lawyers suspect he was granted a severance because of an error committed by the prosecution in ousting Noble's attorney James J. Laughlin, from the trial.

Twenty-six Defendants Remain.

There now remain 26 defendants of varied backgrounds and racial stocks. Most of them never had met before the trial. Eight of the defendants are in the district jail. Most of these are Germans by birth who were associated with the German-American bund and are serving sentences on previous convictions.

Bundists in jail include Gerhard W. Kunze, national bund leader; August Klapprott, deputy leader; Herman Max Schwinn, west coast leader; Hans Diebel, and Francis K. Ferens. Others in jail are George Sylvester Viereck, German-American propagandist; William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirts, and Ellis Jones, Yale graduate, and once editor of Life, the humorous weekly.

Among the other defendants are Lawrence Denis, Harvard educated lecturer and author, who served as an officer in World War I. and as an attache of the state department; Joseph McWilliams, leader of the so-called Christian Mobilizers and a management engineer; George E. Deatherage, organizer of the Knights of the White Camelia, who was turning out tanks for the army as a production engineer when he was indicted; Prescott Dennett, now a private in the army, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago, author of various writings against Communism and the New Deal.

Indicted Under 1940 Act.

The indictment charges the defendants with conspiracy to undermine the military forces and incite them to mutiny. It was not brought under the 1917 espionage and sedition act, which carries a specific provision against such acts in war time, but under a statute passed in 1940, which outlaws attacks on the morale or loyalty of soldiers and sailors in time of peace or war. Many of the activities of the defendants cited by the prosecution took place before this country entered the war. A maximum penalty of 10 years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000 is possible for each defendant.

The trial opened April 17 in the chambers of Judge Edward C. Eicher of the District of Columbia federal court. Eicher is a former Iowa congressman, who supported the New Deal, and a former member of the securities and exchange commission.

John O. Rogge, one time assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division of the department of justice, who voted the Socialist ticket in 1940, is head of the prosecution staff. Most of the battery of defense attorneys were appointed by the court.

Opens Amid Confusion.

The trial opened amid scenes of confusion. The statement of the government's charge touched off a storm of protests and denials which approached the proportions of a riot.

Rogge in a three hour opening address charged that the defendants talked in terms of blood flowing in streets, hangings from lampposts, and of programs in plotting "to destroy our faith in our form of government."

One by one the defense attorneys leaped to their feet to demand mistrials. From the defense benchs came screaming denials. The courtroom was in a continual uproar. Judge Eicher beat a tatoo with his gavel, and bailiffs and marshalls raced about.

Motion followed motion. The judge overruled one defense move after another to an accompaniment of shouts, accusations, and protests. Such pandemonium reigned that one observer remarked that the trial was probably the only one on record equipped with hot and cold running bailiffs.

Six Defense Attorneys Fined.

In the early days of the trial the defense staff threatened to quit in a body in protest against what they denounced as high handed procedure calculated to railroad their clients. The trial attracted the attention of lawyers everywhere. The District of Columbia Bar association moved to inquire into the conduct of the case.

Six defense attorneys and one defendant, Jones, who is representing himself, were fined a total of $1,220 for contempt since the trial began. One attorney, Laughlin, as previously noted, has been thrown out of the case. The highest individual fine was one of $200. Most of the fines were imposed for arguing after the motions were denied. Two fines were imposed for needlessly prolonging cross-examination.

All of these fines have been appealed and are pending in the Court of Appeals. More than a dozen petitions and other legal actions relating to the trial also have been carried to the high court. To date, the higher court has refused to interfere with the conduct of the trial.

One Lawyer Quits.

Henry H. Klein, one of the defense counsel, walked out of the trial after he had been twice fined. He returned to New York, leaving his client, Eugene N. Sanctuary, without representation. The court appointed a new lawyer for Sanctuary and issued a bench warrant against Klein for contempt. He is in the midst of legal proceedings in New York, holding to the position that he cannot be forced to return to the trial.

A number of lawyers have threatened to go direct to the Supreme court for a writ of certiorari to stop the trial on the ground that the defendants are being deprived of their constitutional rights. The court opens its new session in October.

As the trial progressed, the uproar subsided thru the efforts of defense attorneys rather than the court. The lawyers argued with clients who wanted to appear in court wearing false faces and badges bearing the legend "I am a spy." They succeeded in convincing them the proceeding was a trial and not a three ringed circus. A penchant for nose thumbing on the part of one of the women defendants had to be curbed.

Proceeds at Snail's Pace.

After weeks of legal pyrotechnics the defendants were convinced that their best chance of winning vindication was to take the trial seriously and conduct themselves with dignity.

The trial is proceeding with order, but at a snail's pace because of the number of attorneys. There are 24 defense attorneys and each has his fling at motions and examination of witnesses.

In the early days many of the sessions were given over to contempt hearings. Later sessions were characterized by prolonged examination of witnesses and repetitious motions on behalf of each defendant. The prosecution charged the defense with filibustering on this count.

As the trial progressed, various problems were worked out. Delays have been shortened or eliminated thru out of court conferences, and prolonged objections and examinations have been abandoned.

4,000 Exhibits Submitted.

At the outset of the case, the government said it hoped to present its case by July 1. To date the government has submitted 4,000 exhibits and a parade of witnesses and now acknowledges that the important phase of its case is just about to open.

With Jan. 1 the latest prosecution deadline, and no estimate available of the time required for defense, it is generally decognized that the war will end in Europe before the case is closed. All sedition complained of against the defendants is predicated on alleged comfort to the Nazis. It is considered possible that the defendants will be tried after the war is over for alleged acts of sedition committed before the war.

The charge is that the defendants engaged in a world-wide conspiracy. The government has promised to show that the conspiracy was manipulated by Nazi leaders thru the German-American bund. Thus far the government has introduced a vast array of documents and an army of witnesses to prove that the bund took orders from Germany and worked for Nazilsm in this country.

Turns to New Angle.

The prosecution is now turning its attention to the nonbund defendants and is beginning the presentation of its case on the charge of attempting to influence the military forces in the alleged revolutionary conspiracy.

At present the trial is running four days a week—Monday thru Thursday. The judge arranged for a three day week-end some time ago.

Justice Eicher today admitted into evidence some 200 documents seized by the federal bureau of investigation at the Noblesville, Ind., publishing plant of Pelley.

Arguments over its admissibility were concluded earlier in the day after Rogge read a single sentence from one letter to support his contention the contents were linked with the indictment. The sentence, from a letter allegedly written by Deatherage, read: "Army officers are openly talking of the inevitable purge to come."

Rogge told the court the quotation was evidence of specific intent to incite the military forces to disloyalty and mutiny.

101 Men Tried in 1918.

The sedition trial is not the first mass conspiracy trial in the nation or in Washington. The capital's most celebrated conspiracy trial was the military trial of those accused of Lincoln's assassination. This ended in the hanging of four persons, including a woman, and the imprisonment of four others. Two of the latter died in prison and two were pardoned. History has condemned the conduct of the trial.

One of the largest conspiracy trials in recent history was the trial of 101 men in the IWW [International Workers of the World] case in Chicago after the last war. The defendants were tried before Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis in the federal court on charge of violating the 1917 espionage act.

The trial opened April 1, 1918, and continued five months. The jury after deliberating only 55 minutes found 95 of the defendants guilty. William [Big Bill] Hayward and eight of his co-defendants jumped bail and fled to Russia, where Hayward subsequently died. In 1923 President Coolidge pardoned the defendants.

During the prohibition era there were a number of trials in which more than 100 defendants at a time were arraigned on conspiracy charges.

REPORT 2 RESIGN FROM WPB OVER ARMY CENSORING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Two war production board officials have resigned, it was reliably reported tonight, in protest against the alleged suppression at army request of data prepared by them which reportedly showed an abundance of ordnance items on hand for the army ground forces.

The two men were identified by WPB sources as V. Lewis Bassie, acting director of the progress division of WPB's bureau of planning and statistics, and Irving Kaplan, chief of the production program analysis section.

There was no indication that the resignations had been accepted.

Creates Minor Sensation.

The incident created a minor sensation in production quarters because of recent statements by Lt. Gen. Somervell, commanding the army service forces, reciting serious shortages in many production programs.

The directive of War Mobilization Director Byrnes, issued Friday, tightening controls over man power and civilian production, was ascribed to the shortages.

Kaplan and Bassie, whose duties included the preparation of a confidential "progress report" on production to be presented at sessions of the WPB once a month, were said to have included in July's report a finding that the army's stocks of ordnance—including items mentioned by Somervell—were in good shape.

Army Officials Protest.

The report was circulated, as is customary, among officials of the agencies concerned, before presentation to the board.

At the war department, officials protested inclusion of the portion dealing with the stocks of the army ground forces.

Conferences followed with army statisticians, it was reported, from which Bassie and Kaplan emerged unconvinced that their facts were in error. The army, however, requested that this section be stricken.

Stacy May, chief of the WPB bureau of planning and statistics, and the superior of the two men, yielded to the army request and ordered the recall of all copies which had been distributed.

He directed that the offending section be deleted, it was said, and in this decision had the backing of Charles E. Wilson, WPB executive vice chairman, who normally presented the report to board meetings.

Upon receiving these instructions, Kaplan and Bassie turned in their resignations.

HAMMOND ENDS STRIKE THREAT AT WATER WORKS

Mayor G. Bertram Smith of Hammond, Ind., said last night that a threatened strike of 53 employes of the Hammond water works and sanitary department, scheduled for midnight last night, had been averted.

He made his announcement after conferring during the day with the employes, all members of local 846 of the International Union of Operating Engineers [AFL], who were demanding an increase of $20 a month.

Mayor Smith said he has agreed to recommend to the city council a salary increase of $10 a month.

PARLEY URGED TO PRESS FIGHT FOR JEWISH AID

New York, Aug. 7 [Special].—Renewed efforts to get Great Britain to provide havens in Palestine for Jewish victims of Nazi oppression in view of the Hungarian government's professed willingness to allow emigration there, and to obtain more emergency shelters in the allied nations like that at Oswego, N. Y., were urged tonight at the opening session of the second national conference of the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe.

Five hundred persons attended the opening of the two day conference, which was addressed by Carlos Davilla, former Romanian minister to the United States; Gabrel M. Wechsler, executive secretary of the committee; Dean Alfange, a co-chairman of the committee and former head of the American Labor Party, and Samuel Merlin, executive director of the committee.

William D. Hassett, secretary to President Roosevelt, sent a message in the absence of the President, pointing out that Mr. Roosevelt had given "tangible evidence of his determination to give Jewish victims of Nazi oppression all possible assistance in his power."

Seized

Clarence Lehman in the Bridewell hospital, where he was taken after shooting.

Police yesterday were questioning two men who were peppered with buckshot as they were attempting to get into a car in front of 4840 W. Hubbard st. late Sunday night. The two, Harold Cinella, 21, of 540 N. Cicero av., and Clarence Lehman Jr., 24, of 4902 Quincy st., both have police records, Detective Michael Phalen of the Austin station said. Detective Phalen said Cinella and Lehman would be questioned about recent auto thefts in the district. Cinella, who received only minor wounds, was held at the police station and Lehman, who suffered leg wounds, was held at the Bridewell hospital. The shotgun was fired by Merle Hart, 26, of 4839 W. Hubbard st., who said he saw the pair tampering with his car.

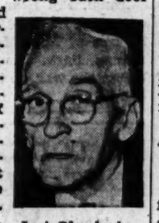
ABUSIVE BEGGAR SHOT TWICE BY RETIRED COP, 67

Charles John McGuire, 65, a beggar, picked the wrong back door when he asked for money yesterday at 3719 Waveland av. and insulted a housewife. The residence is that of Louis Pfannkuche, 67, a retired police sergeant, who shot McGuire in the leg and abdomen. Critically injured, McGuire was taken to the Bridewell hospital.



Louis Pfannkuche.

Pfannkuche told Albany park police that McGuire was abusive and belligerent when he came to the door. An altercation ensued after the stranger insulted Pfannkuche's wife, Mary. McGuire drew a knife, a scuffle then occurred and Pfannkuche was knocked down. McGuire fled down the alley, but Pfannkuche got his gun, pursued him, and in back of 3630 N. Lawndale av. shot him.

Pfannkuche later made a statement to police. He was not held. Attached to the Racine avenue station before he retired in November, 1939, he had earned 12 creditable mentions while on the force.

ROBOT EVACUEES AT LONDON FILL 22 TRAINS IN DAY

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Hundreds of East End school children today experienced their strangest bank holiday. This is one of six days in the year when banks are closed and negotiable papers are exempt from payment. In America it would be called a legal holiday.

The children, instead of playing in the streets or parks or going to the country, went to school with their mothers for a medical examination.

Sleepless but Fit.

This was part of a new evacuation scheme under which both children and mothers must be medically examined before leaving London. "Despite sleepless nights," said a doctor, "these children are remarkably fit."

The children are among 17,000 evacuees—6,000 mothers and 11,000 youngsters—who will leave London tomorrow morning on 22 special trains.

Flying bomb attacks on London and southern England continued today. Fighter planes and anti-aircraft defenses in coastal areas were reported to have had considerable success in downing the robots. Three were shot down at sea in one coastal district and in another area three were exploded within a minute.

Twin Sisters Killed.

Vera and Kate Hetherington, twin sisters, 9 years old, who were sleeping in a garden shelter, were killed by a bomb hit. The mother, who had gone indoors to get breakfast, was slightly hurt.

Herbert Morrison, war security minister, appealed to street fire guards to volunteer for warden service because of the bomb attacks. The volunteers are guaranteed compensation if injured or killed.

J. J. Llewellin, food minister, said that not enough praise had been given to the dealers who had kept London supplied with food thru the flying bomb ordeal.

Normandy Crash Kills Chicago Flying Officer

Second Lt. Albert W. Brown, 29, formerly employed here by Armour & Co., was killed in an airplane accident in the Normandy battle, his relatives at Pesotum, Champaign county, have been notified. Brown landed his plane in Normandy a week after the invasion and was killed when it struck a tree during a take-off.

ALLIED POST-WAR PARLEY DELAYED AT RED REQUEST

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Acting Secretary of State Stettinius announced today the post-war security talks have been postponed until Aug. 21 at the request of Russia.

The Anglo-American-Russian phase of the four power conversations was scheduled to begin here Aug. 11, with discussions among the United States, Britain, and China to follow upon their conclusion.

Stettinius told his press conference the Russian government found it needed more time for preparation in Moscow before soviet representatives start for Washington. He said Moscow had not officially informed Washington who would head the Russian delegation. The Russians earlier had delayed opening the conference at the end of July and it is believed they are preparing extensive plans to put up to the other two powers.

BIDDLE REFUSES PROBE OF HATCH ACT 'VIOLATIONS'

Answers Dies; Denies He Has Authority.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Atty. Gen. Biddle today refused the request of the Dies committee on un-American activities that he investigate alleged violations of the Hatch act by government employes reported to have worked with the CIO's political action committee.

Biddle said section 9 of the act, under which the alleged violations come, is not a criminal statute and therefore does not come within the "investigation or prosecution jurisdiction" of his department.

Cited 77 Instances.

Rep. Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee, acting on the authority of a majority of the committee, yesterday wrote Biddle asking for the investigation. He said that 77 government employes in 26 executive departments, including the White House, had communicated with PAC offices in New York by telephone and telegraph.

Biddle, acknowledging receipt of the letter, today wrote Dies that while the federal bureau of investigation and the criminal division of the department of justice have been actively investigating charges that the election provisions of the Smith-Connally act, and other federal election laws, have been violated by PAC and persons associated with it, he does not intend to act under the Hatch act section outlined by Dies.

Civil Service Function.

The punishment for violating section 9 of the Hatch act, he said, lies with the particular government agency involved. He said he was informed that in cases involving employes in the classified civil service the investigations are conducted by the civil service commission, and said he was sending a copy of Dies' letter to the commission.

Biddle also wrote Dies that the law in question excepts from its provisions "persons whose compensation is paid from the appropriation for the office of President; heads and assistant heads of executive departments; officers who are appointed by the President, by and with the consent of the senate, and who determine policies to be pursued by the United States in its relations with foreign powers or in the nation-wide administration of federal laws."

Sgt. Jerome Shapiro Dies in Action on French Front

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shapiro, 5048 Marine dr., were notified by the war department yesterday of the death in action July 5 of their son, Sgt. Jerome Shapiro, 22. Sgt. Shapiro, a graduate of Lake View High school, enlisted in the army in 1941 while he was attending the University of Illinois. He was a paratrooper and was killed in France.

3 ILLINOIS SOLDIERS WIN MEDALS FOR DEEDS AGAINST JAPS

WITH THE AMERICAN DIVISION SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC (AP).—[Delayed].—Three Illinois soldiers have been decorated for performance of duty in action against the Japanese on Guadalcanal and Bougainville, Solomon Islands.

All veterans of 30 or more months of service overseas, they have been awarded the combat infantryman badge.

They are Staff Sgt. Robert H. Pickett, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Pickett, of Elkhart, serving in a communications unit; George Cox, of Temple Hill, recently promoted to corporal technician. Serving in a transportation unit, he is a veteran of Australia, New Caledonia, Guadalcanal, Fiji Islands, and Bougainville; Pvt. 1st Class Lawrence P. Ray, 28, son of Mrs. Marie L. Rantz of Aroma Park. An amateur boxer before the war, he is an ammunition handler.

100 LODGERS PUT OUT; FURNITURE SET ON STREET

More than 100 Negro residents of a three story building at 450 N. Clark st. found themselves homeless last night after movers who told the landlady, Mrs. Stella Dowery, 40, that they were sent by the Municipal court bailiff, moved all the furniture from 50 rooms out into the street.

The lodgers, some of them war workers, found the furniture piled on the sidewalk when they returned from work. Some were taken in by other Negro residents in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Dowery said she was called into some court at 11th and State sts. a week ago and told she would have to move. She said she subleases the property from a man named Rickard, and was not told about any covenant in the lease restricting the property against use by Negroes.

FEARS NEW DEAL INDUSTRY GRAB AFTER THE WAR

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 7 (AP).—Gov. Griswold of Nebraska said tonight that if the national administration is reelected there is danger the federal government may go into the manufacturing and food distribution business after the war, producing goods at less than cost and wrecking private corporations.

Many high administration officials want "to see our economic system completely changed," he asserted in a speech keynoting the Republican state convention which is expected to renominate Gov. Baldwin and Sen. Danaher, and he said the government had facilities with which it could "take a long step in the direction of national socialism."

Easy to Use Plants.

The Nebraskan saw a potential danger in the "terrifying economic power" which he said was given the federal government by its ownership of war plants, land and stockpiles of commodities.

"It would be easy indeed," he said, "for a federal administration to use the factories which it today owns, use them in time of peace thru government operation to furnish employment to hundreds of thousands, and even millions, of returning veterans or people otherwise unemployed.

"I, myself, could make a pretty good speech telling how nice it would be to create these jobs and at the same time manufacture automobiles, trucks, tractors, washing machines, refrigerators—all things we will want when the war is over—selling these items to farmers and other users at extremely low prices.

Would Wreck Big Firms.

"Why worry if they are manufactured at a loss? This program, of course, could completely wreck the General Motors corporation, the Chrysler corporation, the Ford Motor company, and others, but if those in control of our government would not be offended by such a wreck then certainly we might thus take a long step in the direction of national socialism."

He then added that "another long step" could be taken in the same direction by using the army's "tremendous stockpile of food, perhaps enough to feed the people of this nation for a year."

Calling the coming election "the most important that this nation has faced, at least since 1864," Gov. Griswold said there were high federal officials who "would like to see us a socialistic or communistic nation. They say so privately. Many of them have even said so publicly."

State Hears C. A. & E. Plea to End Flag Stops

Arguments of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad supporting the railroad's petition to eliminate several flag stops west of Wheaton were heard by the Illinois commerce commission yesterday, and the hearing was continued until today. The railroad contends flag stops prevent arrival of trains at Wheaton from Elgin and Aurora on time, and that extra trains and man power are required to maintain present service. Several objectors are scheduled to be heard later.

WHAT DO FARM PEOPLE DO WITH SPARE TIME?

SEEMS TO ME that's when they get busy and do more work! You could read about 'em in the "Producer's Paper" our Farm Service Dept. puts out for and about the folks who produce Bowman Milk. Milking one cow would knock most of us flat, but folks on dairy farms milk cows every morning, every night, feed 'em, clean barns, grow food and feed... and then go on to other activities!

THE CAPPERS, F'R INSTANCE, have a large farm down around Francesville, Ind. In addition to sending our nearby receiving plant around 1200 lbs. of milk day after day (that's 558 quarts to you city people), they've developed a hobby of raising turkeys. Marketed over 2000 last year!

AND THE MARSH FAMILY at Huntley, Ind. Dad Marsh has encouraged son James to raise and "show" pure bred dairy cattle—which he has been doing successfully with his champ "Harmony" and her daughter, "Mary Ormsby Chapin Canary Flood!" Just grooming 'em for shows is a terrific chore!

THEN THERE'S THE SEXAUER FAMILY, of Kingston, Ill. Well—listen to this: A big farm to work... two sons and a daughter put through the University... Mr. S. a farm Supervisor, and Mrs. S. busy as ten beavers on Clubs, Bureaus, Committees! There's not much "spare" time for folks on the 4000 farms that supply milk to Bowman—the fresh, pure milk that's made Bowman Chicago's leading dairy!

Their hobby is "neatness". This farm, owned by John Heinold of Kouts, Indiana, won first prize in the "Neatest Farms Contest" not long ago.

CIO CAMPAIGNS FOR FREE RADIO BOOSTS OF F. D. R.

Issues Handbook to Put Pressure on Stations.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

That the CIO is mapping a full scale invasion of radio on all fronts to fight for a fourth term for the New Deal was made clear yesterday thru distribution of a "Radio Handbook" by the CIO's political action committee, headed by Sidney Hillman. The book outlines tactics for pressuring stations into giving unions free time under threat of complaint to the federal communications commission, and reminds that licenses can be revoked for "abuses."

Sidney Hillman.

Distribution of the handbook followed by a few days the announcement that the CIO is planning to add the control and ownership of radio stations to its sideline activities. The CIO News last week urged unions to make application to the FCC for frequency modulation licenses, "lest commercial interests sew up the field," to "insure labor a chance to get its story to the public."

Plans Campaign of Protest.

The handbook, tersely written and copiously illustrated, advises the CIO union to "shout and make it loud" because "it is quite possible that some radio manager will refuse to give you free time and will refuse to sell you time." In case of denial of time, the handbook asks the union to get the reasons for refusal in writing, to copy the letter and explain why it is "unfair," and send copies to Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the FCC and the CIO political action committee.

"If there are other radio stations in the community," the advice continues, "approach them for time while your protest is publicized. If enough union leaders ask for time on the radio and protest vigorously enough when denied, there would soon be no need for protesting."

License Revocation Hinted.

"Radio stations belong to the broadcasting companies," it continues. ". . . The deep carpets and fine furniture in the executives' offices belong to them. But the air over which broadcasts are made does not belong to companies or corporations. The air belongs to the people. . . . As soon as companies fail to serve the people and abuse their privilege, their license may be revoked."

Explaining how to get "free time" on the air, the CIO issues a reminder that, in discussion of "many controversial issues one side might be rich, the opposing side, poor. Then only the rich man's side would be presented to the public. . . . Fairness requires that on all vital public issues a nonprofit organization get free time on the radio to refute arguments presented by opponents."

Censorship Is Opposed.

The committee contends that when time is purchased "some stations may use advance scrutiny [of scripts] for libel and obscenity as an occasion for censorship of ideas of which the station does not approve.

"Don't accept such censorship," the booklet advises, "but if forced to submit," the union is urged to appeal to the PAC for further protest.

The booklet is filled with suggestions not only as to how to get on the air but what type of material to use. Suggested topics include: "Why We Are for F. D. R.," "G. I. Joe and CIO," "Labor's War Record," and "Labor Views the Peace." Dramatic scripts are included and more are to be had for the asking.

WOMAN WORKER ON NORTH SHORE TRAIN IS KILLED

Mrs. Lois Carlos, 34, a collector on the North Shore line, was fatally injured last night when she was dragged six feet by a train as she alighted while it was still in motion at the line's general offices in Highwood. She died in the Highland Park hospital. Mrs. Carlos, a widow, lived at 1716 Jonquil terr. with two young children. She was the first woman trainman hurt on the electric line since it began employing women in transport service 18 months ago.

Janitor Gets a Summons for Keeping Radiators Hot

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—A summons containing the rare charge that an apartment superintendent furnished heat in the summer in violation of sanitary regulations—and during a hot spell at that—was issued in Magistrate's court today on complaint of a tenant. Oscar Valdes, the superintendent, told a reporter he couldn't help it. He said certain valves were broken and irreplaceable because of war time conditions, with the result that furnace fires intended to heat the apartment's water also heated the radiators in 15 suites.

FRANCES N. ERICKSON.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Police questioned and released more than a dozen suspects today in the fatal stabbing of Frances N. Erickson, 34, Sunday in Rock Creek park.

The woman, an architect, described her assailant as a dark skinned Negro about 25 years old. Officers said clues were slim and that robbery was the apparent motive. She lived only a few minutes after being found.

Miss Erickson, a native of Barber, Mont., came to Washington two months ago from Birmingham, Mich.

RED ARRESTED FOR REPUBLIC RIOTS ACCUSED

Blamed for Expulsion of 6 Union Leaders.

Joseph Weber, Communist labor dictator seized in 1937 as one of the conspirators in the Memorial day riots at the Republic Steel corporation, yesterday was charged with engineering the expulsion of six union leaders because they are attempting to end Communist domination of their union.

The charge was made by the six expelled members of local 101 of the CIO United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers, which represents 5,500 employes in the International Harvester company tractor works. They are Thomas Dublinski, former local president; Robert Walsh, educational director; William Godek, former financial secretary; John Vysthers, Frank Skorepa, and John Korkas.

Communist Works Under Cover.

Weber has been in seclusion most of the time since the Republic riots. He had been sought unsuccessfully in 1939 for questioning by the Dies committee about his un-American activities; but until Russia entered the war as our ally, Weber worked under cover. He emerged [some say after a trip to Mexico] as an organizer for the farm workers international unit.

Reputed to be the CIO's political action committee dictator in the union, Weber, the six expelled unionists say, immediately invaded local 101 to "get" Dublinski and his followers, who have been avowed foes of Communism. The six, with two others now in the army, had been charged with "holding secret and illegal meetings."

Cleared by Union Court.

A trial committee absolved all and was upheld by the union. The international's executive board, dominated by Weber, reversed the local's decision and ordered Dublinski and the others, except those in the army, expelled.

The membership revolted, but Weber dictated an order to the local's executive board, headed by President Isadore Lind, expelling the anti-Communists.

QUEBEC BALLOT TODAY TO TEST CANADA'S POLICY

QUEBEC, Aug. 7 (AP).—Canada's war policy under Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King will get an indirect test in a provincial election tomorrow in French-Canadian Quebec.

[Prime Minister Mackenzie King, indicating his belief that the war in Europe may end before next June, said last night at a banquet in Ottawa marking his 25th anniversary as Liberal party leader that he intends to keep his undertakings that there will be no election while the war lasts and that he will not extend the life of parliament.]

The Liberal provincial government of Premier Adelard Godbout is fighting for its life in a three way battle in which his opponents are making an issue of discontent over war time restrictions and inconveniences. The policies of the Liberal government at Ottawa, the Dominion capital, are not technically on trial, but Godbout's opponents have attacked federal war regulations as infringement on provincial autonomy.

Alberta Votes Today.

EDMONTON, Alberta, Aug. 7 (AP).—Voters thruout Alberta's 250,000 square miles will decide tomorrow by their ballots whether the nine year old social credit government shall remain in office for a third term or give way to another. Tonight 184 candidates seeking election to 57 legislature seats completed their campaigns.

CONGRESS GROUP URGES EXPRESS ROAD TO AIRPORT

BY FRANK STURDY.

Members of a congressional subcommittee on a 10,000 mile tour of American air routes inspected the Chicago airport yesterday, criticized its road system, and urged that a high speed road connection to the loop be provided for any post-war super air terminal.

Rep. Evan Howell.

Rep. Alfred L. Bulwinkle [D., N. C.], is chairman of the house interstate and foreign commerce committee's aviation sub-committee, which is surveying air transport facilities here and in Alaska to guide legislation to promote civil aviation.

Adequate for 5 Years.

The committee members agreed that the mile square airport will suffice for the needs of the air lines in the first five years after the war. The city is preparing to erect a new terminal building that will carry the airport thru the early post-war years.

After five years, the air lines have concluded, longer runways will be required, particularly if Chicago is to be a base for transoceanic flights. Runways of the length required, probably as much as 10,000 feet, will be too big for the present field.

A committee of engineers representing the air transport companies has reported to the Chicago Plan commission that the airport at the Douglas Aircraft factory near Park Ridge offers the best site for a terminal that could be expanded almost indefinitely.

Favor Keeping Airport.

Public and private interests concerned with the problem agree that the present airport should not be abandoned. The difficulties of planning were acknowledged by Bulwinkle's committee.

"Chicago will need greatly expanded facilities in the post-war period, but without proper means of access, no airport can serve its community well," said Rep. Evan Howell [R.] of Springfield, Ill.

"Chicago's airport will obviously be too small for planes demanding 10,000 foot runways," said Rep. Bulwinkle. "If Chicago needs legislative action we will do all we can to help."

At present no definite program has been set up for financing express highways to the airport at 63d st. and Cicero av. and the Douglas airport on Mannheim rd., near Higgins road, according to Philip Harrington, city commissioner of subways and super-highways.

Joint Financing in Prospect.

Unless federal aid is changed, Harrington said, the prospect is that the expressways will be paid for jointly by the city, county, and state, out of state-controled motor fuel tax funds, with federal aid as heretofore.

On that basis, he said, the northwest expressway projected along the North Western railroad tracks, which would give an estimated 27.4 minutes travel time to the Douglas site, could be built within the five year post-war period while the new site was being prepared for use.

Harrington added that the Northwest expressway would receive priority on the post-war program once the Douglas airport proposal has been approved.

One of the considerations weighing heavily in favor of the Douglas airport is that there is already a heavy investment in it, one the city would not have to duplicate. The airport and adjacent factory are owned by the army.

Runways Anticipate Needs.

The Douglas airport covers 1,038 acres while the whole plant area, including land used for factories, parking areas, and so on, comprises 1,423 acres.

One runway is 5,700 feet long; the three others are 5,500 feet each. All have concrete surfaces nine inches thick, laid on crushed gravel 18 inches deep. These runways are expected to support future airplanes weighing 200,000 pounds with larger wheels and tires to distribute the load. The Skymasters flying off the field weigh more than 60,000 pounds.

One of the runways can be lengthened 1,500 feet within the present boundaries, and the others can be lengthened 500 feet. The land surrounding the airport is almost entirely in farms, with few buildings and no other obstructions, so that the cost of expanding the runways will not be too great.

Airport Costs Compared.

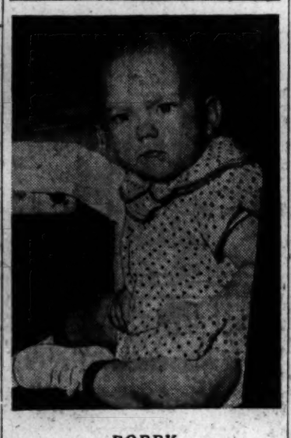
The reproduction cost of the Douglas airport, including land, runways, ramps, taxiways, grading, drainage, and sewage, is estimated at $8,000,000. A super-terminal of some 3,000 acres on the site, including terminal facilities, would cost around $25,000,000, according to estimates held by the plan commission.

To expand the present Chicago airport to the same size would require the removal of more than 1,000 houses, schools, and churches, the relocating of a railroad, and the closing off of streets, at a cost estimated at more than $50,000,000.

An additional advantage of the Douglas site advanced by the air lines is that the majority of Chicago air travelers live on the north and northwest sides, and in the northern suburbs.

At the present airport, industrial smoke frequently creates poor visibility. In the Douglas airport's vicinity, there is no such difficulty.

A Problem



BOBBY.

Bobby is a baby with a problem. Altho he is less than a year old, he is looking for a foster home. Right now he is staying with the United Home Finding Service, 343 S. Dearborn st., but he would be much happier with substitute parents in a foster home.

Bobby is a nice baby. He is healthy, strong, and is a blue eyed blond. He looks like he will be quite a personality guy, once he gets a little bigger.

If there is someone in Chicago who wants to give Bobby, or some other dependent and neglected child, a home, he could call Wabash 9793. Such children are not for adoption and cannot be sent out of the state. The United Home Finding Service, which represents 14 social agencies, furnishes clothing, medical, and dental care as well as board and room for foster children.

FAIL TO TRACE KIDNAPED MINE CHIEF OF BOLIVIA

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 7 (AP).—A week-long search by police and diplomats of at least four South American republics has failed to uncover a clue to the disappearance of Mauricio Hochschild, multimillionaire Bolivian mine owner.

Hochschild, German-born and an Argentine citizen, disappeared July 30 in La Paz, Bolivia, with Adolfo Blum, vice president of the huge Hochschild properties. They were seen last outside the Chilean consulate after Hochschild obtained a passport from Bolivian officials for a trip to Chile. His locked limousine later was discovered in front of the consulate.

According to one version, Hochschild and Blum walked to the side of the consulate where they were seized by seven men who hustled them off in a waiting automobile.

Hochschild's friends here expressed belief the two men were kidnaped or killed by members of a secret Bolivian military lodge which participated in the December, 1943, revolution establishing Lt. Col. Gualberto Villarroel as president. They said members of the lodge were disappointed when foreign interests intervened to save the mine owner from a firing squad in 1939 for allegedly plotting a revolution. Hochschild was arrested last April and imprisoned on a similar charge but was released later.

President Villarroel told the Bolivian congress that the "kidnaping" of Hochschild was part of a plan to create difficulties for the new government.

A report from La Paz last week said Hochschild was in the United States discussing transfer of his tin properties. Friends and business associates denied the report, however.

CIO HAND SEEN IN FIGHT ON WAR INDUSTRY BILL

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Members of the CIO political action committee are fostering misunderstanding of efforts by Republican and economy-minded Democratic senators to pass a reconversion bill keeping the cost of switching American industry from war to peace at a minimum, Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] charged today in an interview.

Vandenberg said his office was flooded with CIO-inspired telegrams expressing fear that supporters of the "states rights" unemployment compensation bill, introduced by Sen. George [D., Ga.], would stop with that measure and oppose creation of administrative machinery for converting war industries to peace time manufacture.

"The idea is fantastic," Vandenberg declared. "Supporters of the George bill are interested in creating a practical mobilization authority for the job of reconversion. The George bill is merely a substitute for the unemployment compensation section of the Murray-Kilgore reconversion bill."

Super Agency Proposed.

The Murray-Kilgore bill, introduced by Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.] and redrafted by a senate military affairs subcommittee headed by Sen. Murray [D., Mont.], would set up a super government mobilization and adjustment agency and establish federal standards for unemployment compensation. Republican senators have vigorously opposed the bill because of its costs and the grant of wide burocratic powers.

The George bill would leave the fixing of unemployment compensation rates up to the states and place federal employes in shipyards, arsenals and government corporations under state unemployment benefit systems. It also would guarantee federal aid to state systems, if needed.

Unemployment benefits under the Murray-Kilgore bill would be as high as $35 a week for jobless workers. It also would give the federal work administrator, an office proposed in the bill, authority to give up to six months vocational training, with a maximum subsistence payment of $75 a month, to demobilized war workers.

Sees 500 Billion Debt.

Altho he would not make an estimate, Sen. Reynolds [D., N. C.], chairman of the military affairs committee, said in a senate speech today that reconversion and veterans' care costs would raise the national debt to more than 500 billion dollars.

Reynolds said the present statutory limit of 267 billion dollars in national debt would be reached in six months.

Vandenberg predicted a reconversion bill would be passed by the senate this week, altho a heated battle is expected to open tomorrow when the Murray-Kilgore and George bills are called up.

LUCAS DEMANDS FARMER RIGHTS TO REBUY LANDS

Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] yesterday appealed to James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, to halt the government sale of 4,000 acres of land near Illiopolis, Sangamon county, until the original owners or next of kin have had a chance to repurchase at the same price the government paid. He disclosed his plea to Byrnes in a speech before the Chicago Agricultural club in the Morrison hotel.

The land is part of an area taken by the government, against farmers' protest, to build an ordnance plant. The surplus war real estate divison has advertised for bids with a deadline of Aug. 15.

Lucas pointed out that legislation is pending in congress to allow repurchase by original owners or next of kin.

"The farmers are definitely for this legislation," he said.

"The government should not be allowed to profiteer at the expense of civilian economy. Unless the original owners or next of kin are allowed to repurchase at the price the government paid, Uncle Sam becomes a profiteer."

Lucas also told his audience that he and Sen. Gillette of Iowa, members of a senate subcommittee, plan to hold hearings in Illinois in the next month on the farmers' attempt to get tools awarded them by war production board quota.

"But, dear, he writes here that he won't be home till Saturday! There's no use dashing out every time you see a uniform turning the corner!"

NEWSMEN WILL FETE CHARLES N. WHEELER ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

Charles N. Wheeler, who describes himself as the youngest reporter in Chicago, will be an incredulous onlooker tomorrow night when his 70th birthday is celebrated by newspapermen in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house.

C. N. Wheeler.

Born in Ohio, Wheeler was traveling on a bicycle to sell kaleidoscopes when he reached Joliet. He became a street car conductor there but switched to reporting for the local paper. He began his Chicago career on the Inter-Ocean. He was a war correspondent for THE TRIBUNE before and after America entered World War I.

In 1921 he joined the Herald and Examiner and was with it at its demise in 1939. Since then he has been political editor of the Daily News.

PENICILLIN USED ON GONORRHEA 'HIDES' SYPHILIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—United States public health service physicians reported today the use of penicillin in the treatment of gonorrhea may hide symptoms of syphilis in patients with both diseases.

Dr. C. J. Van Slyke of the health service venereal disease laboratory, Staten Island, N. Y., and Dr. Samuel Steinberg of the New York Marine hospital, said the masking effect of penicillin on syphilis symptoms results because the relatively small amounts of the drug needed to cure gonorrhea can cause disappearance of syphilis spirochete germs from sores but are not sufficient for a cure.

The physicians said two new short methods of treating gonorrhea with penicillin are being used to speed urgently needed Coast Guard and merchant marine men back to active duty. One method calls for five treatments of a few minutes each in 7½ hours and the other necessitates one additional treatment on the second day.

LUDLOW URGES QUIZ ON DANGERS OF BUROCRACY

U. S. Rights at Stake, Democrat Asserts.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—A veteran Hoosier Democrat arose in the house today to appeal for support of an investigation of the New Deal burocracy as "inimical to American institutions."

Rep. Ludlow.

Rep. Ludlow [D., Ind.], high ranking member of the majority who has served eight terms, announced he has the backing of a bloc of 40 members of congress for his resolution calling for an inquiry.

The proposal has been sidetracked by the house rules committee, headed by Rep. Sabath [D., Ill.], for nearly three months. Ludlow called upon Sabath for an immediate hearing preparatory to authorization of the quiz. Sabath has not returned to Washington since the reconvening of congress a week ago.

Senators Back Measure.

Nine senators and 31 representatives of both parties, representing 25 states, have pledged their support of the resolution, Ludlow said, and will appear at the hearing to testify in its behalf.

"I appeal to all members on both sides of the center aisle," said Ludlow, "to unite on a strictly nonpolitical basis in passing this resolution. Many persons thruout America sincerely believe our burocracy has reached a peak of power and strength where it has become inimical to American institutions, a threat to individual initiative, and a menace to free enterprise.

"They believe that its tendency is to dwarf and obliterate local self-government and to centralize all power in Washington in a manner directly contrary to the concept of Thomas Jefferson and the other founding fathers, who believed and taught that 'the government is best that governs the least.'

Not a Party Matter.

"To find and apply the remedy becomes the paramount duty not of Democrats nor of Republicans but of all of us, as Americans. If the seeds of disintegration are beginning to take root in our Republic, the first concern of every citizen should be to eradicate them without any thought of political advantage or disadvantage in the operation."

Ludlow said the investigation would be conducted by the house judiciary committee, headed by Rep. Sumners [D., Tex.], and a report made ready for the next congress, when it convenes on Jan. 3, 1945, which could be made the basis for corrective legislation.

Day by Day on the FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

Aug. 7, 1944.

MACHINERY breakdowns have plagued the farm for the last week, slowing the tempo of work and interfering with the oat harvest. Twice the pick-up baler has been stopped with broken connecting rods. The combine was stalled for one morning when its motor failed to start and it had to be taken apart.

With repair parts scarce and skilled mechanics few and far between, each breakdown means an abnormal delay. To get the connecting rods in the baler motor replaced, the manager had to travel to Yorkville and have the job done. Two days later, the rods went out again and time had to be taken for another trip.

Preparedness a Help.

Altho all machinery failures cannot be forseen, it is wise for the farmer to make notes thruout the summer of what machines need new parts and repairs. In the winter months, there is ample time to get every piece of equipment in good condition before planting time. This method saves a great deal of expense and time, and helps the work to move smoothly for planting and harvesting.

A short sharp rain Friday afternoon brought a slight measure of relief to the parched fields. The rain was not long enough, however, to do more than wet the surface.

Milk Supply Dropping.

The pastures are dry and brown, and as a result milk production is dropping. The dairymaster has been feeding the cows extra helpings of silage to make up for lack of grass. It takes fresh green grass, however, to keep up a heavy flow of milk.

The Angus cattle are faring pretty well considering the dry weather, for they are roaming the woods. Here they can get grass which the shade has kept from burning. They also are nibbling the leaves of the young trees and shrubs for additional feed. Each day they get a liberal helping of silage to help them along.

Silage Fed to Calves.

The Angus calves get a light feeding of silage each day in a creep. The creep is built near the water troughs and is constructed so that only the calves can get to the feed bunks. The youngsters aren't quite sure yet whether they like silage, but they make quite a business of picking up a small mouthful and working it over for a few minutes. If they had their choice, they would rely only on their mother's milk. The day is coming, however, when they will be weaned and then they must know how to eat other types of food.

The farm has had a good record with the Angus herd this year. One calf was lost at birth and one had to be vealed because crippled. One heifer was lost in calving. The farm now has 41 heifers and 40 calves.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

ONE job being done in the farm gardens now is that of tying the leaves of the cauliflower plants to blanch the heads. Cauliflower plants started at the same time vary by as much as 10 days to two weeks in the time that the heads start forming, so gardeners should check their plants every few days and tie the leaves at the proper time.

The best time to tie is when the young heads are about two inches in diameter. The farm gardener draws the leaves together and ties them with ordinary grocer's string about six inches below the leaf tips. The only reason for tying is to shade the heads, therefore the leaves should not be bound so tightly that ventilation thru the plant is stopped.

Cauliflower heads should be harvested as soon as possible after they reach full size, because they decay if left on the plants too long.

COMMUNICATION LINES CONTROL SEEN AS RED AIM

PAC Move Assailed by AFL Leader.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 7 [Special].—Communist domination of the nation's communication system is being sought thru the CIO American Communications association, J. A. Payne, general chairman of the AFL Commercial Telegraphers' union, Western Union division, charged tonight.

Speaking before several hundred telegraphers' union members, Payne asserted that Joseph Selly, international president of the CIO communications group and a member of the CIO political action committee, is "following the Communist party line in an attempt to seize the communications facilities of the nation thru the trade labor movement."

Number of Members.

Payne said 12,000 former Postal Telegraph employes are members of the CIO association and 105 independent unions.

These employes were taken over by the Western Union when the two companies were merged, Payne estimated 44,000 Western Union employes are members of the AFL union.

Complete Oral Hearings.

Oral hearings were completed last July 25 in Washington by the national labor relations board and an election date is expected to be announced soon to determine which of the unions will become the bargaining agent for Western Union workers.

Payne charged the CIO group has opposed an election. "They would rather continue with the present setup of 105 independent unions with 105 different contracts," he said.

71 CASES IN OUSTING OF NEGRO FAMILIES TO BE DISMISSED

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Aug. 7 (AP).—Prosecuting Atty. C. T. Bloodworth said today he was dismissing all of 71 charges against 56 Butler county farmers in the ousting last December of three Negro families from a near-by farming community.

The farmers were indicted in January by a special grand jury which charged them with "inciting riots" in forcing the Negro families to leave the community. The farmers, most of them prominent citizens, marched in a group to the county jail and stayed overnight before making bond.

Bloodworth said he had evidence Negroes supported candidates in a recent primary election who were opposed to prosecution of the cases and added:

"That was sufficient for me. If the Negroes themselves don't want the cases prosecuted, then under the circumstances I see no reason to run up heavy costs against the state."

L. P. NELSON, 20, KILLED IN CRASH AT INDIANAPOLIS

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Nelson, 6359 S. Bishop st., have been notified by the war department of the death of their son, Aviation Cadet Lawrence Paul Nelson, 20, on Aug. 5 in an airplane accident at Indianapolis, Ind.

Lawrence P. Nelson

Young Nelson received his preflight training at Maxwell field, Ala., and advanced training at Freeman field, Ind. He was to have received his pilot's wings Sept. 8.

Services will be held at 2 p. m. today in the chapel, 1107 W. 79th st., burial following at Iron Mountain, Mich., his birth place.

COURT ASSAILS UNION'S THREAT TO DEFY ORDER

Refuses to Recognize AFL Group.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 7 [Special].—Threats by the Brewery Drivers' union of Minneapolis to disregard any decision of the 8th United States Circuit Court of Appeals in a labor relations case were assailed today in an opinion filed with the court by Presiding Judge Kimbrough Stone. Judges Harvey M. Johnson and Seth Thomas concurred.

Except for judicial notice of the union's statements, the court took no action except to say the situation "will become acute only if the threat ripens into action," hinting a "contempt or other proceeding" would be taken if necessary."

Upholds Nonrecognition.

The opinion upheld the national labor relations board in ordering the Gluek Brewing company of Minneapolis to reinstate 26 former employes as truck drivers and to refuse to recognize local 792 of the Brewery Drivers' union [AFL]. The discharged men were members of the independent Brewery Workers' union.

As an intervenor, the AFL union filed a brief declaring it "will exercise what it calls its constitutional rights to render the order of the board and the order of this court ineffective," the court said.

The appellate court termed the union's statements "impertinent" and "improper" but said "the gravity is that a labor union deems it has the uncontrolable power to disregard and to nullify a determination of the labor board and an order of a court sustaining the board."

Jurisdictional Dispute.

The case grew out of a jurisdictional dispute between the AFL union and the independent group, which had a closed shop contract with the brewing company for many years. After an unsuccessful attempt in November, 1941 to "raid" the independent union, the AFL group caused a delivery stoppage by pickets and threats of violence.

The independent group then signed up with the AFL drivers but later repudiated the decision. Then the company abandoned its delivery service and entered into a contract with a trucking company. The brewery assigned its own union drivers to other tasks but later discharged the 26 men, whose reinstatement was ordered by the labor board and upheld by the court.

Station MEOW on the Air

The Amos 'n' Andy show seemed to be "going to the cats" at a recent rehearsal, as the mikes kept picking up strange mewling sounds. The mystery was solved when a beaming mother cat and four "regusted" kittens were found nestled in a cabinet near one of the microphones!

"Left Is Right" is the name of a radio program now being auditioned. All performers will be left-handed!

Bigger Role for Radio

Radio will play a bigger part in your life than ever, after the war. Because FM (Frequency Modulation) transmits musical programs so flawlessly, you will probably listen to many more of them over your post-war FM set. Television, when it comes into widespread use, will enable you not only to enjoy fine sight-and-sound radio shows, but also to "be on hand" at important national and international events, to "attend" sporting events, to look at merchandise in stores — all while you sit in an easy chair at home.

When you rely on it so greatly for information and entertainment, won't it be more than ever important that your radio bring everything to you at its very best?

Your radio will if it's a Majestic! Fix this name in your mind now—Majestic. Look for it when you buy the radio or radio-phonograph set that is going to mean so much more to you—after the war.

But Can She Lasso?

Will Gracie Allen take Will Rogers' place as a newspaper humorist? She recenty signed a contract to write humorous paragraphs for a newspaper syndicate. One publisher, impressed by her many comments on the political conventions, says she's like the late Oklahoma cowboy-actor-humorist-philosopher because she can poke fun at people without offending them.

DEWEY-BRICKER CLUB SET UP BY 42D WARD G. O. P.

Seek 3,500 Members on Near North Side.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The first Dewey-Bricker club on record here was launched last night by the 42d ward regular Republican organization. It aims at a near north side membership of 3,500 independent voters and Jeffersonian Democrats.

Committeeman Paul C. Ross said there will be virtually no parallel between the Dewey-Bricker clubs and the Willkie clubs which in 1940 frittered away the party's substance. The Willkie clubs often were headed by defeated candidates for party office who used this means of continuing political feuds with their G. O. P. rivals.

'We Are Not Playing Games.'

"We expect to maintain the Dewey-Bricker club in complete coordination with the 42d war organization," Ross told a crewd at headquarters, 1023 N. State st. "It will be a brass-tacks outfit designed to produce real results in the ballot boxes. We are not playing games.

"Every one joining the Dewey-Bricker club will be given an opportunity to work in the precincts and in headquarters to beat the New Deal crackpots and to save this country from communism. It is not a club for those who just want to wear buttons, as were most of the Willkie clubs."

Ross said that National Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr. approved this course of action last Saturday. There will be no national Dewey-Bricker club to cut the ground from under the regular organization, Brownell said.

Heads Women's Division.

Mrs. Marjorie D. Letts, 37 E. Division st., will head the women's division of the club. Marvin Bass, vice president of the 42d ward regular organization, will see that efforts of the two groups are integrated. A chairman is being sought. Alfred O'Gara, businessman, declined to serve because his home is in another ward.

One chore of the club will be to crack the problem posed by the east end of the ward, where it has been difficult for precinct captains to talk to potential voters and persuade them to register.

Getting the western headquarters of the G. O. P. into operation was the main business yesterday at the office, 105 W. Adams st.

McKibbin Talks to Manager.

Samuel R. McKelvie of Nebraska, manager, conferred with George B. McKibbin, Illinois state finance director, who will take charge while McKelvie is absent arranging his personal affairs.

Helping to set up the office plans were Douglas Mode of Midland, Mich., assistant to National Chairman Brownell, and Mrs. Marion Phelps.

James S. Kemper, Chicago insurance executive, has opened his office in the same building to direct the G. O. P.'s national drive for funds for the battle to block a fourth term.

Hijackers Steal Truck and 2,600 Lbs. of Beef

A truck of the Biegel-Weller Packing company, 4535 McDowell av., was hijacked yesterday in front of a grocery at 1536 S. State st. The driver, Frank Scarpaci, 39, of 5656 Halsted st., reported that the truck contained 2,600 pounds of beef and seven barrels of tongue, liver, and oxtails.

BROWNELL VOWS HARD DRIVE FOR G. O. P. CONGRESS

BY GUY GENTRY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Republican leadership is as vitally interested in electing Republican majorities in congress as in the election of Gov. Dewey for President and Gov. Bricker for Vice President, national Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr. told party workers assembled here today from all sections of the state.

Starting soon after his arrival from Chicago this morning, Brownell's session with state leaders, county chairmen, state and congressional candidates continued almost without interruption thruout the day and up to his departure tonight for Louisville where he meets tomorrow with Kentucky Republicans.

Brownell declared "figures now show" it is possible for the Republicans to capture control of the senate as well as the house of representatives in the November election.

Most Unity in Years.

"We have more unity than we have had in many years," Brownell said. "We also have the enthusiasm and the confidence that was demonstrated to me at Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Chicago and in other conferences I have had with Republicans."

In contrast to Republican harmony, Brownell cited Democratic dissension as demonstrated at the national convention. The New Deal party, he said "is a conglomeration of factions publicly and privately arguing, back biting and double crossing."

Indiana Leaders Optimistic.

The 40 year old national chairman said he was greatly encouraged by reports from Indiana leaders who promised that, instead of the 25,000 majority given Willkie in 1940, they will give Dewey and Bricker at least 100,000. While admitting that Gov. Schricker, Democratic candidate for senator, and Sen. Jackson, candidate for governor, will run ahead of Roosevelt, Indiana party leaders expressed confidence that the entire state ticket can be elected this year.

They point to the fact that four years ago, Schricker, the only Democrat elected, squeezed thru with a 3,600 majority only after the party abandoned other candidates and concentrated their final efforts on the governor. More optimistic reports came from Lake county, which includes Gary, Hammond, and East Chicago, with a promise to reduce materially, if not wipe out, the 25,000 Democratic majority of four years ago.

ALD. KELLS RETURNS; REPORTS DEMOCRATS STRONG DOWNSTATE

Ald. Kells [28th], state Democratic chairman, returned yesterday from a downstate tour with a cheery report on party progress. He said that he found going organizations, a sentiment for President Roosevelt, and "a growing political fondness" for State's Atty. Courtney, candidate for governor.

On visits to Jacksonville, Taylorville, Quincy and Paris, Kells said, he found "the party rich in women workers and a growing interest in the Democratic ideals." He added that Courtney's handshake has been particularly effective in landing voters.

"I also saw a horse race in Taylorville," Kells disclosed. "There was a very mean horse with a little Negro jockey. I don't know how he stayed on the horse but he did. I believe things are looking very, very good downstate."

REPORT DEWEY FOR CURRAN AS SENATOR IN N. Y.

State G. O. P. Expected to Name Him Today.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 7 [Special].—Thomas J. Curran, Republican chairman of New York county and secretary of state in the Dewey administration, has been chosen as the Republican candidate for United States senator, to oppose Sen. Wagner in the November elections.

The Republican state committee will make a formal and legal nomination at a meeting starting here tomorrow afternoon, but actually the nomination was decided on tonight in conferences that Dewey, as Presidential nominee, had with state leaders in the executive mansion.

Macy Loses Out.

Up to the start of the conference tonight W. Kingsland Macy, Suffolk county chairman and former state chairman, had vied with Curran as the leading possibility, but the governor gave the nod to the New York county leader.

Macy conferred with the governor late this evening, going into the conference with the intention of pressing his claims, yet yielding to any decision the governor might make. A floor fight is believed unlikely. Dewey also conferred with Edwin F. Jaeckle, state chairman, and J. Russel Sprague, national committeeman.

Upstater Eliminated.

The news that the fight lay between Macy and Curran came as a result of a decision that the senatorship nomination had to go "downstate." This eliminated Irving M. Ives, majority leader of the assembly, and long a leading possibility on the basis of his labor legislation record, since the nominee will have to run against Sen. Wagner, author of the national labor relations act.

However, Ives did not press his candidacy in the last few weeks because there was reluctance to let him drop out as assembly majority leader, and also to suffer the possibility of an exit from politics should he fail to defeat Wagner.

The nomination for associate judge of the Court of Appeals, to succeed Harlan W. Rippey of Rochester, is to go, according to all indications, to Supreme Court Justice John Van Voorhis of Rochester, candidate of Thomas E. Broderick's Monroe county organization.

DR. ASHER KATZ, RABBI AT ISAIAH ISRAEL, DROWNS

Dr. Asher T. Katz, acting rabbi of Temple Isaiah Israel, Hyde Park blvd. and Greenwood av., drowned last night in a lake eight miles northeast of Terre Haute, Ind., where he had been visiting friends. Details of the accident were not immediately learned. Dr. Katz was 30, executive secretary of the Chicago branch of the American Jewish congress, and one of the best known of the younger rabbinical leaders. At Isaiah Israel, he was taking the place of Rabbi Morton M. Berman, now a naval chaplain in the Pacific. Dr. Katz leaves a widow and son.

POWELL, BAND LEADER, HELD ON DRAFT CHARGE

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Orchestra Leader Teddy Powell, 38, was held in $3,000 bail today for grand jury action following his arraignment before United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter on a complaint charging conspiracy to violate the selective training and service act.

Powell, born Alfred Paolella in Oakland, Cal., had been held in $3,000 bail in Detroit since his arrest July 16 on a federal charge issued here. He surrendered voluntarily today and waived a hearing.

Powell was charged with giving gifts and money to the late John E. Wilson, chief clerk of New York local board 20, to obtain delays and exception from the draft. FBI officials said Wilson leaped to his death from an office window after Powell's file was found in another part of the building where the board was quartered.

Later Powell was rejected for service.

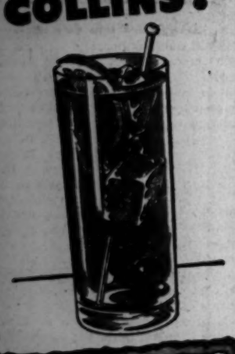
ROOT BEER

TASTE A $2,000,000 WHISKEY COLLINS!



Ever sip a really perfect Whiskey Collins? You probably haven't—so here's the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann invested in grains, skill and research before we released one golden bottle of this rich, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so good!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND

THEN DO THIS!

1. Take 1 teaspoonful of sugar, 1 oz. of lemon juice, and 2 oz. of magnificent Fleischmann's Bond!

2. Shake well! Then—place ice cubes in a tall, sparkling glass.

3. Pour—and fill to the brim with club soda! Then . . . Relax! You'll want to—for you'll be sipping one of America's grandest drinks!

Ingenious Devices in Germany's Proposed Rocket Airships!

Attaining a Speed of 250 Miles a Minute, They Will Be Slowed Down by Explosions in the Nose of the Ship, Throw Out Wings and Land Gently

Reproduced above is the full-page feature on rocket airships published by The American Weekly in 1932

12 Years Before the ROBOT BOMBS

The American Weekly told about rockets!

Virtually every important scientific discovery since 1896 has been recorded promptly . . . accurately . . . clearly . . . in The American Weekly

On July 7, 1932, Professor Hans K. Kutschbach of Berlin gave an interview on the subject of rockets and rocket ships, explaining the principles of jet propulsion and predicting some of its future uses.

Shortly thereafter, this interview was printed with illustrations, by The American Weekly.

Today, many of the predictions of Professor Kutschbach have come true. Pilotless jet-propulsion bombs are being used in large numbers by the Germans against Britain. Rocket projectiles have become a commonplace in modern warfare. Completed, but not yet in combat, is a mysterious new jet-propulsion warplane developed by the Allies, which is said to be enormously faster than any plane now in operation.

Today's promise is tomorrow's reality. And it is part of the editorial policy of The American Weekly to be constantly on the alert for those new discoveries, trends, and personalities which will shape tomorrow's world.

Virtually every noteworthy scientific discovery of the past forty-eight years has been recorded, promptly, accurately, and clearly, in The American Weekly. Penicillin . . . sulfa drugs . . . blood plasma . . . television . . . vitamins . . . radar . . . caudal anaesthesia . . . the list is endless.

These articles are written so vividly and interestingly, yet with such scrupulous regard for scientific fact, that they are widely used in the classrooms of schools and colleges throughout the United States.

That is because educators have found that nothing can compare with reading for the thorough assimilation of facts and ideas. When you read, you can set your own pace . . . pause to think . . . stop and go back . . . make notes as you go along. And reading gives you a wealth of detail, a completeness of impression which you cannot obtain in any other way.

THE MESSENGER BOY HILLMAN NOMINATED.

The Democrats and New Dealers, in their anxiety to liquidate Henry Wallace, placate the CIO, keep the southern delegates from walking out and prevent their convention last month from turning into an eye gouging, hair pulling riot, picked Sen. Harry Truman of Missouri for the No. 2 spot on their ticket.

Many of them already are beginning to doubt the wisdom of that many choice. Truman's early and long continued association with the vote stealing, grafting Pendergast gang is beginning to embarrass the ticket, and Missourians are among the first to raise the issue of his fitness. Truman defended Boss Pendergast while the latter was on his way to prison, and he tried unsuccessfully to get the scalp of Maurice Milligan, the prosecutor who sent Pendergast to jail. Truman was a loyal member of the Pendergast mob.

It was Sidney Hillman, not the Democratic delegates, who nominated Truman. It wasn't Mr. Roosevelt's idea, nor did Truman cherish any illusion that his machine background fitted him for the Vice Presidency. On July 13, six days before the Democratic national convention met in Chicago, Truman issued a press statement in Kansas City saying he did "not want the Vice Presidency." He added that he hoped the Missouri delegation wouldn't indorse him and that he had difficulty making his friends believe him when he said he wasn't a candidate.

Mr. Roosevelt realized that he was likely to throw the Democratic convention into chaos if he persisted in his demand for a second nomination for Wallace, so he sent Ed [Paving Blocks] Flynn, the Bronx liberal, to Chicago with a list of names and a commission to do some horse trading. Heading Flynn's list, of course, was the name of Wallace. After that were the names of Jimmy Byrnes, the suffragan President; Federal Judge Minton of Indiana; Associate Justice Douglas of the Supreme court, and Sen. Barkley of Kentucky. Any of them, so Ed opined, would make a fine Vice Presidential nominee.

Messrs. Hannegan and Walker, the convention bosses, went right to work on this list. They waited upon Hillman, who was with CIO President Philip Murray, and, picking the second name on the list, tried to sell the CIO on the nomination of Byrnes. Hillman said no. He declared that Byrnes was not a true New Dealer; that he had fought wage and hour legislation in the senate and was unfriendly to labor, and that the CIO would have none of him. Hannegan and Walker pleaded with this parvenu kingmaker to change his mind and promised to approach him again. The next morning they sent Sen. [Not a Candidate] Truman, who certainly looked like a safe man for the job, around to Hillman's palatial quarters in Chicago's Ambassador East hotel to plead again in Byrnes' behalf. Hillman and Truman had breakfast together. Truman returned, a most embarrassed John Alden. He reported that Hillman told him, "Labor will never take Byrnes, but labor will take you [Truman]." He had to carry back his own good news.

That is all Sidney Hillman and his Communist friends had to do with the nomination of Sen. Truman. The unscrupulous big city bosses, at the order of Hannegan and Walker, did the rest.

The Democratic convention, with its CIO battalions in the galleries, Kelly ward heelers in the aisles, and its Hague, Hillman, Walker, Hannegan, and Flynn, has warned the country what to expect if the Communist-New Deal party wins this election. True Democrats and non-CIO New Dealers will not relish the prospect any more than do the other decent citizens of America. The convention in its eagerness to compromise accepted a man who gave the fourth term runners a bad handicap when they were sorely in need of a flying start.

SPAS FOR THE BATTLE WEARY.

The army is leasing luxury hotels and resort centers for use as rest places for soldiers on furlough from battle fronts. Most of them are in resort cities in the south and southwest, but the war department is also attempting to take over four large San Francisco hotels. Business men of that city have protested the move. San Francisco already is suffering from a critical housing shortage and from lack of hotel accommodations for civilians who have essential business there. Sometimes strangers have to double up in hotel rooms. Even if the resort plan has any merit, it is absurd for the army to complicate San Francisco's housing troubles by grabbing up the city's hotels when other less crowded locations are available.

A soldier home from battle wants, most of all, to go home. That means his old neighborhood, his mother, father, aunts, cousins, and family friends. It means long awaited meetings with pals, shopkeepers, the girls he used to know, and hoisting a beer with the boys in the corner tavern. It also means that the soldier will get a chance to compare notes with the home folks, who may not be too well satisfied with the way Mr. Roosevelt is running the war and the country. Apparently the army doesn't want the soldiers to meet the people back home. There may be some excuse for offering the accommodations of a watering place to a lonesome soldier and his wife who have no permanent home, no friends, and no civilian life, but there can't be very many such cases.

The army's plan for luxury hotel rest centers seems to have the New Deal social worker approach. Before the war department does any wide scale hotel leasing, it ought to ask for voluntary reservations and see how many men want to spend furloughs in those spas. It might be surprised to find soldiers back from overseas will have had enough of discipline and direction, and won't want the government planning their furloughs and directing their relaxation and entertainment, even if it is in a luxury hotel.

THE LAST VICTORIAN.

A member of the British Navy league, P. D. Ridge-Beedle, has suggested in London that the British navy ought to be sent to collect the dividends the Argentine government has stopped paying on British owned railroad stocks.

Mr. Ridge-Beedle has a nostalgic mind. He looks back with regret to the days when the admiralty was an adjunct of the City, and vice versa, and the royal navy convoyed Birmingham rails and the principles of double entry bookkeeping to the more benighted regions. It's all very simple. Just anchor the fleet in the River Plate and summon the Argentine finance minister to the British embassy.

It would be interesting to see whom Mr. Roosevelt would call the aggressor nation in such circumstances. It would be even more interesting to hear what congress would have to say on the subject of the Monroe Doctrine.

THEY HAD BEST GET OFF THE TRACK.

Congress is reconvening after a five week vacation and its leaders stand in awe of the tremendous task facing it—the drafting of legislation which will prepare America for reconversion from war time to peace time economy. Rep. Celler of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Sen. Kilgore of West Virginia, both rampant New Dealers, issued a statement saying that 20 million war workers will lose their jobs and 10 million soldiers will return to civilian life when peace comes. "To convert to full production and employment in peace," the statement said, "we must find 15 million more jobs than were available in 1939."

The people should not expect any constructive solution of the gigantic problem of reconversion from this session of congress. It is a Democratic congress. The only ideas in the heads of the Democratic majority come from the New Deal collectivists and self-labeled experts, who never had any steady income until Mr. Roosevelt came along. Mr. Roosevelt paid out more public money to people than any individual in the world's history, but he never provided work for anybody. He has had two cures for unemployment, the dole and the war. At times he has kept people from working deliberately, and paid them off in treasury checks, for motives of his own.

It is not the duty of congress to find jobs for anybody, because that is not within its ability. If congress is going to help in the change from war to peace, it must strike the New Deal shackles from industry. It must slash off the red tape that binds industry, free it from totalitarian controls over materials, production, man power, prices, capital financing, and from confiscatory taxes, so that industry can provide jobs for everybody.

America has the highest skilled labor pool in its history. When the war ends there will be an enormous demand for all of the articles civilized people use. There is a dammed-up source of purchasing power in war bonds, savings, and money people have earned but couldn't spend. This does not add up to any post-war depression. If industry and private enterprise are given a green light, and if somebody releases the New Deal brakes, the journey from a war to a peace footing will not lead thru any depression, any great amount of unemployment, or any situation requiring a grandiose public works program.

Every manufacturer and business man in America knows that he must reconvert to civilian trade and is more than anxious to get started at it. They will need labor's help thruout the task, and if they are allowed to do it in their own practical way there need not be any mass layoffs. Even the dullards and incompetents will find some work to do.

The only real difficulties in the way of reconversion come from Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal creations. If he and his administration are removed this November the way will be clear. Clear or not, industry and business are going places in America after this war. The reconversion express train already is moving. Soon it will gather speed and come crashing down on the barriers in its way. If congress can't help lift the obstacles off the track it had better jump out of the way itself.

WHY NOT LET THEM FIGHT?

People who live in communities where Italian prisoners of war are quartered complain that the prisoners are being pampered by the army. They have reported instances where the army has taken the Italians on sightseeing junkets, to churches, museums, and recreation places, and where fraternization with the civilian population has been encouraged. The army replies that it considers the Italians co-belligerents rather than prisoners of war, and that they are being used in labor battalions. It says the Italians have given pledges of loyalty to the allied cause.

If the loyalty of these Italians is unquestioned and they have renounced Mussolini and fascism, the army ought to explain why they are being kept in this country, in semi-custody, doing civilian labor. They have had military training and at least enough battle experience to get captured. Why not send them back to Italy, arm them, and let them help drive Nazis out of their native country? If the Italian war prisoners are sufficiently converted to freedom to enjoy honor privileges in this country, they ought to be more than happy to help free the rest of Italy.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. An emetic is given when a patient has Fainted Had a stroke Swallowed poison Been burned.
2. A gasket on an automobile is similar to which one of these?
   Nut Washer Valve Wrench.
3. The color of ecru lace is best indicated by which one of these words?
   Blue White Lavender Cream.
4. The length of a six penny nail is how many inches? 1 inch, 2 inches, 3 inches, 4 inches.
5. Water cress should make one think of which one of these?
   Soup Dessert Salad Marmalade.
6. Some plants have a life span of but one year; some live two, while others continue more or less indefinitely. We designate such plants, respectively, as "annuals," "biennials," and "perennials." Place a check mark under the appropriate heading for each one of the following. You deserve one point for each correct judgment.

	Annual.	Biennial.	Perennial.
Radish
Rhubarb ...
Pumpkin ..
Carrot
Turnip

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

[Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ANSWERS.

1. Swallowed poison. 2. Washer. 3. Cream. 4. Two inches. 5. Salad. 6. The radish and pumpkins are annuals. Carrots and turnips are biennials, while rhubarb is a perennial.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

INTERIM REPORT.

Dear Dr. Collins: It is necessary to inform you that murmurs of discontent, verging on open revolt, have increased in volume among the lower classes since the first day of your absence from the fighting front.

Fortunately we are able to assure you, however, that the Line holds firm, that all danger of a successful coup d'etat has been averted by our strong counter-measures, and that the leaders of the underground subversive movement have been ruthlessly punished. You will find the corpses in the lower left hand drawer.

The abortive attentat can be best described in the language of Berchtesgaden. An extremely small clique of ambitious, unscrupulous, and at the same time foolish, criminally scheming contribs hatched a plot to occupy the entire column by launching against it an unprecedented tonnage of doodlebug prose and verse in a series of night and day attacks which, had they succeeded, would have left you no hope save that of dunkirking over to the Voice of the People.

Your eyes will tell you how completely the assault has failed. Not only has your space at the top of the column been defended, it has been enlarged. You now command a full inch more than formerly at the summit, while at the base a precedent has been established for a four-line snapper, if you want it. In addition some small areas in the middle region have been conquered for you by the device of sending in "tourists" with forged passports bearing such names as "Yvette," "Nemesister," "Lex," "Captious," "Ouija," "Joe B," and "Sue," all of whom, under their camouflage, are your agents.

A special dossier marked "confidential" [deposited between your pipe cleaners and your Portuguese dictionary] concerns a character using the obviously fictitious name of "Silly Sally." The woman is probably dangerous. The moment your back was turned she applied for a position as first mate to the Commodore, whose loyalty to you, however, is unquestionable. She has also indicated a sinister interest in your agent A Looper. And she has written a poem which, after cautiously dipping it in a bucket of water, we have placed in an envelope of asbestos. We suggest that when you read it you should wear smoked glasses. Lineprotemaster.

FAIRY FINERY.

Catalpa blossoms perfume all the air,
And you may see
A wealth of fluffy beauty clustered there
Upon the tree.

The flower-fairies have been dancing by,
From dark to dawn;
And now their dancing frocks all lie
Upon the lawn.

As any queen might doff her gown—
Untidily,
So fairy laces were flung down
Beneath the tree.

He Won't Trade Back.

Sir: I was on the point of writing you about that historic hat trade [Line, Aug. 2] when your thoughtful article appeared in print. The fact is, similar thoughts have been frying in my own skillet. Since making the swap, my skull has been filled with bizarre notions of such a charming and miscellaneous nature that I have wondered if I ought not to become a columnist. [Do you know of any opening in this field?] Thoughts of murder and mayhem have departed, there are singing sounds in my head, and sonnets, villanelles, and rondeaus float like sun spots before my eyes. Odd pseudonyms attract me—Sganarelle, Tyl Owlglass, Lestrade, Louis Bromfield III., Mr. Gadley-beside-himself. It is a diverting experience, and if you are thinking of trading back I would rather not. But I like your idea that thoughts may be transferred with hats; it is obviously what old Appius Claudius Vesuvius had in mind when he wrote, "Panamea mutantur, et nos mutamur in illis." [Or in Illinois, for that matter.] Autolycus.

[This department answers questions related to help available to relatives of service men, in the column or by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent to Sally Joy Brown.]

Mrs. A. G. writes: "My son was recently reported killed in action. I have been told that there is an organization for relatives of such men whose members wear small gold stars. Have you any information about it?"

Perhaps you are referring to the Gold Star Mothers, Inc., a national organization which offers membership to all mothers who have lost sons in the service in any war. Inquiries may be sent to the national secretary, Mrs. Isabal Adams, 4518 Locust st., Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. A. S. writes: "My brother was overseas in England. He named me beneficiary on his government insurance policy, but I notice that he gave my maiden name, rather than my married one. Can you advise me about changing it?"

Write to the director of insurance, veterans administration, Washington, D. C., giving your brother's complete name, rank, serial number, military address, date of his birth, and any other identifying information you may have.

DESTROY NEIGHBORHOOD MOSQUITOES.

No one should encourage insect bites, least of all those which may be inflicted by mosquitoes. These bloodsucking buzzers, altho small in size, can spread disaster.

We must recall that each specimen possesses a boring instrument which can penetrate the human skin and take up, within a few seconds, a substantial meal of vital fluid. Certain species transmit malaria, which is responsible for more suffering and incapacity than any other single world-wide disorder. Other types can disseminate yellow jack and dengue fever. In our southern states, in times past, entire villages and cities have been stricken. Not only was business at a standstill but loss of life was common.

We no longer fear yellow fever. We know that by screening those who are ill, so that insects cannot reach them and devour their blood, that the causative organisms cannot be dispersed. But constant watchfulness is demanded. The price of safety is vigilance and this explains why we have mosquito abatement organizations.

Communities located near ponds, lakes, or sluggish streams will present better health records if these night biters are not allowed to develop. The eggs are laid in water and, on hatching, active "wiggletails" may be seen if one will look sharply. These larvae are air breathers and hang from the surface of the water by their respiratory tubes. Within four or five days they become transformed into what are termed "tumblers." Two or three days later, the grownups emerge ready for flight.

A single adult can live for several months or until unfavorable weather conditions destroy it. They don't breed in weeds or dry places, but will spend the day in the shade formed by shrubbery or tall grass. Any puddle that lasts for 10 days can become a mosquito pest hole. For this reason, rain water should not be allowed to accumulate in tin cans, barrels, gutters, or anywhere about the premises.

If your district is bothered excessively you may be sure that you or your neighbors are propagating the "bugs" near at hand. Roof drains that function imperfectly, old, unused garbage cans, standing water in the basement—are all possible hatcheries.

If quiet pools abound we can safeguard the home by adding a little kerosene to every puddle. This will destroy the young. The procedure must be repeated at least once a week during the season. The oil will stop up the breathing apparatus and the baby forms will succumb.

These precautions are so much simpler than fighting malaria which has been carried from an active case to a well person by a "skeeter." Local and state health departments everywhere will coöperate with the public in eliminating these menaces. If you have an insect problem in your neighborhood tell your health officer about it.

SQUINT.

Mrs. T. writes: My child is slightly cross-eyed. Could this be due to the fact that she sleeps on her stomach?

REPLY.

No relationship. If the condition does not correct itself, your eye physician will be able to prescribe corrective measures.

KNEE DISORDER.

R. M. writes: In the case of fluid on the kneecap is an operation necessary or will treatments help?

REPLY.

If the liquid is within the joint, physical therapy is advised. Surgical removal is rarely indicated.

BATH AFTER EATING.

E. W. H. writes: Is it dangerous to take a bath immediately after eating dinner?

REPLY.

No. This is a superstition which is not borne out by experimental evidence.

SMALL BLOOD VESSELS.

U. R. writes: What is meant by the vasomotor apparatus?

REPLY.

The nerve machinery which regulates the caliber of the blood vessels, chiefly the capillaries. It is a part of the autonomic [sympathetic] system.

OLD SOL AND COLORS.

T. R. writes: Do light or dark clothes attract the sun's rays?

REPLY.

Dark garments absorb heat rays; white reflects them.

Rude Reckoning.

When I recall the countless bores
With whom I've spent my numbered days,
Of amiable little ways
I've bid them come, and urged them not
To leave, and praised their wit.
It's flooring
If I thus compute the lot
Who, all unguessed, have found me boring.

City Sight.

She was a trim, pretty WAC, walking south on State street. When she reached the curb at the corner intersection she was halted by the red light—halted but not stopped. True to her army training, she began to mark time, her arms gently swinging with the rhythmic movements of her feet, and when the green light flashed she stepped briskly along as tho she had been given the command "Forward, march!" It was a strange little war time episode on a crowded street.

Education Revised.

The shorthand teacher was giving a refresher course in stenography for girls wishing to get federal civil service jobs. She strode to the blackboard and wrote the lineal characters for 1,000, 100,000, million, billion, and trillion. "Now, class," she said severely, "you must freeze these in your memory if you hope to get government jobs. These are terms that are used a great deal these days. We call them our civil service terms."

Legs of Dark Africa.

It was with a startled cry of "No!" that we noticed that the staid anthropologists of the Chicago Natural History museum have turned their minds to the subject of leg makeup. They now say that it is not new at all; that the Nigerian police some years ago wore dark blue uniforms with knee breeches and blue puttees and what seemed to be black patent leather shoes polished to a high degree. A scientific investigation showed that the patent leather was shoe polish applied to bare feet and legs and brushed to shining perfection.

Invasion Summer.

When my relatives come to town, it is not news. They are as numerous as the sands of the sea. From the crossroads of the country they come with gear and pack, and we meet them and greet them and wish them Godspeed as they take off for distant places.

But when M'Lord has a relative come to town, that is news. They are rare souls, few in number. From the sleepy Quaker city from which they stem they see a sharp contrast in our teeming Loop.

Recently came one who was fresh-faced, tall, clean, black Irish. He was just out of school with the print of the mortar board still on his brow, on his way to the business called war.

To see the city we love thru young eyes is a privilege. Once again the towers of the city shine thru the mist like far-distant Camelot. Once again the lake beats against piling like the moan of Cornish water, dark against Cornish rocks.

The avenue gleams and glistens like a pathway to fairyland. The cathedral is a temple of prayer in very truth when you have a young black head bowed beside you. You think "Every hair of his head is numbered." You forget the order of the ritual and whisper one of your own. "Take care of him . . . take care of him."

Chinatown becomes the forbidden city. The streets are walls. The Tong room is a mysterious temple, and the smell of incense rises to meet your own thoughts of another land, another people, and another culture.

Lincoln park, the lake front, a museum, a musical show, all become places of delight and wonder, and finally comes the day which is stamped on the reservation. The milling station, the tall lad, there is a lump in your throat. M'Lord is a little gruff. He is remembering his farewells of 1917. ". . . take care of him . . . take care of him. . . . Good-by . . . Good-by."

MISREPRESENTING NORTHWESTERN.

Chicago, July 31.—Curtis MacDougall, who is connected with the Medill school of journalism at Northwestern, is running for congress from the 10th district on the Democratic ticket.

MacDougall is in truth the candidate of the radical Union for Democratic Action and the CIO Political Action committee. He has the active and militant support of the Communists [working thru the Abraham Lincoln school and certain Communist dominated unions] along with the Kelly-Nash machine and all of the other strange bed fellows that the New Deal has brought together.

MacDougall's UDA and CIO managers have succeeded in getting a large number of Northwestern university professors to lend their names and prestige to his campaign. They have also succeeded in luring a group of Northwestern students into collaborating activities in order further to utilize the prestige of the university. These students are being used up and down the North Shore to hand out literature to the crowds at suburban stations and otherwise to work for MacDougall.

The 10th district is being showered with expensive MacDougall literature capitalizing Northwestern prestige to the fullest possible extent.

All of this brings up a serious problem. Are the MacDougall forces to be allowed to create the widely spreading impression that the Northwestern faculty is lining up as an organized unit against what is known to be the predominant sentiment of the people in this territory?

MacDougall and his backers are rendering a disservice to the university by such action. Northwestern is a tax free institution. The share of community and state expense that Northwestern property would carry if this same property were otherwise owned and therefore taxed is now carried by the citizens in this community—especially the home owners. This condition has produced some tension before and should not be again aroused, which could easily happen thru an effort to create a political action unit closely identified with university personnel.

Northwestern university has recently had some improper and unfavorable publicity thru a smear book on Martin Dies written by a former Northwestern professor. This professor is no longer with Northwestern, but the sponsors of the book have used every means to advertise and convey the impression that he is still on the faculty in order to benefit from this prestige.

President Snyder must not be blamed for these unfortunate developments. They are the hangovers from a former administration. Under President Snyder real progress has been made toward recovery from an infiltration that had made distinct advances in certain departments.

Every institution of higher learning is today under great pressure from the "new social order" forces. More and more political activists are entering the field of education and but few universities and colleges have escaped faculty penetration by those more interested in ideological politics than in basic educational service. Marxists have discovered that indoctrination is a more effective process than the methods they formerly tried to use.

PRESIDENTIAL TRIPS ARE CENSORED.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2.—Once there were "nine old men" and one jaunty, redoubtable, dictator sought to ease them out of their office. But things have changed. Today we have one old man; one tired old man who has an unprecedented capacity for self-sacrifice. His friends say he really is not tired. He has eager buoyancy combined with exclusive knowledge of how to keep the world machinery running.

Admitting that this sagacious executive knows all that is cognoscible, there may still be some doubt whether he is all tuckered out. Why not check the record? For instance, how many days out of the last 365 has the indispensable man absented himself from Washington?

If this political genius has spent many days out of Washington in the critical times of the last 12 months could one assume that his health was not good? Or should one assume that he neglected his duty?

WOULD REDEDICATE THE JAPANESE GARDENS.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Out on a wooded island in Jackson park, the beautiful Japanese gardens and buildings are once more falling into ruin under attacks of the weather and vandals who think they are being patriotic. Over in Italy men of the Japanese race are fighting and dying in defense of our common country. I should like to suggest that these buildings be rededicated as a memorial to these men and that a suitable plaque be erected in their honor. I believe this would not be offensive to any one, particularly to those of us who have worn the uniform of our country and are always ready to recognize bravery in our country's defense.

SPEAKING OF DISAVOWALS.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—The New Deal writers and papers demand that Dewey and Bricker disavow the support of Rabble Rouser Smith, the views of Rep. Fish and such. But why do not the New Deal papers and writers demand that Roosevelt disavow the support of the Communists, the Hillmans, the Browders, the Hagues, Tammany, and such? The New Dealers should first wipe their own noses before they complain about others.

EARNEST MONEY.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—I am selling my home thru a real estate agent. Two weeks ago [1] some one deposited $500 with the agent and a sale contract was signed. 2. Should I have received the $500? 3. If the prospective buyer decides not to take the house, do I get the $500 or is it returned to him?

F. S.

1. It seems probable that the agreement with the buyer was that the broker was to hold the earnest money until the deal goes thru.
2. Probably not. See 1.
3. If he backs out without cause, then you would be entitled to the balance after paying the broker's commission.

OKLAHOMA G.O.P. GAINING GROUND IN SENATE RACE

Trend Against New Deal Appears Unabated.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Enid, Okla., Aug. 7.—Republicans here rate Oklahoma among the doubtful states, at least on the election of a senator. The swing against the New Deal in the last two years, which landed a Republican in the senate and almost captured the governorship from the Democrats in 1942, appears to be progressing unabated.

William J. Otjen.

Portents of the July primaries, as G. O. P. experts view them, indicate that William J. Otjen of Enid, Republican nominee for senator, has better than a 50-50 chance of defeating Sen. Elmer Thomas, pillar of the New Deal in the senate. That's their August rating.

They believe Otjen's stride will put him well in front as the campaign gets moving. The Democrats are splitting, and the swing to the G. O. P. in the senatorship may aid the Republican national ticket.

F. D. R. Conceded Lead.

General opinion is that President Roosevelt has an undoubted lead at present in Oklahoma as a result of the war, but G. O. P. leaders do not concede his victory in November.

Otjen made a remarkable race for governor two years ago. This was the year of an Oklahoma revolt against the New Deal. The state elected E. H. Moore of Okmulgee, a dyed-in-the-wool Jefferson Democrat, as a Republican senator. Moore ran Sen. Josh Lee, prophet of New Deal policies and experiments, off the reservation, and won a plurality of 37,510.

Otjen proved his vote getting abilities in that election by coming within 16,111 votes of beating Gov. Robert S. Kerr for the governorship.

CIO Drive Charged.

Sen. Thomas, who has been in the senate 18 years, encountered heavy weather in the Democratic primary. He won by a margin of 21,350, but polled only 38 per cent of the total Democratic votes. The runner-up against him was Rep. Wesley E. Disney.

Disney raked Sen. Thomas as a yes man, a rubber stamp, and a consort of socialistic New Deal crackpots. The CIO political action committee was accused in campaign literature of bringing "a horde of political goons from Kansas City and St. Louis" to work for the defeat of Disney.

Otjen is known as a Lincoln Republican. His slogan is "Keep America American."

He gave his primary platform in the following 15 words: "Win the war; win the peace; stop needless spending; preserve America's constitutional form of government."

"I think my chances of winning are excellent," said Otjen. "I believe the Republicans can win Oklahoma in November."

Wins Alimony

Mrs. Ann Murchison with her son, Daniel, 5, in the county building yesterday. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Milton Murchison, 35, a baggage checker, of 3149 Flournoy st., told Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court yesterday that his wife's habit of smoking a package of cigarets every day was one sufficient reason for striking her. She also went out sometimes at night and left their son, Daniel, home alone, he said.

His wife, Ann, 30, of 3001 Washington blvd., denied that she was careless with the child, and declared that Murchison frequently beat her without provocation. She charged him with cruelty and intoxication in a bill for divorce.

Mrs. Murchison was awarded temporary alimony and support of $17.50 a week, and Judge Sabath denied Murchison's petition to relax an injunction preventing him from withdrawing a bank account of $1,000. Mrs. Murchison was represented by Attys. Joseph H. and Norman Becker and her husband by Atty. Hyman Reeder.

KILLER WITH CUT FACE HUNTED AS SLAYER OF GIRL

Assailant Scratched During Attack.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 7 [Special].—A man with deep scratches on his face was sought by police tonight as the strangler of Phyllis Conine, 17, a high school honor student, the third young woman slain in similarly baffling crimes here in recent months.

Bits of flesh believed to have been scratched from the killer's face during the girl's struggle were taken from her fingernails and were being analyzed in the hope of providing a clew.

Phyllis' nude and battered body was found yesterday in a weed patch eight miles southwest of the city. Her head had been crushed, but medical examiners expressed the belief the blow, apparently with a hammer, was struck after death had been caused by strangulation.

Time of Slaying Uncertain.

Coroner E. D. Mendenhall said the condition of the body prevented exact determination of the time of the slaying or whether the girl had been raped, but added that the fact her clothing had been torn from her body indicated rape was a motive.

Phyllis had been missing 48 hours since she left home Friday afternoon to attend a movie matinee with a school chum, Barbara Criswell, 17. Neighbors saw her walking in the rain to a streetcar, but she did not meet Barbara. The manager of the movie said he thought he saw Phyllis sitting in the back of the picture house about 4:30 p. m. If the manager was not mistaken, police said, the girls must have missed each other in the rain.

Where Phyllis was held until she was slain was one of the major points in the investigation.

Reports Hearing Scream.

Police said they believed she was not killed at the place where her body was found, altho a resident near the scene reported hearing a girl scream "let me alone" at 2:30 a. m. Sunday.

Phyllis had not been having dates with boy friends this summer, her school sweetheart being in the army. She had been prominent in athletics and other activities at the South Side High school, where she would have been a senior next year. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. B. Enson Conine. Her father is an accountant.

Police theorized that her slayer might also have been the killer of two other women, whose deaths bore a similarity to hers. Anna Kuzeff, 19, was raped and strangled last May 23. Billie Haaga, 38, was beaten to death Feb. 2. Both were defense plant workers. Neither killing has been solved.

BLOND GUNMAN GETS $400.

Joseph Russo, 2925 Flournoy st., clerk in the Father and Son Shoe store, 1608 Chicago av., was held up yesterday by a blond gunman, and robbed of $400.

MURDER-SUICIDE HINTED IN DEATH OF TWO IN AUTO

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 7 (AP).—A second autopsy and X-ray examination of a man found dead in a parked automobile on a secluded city street showed tonight that he died of a bullet wound, Police Commissioner Hamilton Atkinson announced.

Reports of the first examination said the man, Norman E. Bosley, 29, of Cockeysville, had died of a fractured skull caused by a blow. The second examination showed the skull fracture was actually inflicted by a bullet striking Bosley's right temple.

The bodies of Bosley and Mrs. Virginia Nighan, 39, Baltimore, were found early yesterday. Examination showed the woman died of a bullet thru the head.

Atkinson said he ordered the second autopsy because circumstances in the case pointed to murder and suicide. Prior to disclosure that Bosley died of a bullet wound, police were investigating a theory that both persons had been murdered.

Chicago Poultry Market Being Surveyed by OPA

The office of price administration yesterday started a week's survey of poultry market practices in Chicago, particularly on the near south side. The survey will go into charges of sales of chickens which died on the way to market, over ceiling sales, extra charges for dressing, and short weight, according to Marion Isbell, acting area director. He said price violations comprise the most frequent charges.

LIST PRIORITIES FOR DISCHARGES IN CIVIL SERVICE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The civil service commission determined today the order in which federal workers will be laid off when personnel cuts are made. New regulations were issued stressing the rights of "career" employes, and war veterans, as well as efficiency and length of service.

The commission said this action does not mean that demobilization of federal employes is believed imminent because of encouraging war developments. Rather, it is because a uniform application of civil service rules thruout the government is required by the Starnes-Scrugham veterans' preference act of 1944.

Nearly 3 Million Affected.

The commission asked federal workers to stick at their jobs as long as needed.

The new rules apply to all of the 2,908,912 employes in the federal executive civil service, of whom 270,057 work in Washington.

Layoffs will be made strictly on the basis of individual records, apparently preventing the army, navy, or other war agencies from making arbitrary group reductions when peace comes.

When a cut is made in any department or bureau, each group of employes doing the same kind of work will be put in four categories, as follows:

1. The first to be laid off will be those who had been recalled from retirement, and those who have continued working beyond the involuntary retirement age.

1 Year Employes Follow.

2. Next to go will be temporary employes, serving under appointments limited to one year or less.

3. "Transitory" employes, including those whose appointments are for the duration of the war and six months thereafter.

4. "Career" employes, with unlimited appointments—the last group to be reached.

$534,846 ESTATE IS BEQUEATHED BY JOE GREIN

Joe Grein, former city sealer and liquor dealer, who committed suicide Oct. 8, 1943, left an estate of $534,846, it was disclosed in an inheritance tax estimate filed yesterday in County court. Grein shot himself in his apartment in Hotel Sherman. He was 70 years old. In his will he made bequests of $42,500 to charity, including $27,500 to the Catholic Charities, $5,000 to the Red Cross, $5,000 to the German Old People's home in Forest Park, and $5,000 to the Home for Destitute and Crippled Children. He divided the balance of the estate among relatives.

NEGROES ABSENT AS PHILADELPHIA CARS RUN AGAIN

U.S. Troops Guard Transit Lines.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7 [Special].—With the restoration to normal early today of Philadelphia's public transportation service after a six day strike, only one of eight Negroes whose upgrading to trolley motormen led to the walkout appeared at a car barn to resume instruction as a car operator. He was sent home to await a call.

The army, which took over operation of the system Thursday on orders of President Roosevelt, declined to say why the other seven Negro student operators failed to report, or why the one Negro did not remain on the job.

Operation Is First Concern.

Questioned about the Negro trainees' status, an army spokesman said: "Our first duty is to get these roads back into normal operation and make sure that operation stays normal. Everything else will be taken up in order."

Troops guarded every vehicle against violence as all except 13 of the 6,000 operating employes returned to work on schedule to meet the army's "work or be fired" ultimatum. The average absenteeism for the last three months was 9.5 per cent.

Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, touring the car barns, told the returning workers:

"You're all soldiers even tho you're not in uniform. Any man who isn't back on his job at the scheduled time—zip! He will get no job anywhere for the duration—and the duration may be a long time."

Grand Jury to Act.

With resumption of transportation bringing Philadelphia's vital war production up to schedule, the government began action to investigate the costly strike and to punish perpetrators of Philadelphia's "nightmare week."

Two score or more witnesses were scheduled to appear before the federal grand jury, which will open a special session Wednesday.

Frank L. McNamee, regional director of the war man power commission, alleged that a Philadelphia Transportation company official had proposed vacating a directive by the President's fair employment practices committee, requiring the Negroes' promotion, as "the price of ending the tie-up."

Strike Leaders Deny Guilt.

"If the grand jury calls me," he said, "I am prepared to lay this matter before it in detail."

Four strike leaders, who are free on $2,500 bonds on charges of violating the Smith-Connally law, were dismissed from their jobs as they appeared for work.

They are: James H. McMenamin, chairman of the strike committee who told workers "you are going back to work at the point of a bayonet"; Frank P. Carney, four times president of the company union displaced as bargaining agency by the CIO Transport Worners union; William C. Dixey, vice chairman of the strike committee, and Frank Thompson, frequent spokesman for McMenamin.

The four pleaded not guilty when arraigned in federal court yesterday and posted bond.

Colleges' Early Openings Alter Debut Season

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH colleges opening earlier than ever before due to war time accelerated courses, many young women are involved in college preparations in midsummer. On Aug. 30 four young Lake Foresters, Miss Peggy Whipple, Miss Elizabeth De Long, Miss Clarissa Haffner, and Miss Marion Phelps, will travel eastward to begin their college careers at Vassar. Also bound for Vassar that day will be Miss Nancy Underwood.

All five young women are postponing debut parties until next year. Miss Whipple, daughter of the Jay N. Whipples, and Miss De Long, daughter of the Charles S. De Longs, were graduated from the Ethel Walker school in June. Miss Haffner, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr., might have a small party at Christmas time, but it is doubtful. Miss Phelps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, just has returned from Pebble Beach, Cal., where she visited her former roommate at Miss Hall's school, Miss Peggy Ann Singer. Miss Underwood is the daughter of the Thomas I. Underwoods.

Since the Edward H. Bagleys' daughter, Nancy, will leave early in September to return to her classes at Manhattanville college, she will not have a debut party this fall, but may have a small party at Christmas time. Two of Miss Bagley's classmates, Miss Ann Conroy of New York City and Miss Isabelle Casgrain of Grosse Pointe, Mich., will arrive at the Bagley home in Winnetka today for a week's visit.

The F. Howard Lanes' daughter, Laura, who will leave Aug. 22 to enter Wellesley as a freshman, will return for a month's vacation in December and may have a small party at that time. Miss Lane was graduated from the Girls' Latin school in June.

Miss Katrina Wolcott's debut party probably will be a simple affair during the Christmas holidays when she is at home from her second year at Bennett Junior college. Mrs. Ryland A. Wolcott's youngest daughter left last week to visit Miss Joyce Berry at the summer home of her grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Blatchford, at Desbarats, Ont.

On the Calendar.

The 25 new fences flanked by evergreens which Theodore A. Mohlman is designing as permanent additions to the Oakbrook polo field in Hinsdale will be put to first use Sept. 3, when local equestrians will gather on field 7 of the club for the Oakbrook horse show. The club has been closed since 1941, when the last polo was played there, but in honor of the event Paul Butler and the show's executive committee, which he heads, may arrange to open the clubhouse for one day.

The new fences are being copied after international courses in France, Italy, and Poland, and the result will be a duplicate of the Hippodrome at Fort Riley, Kas. The show, an exhibitors' event specializing in hunters, jumpers, children's classes, and general riding, will have as its main feature a competition for the Gen. Jonathan W. Wainwright trophy, awarded by the club in the name of the American general who is being held as a Japanese prisoner.

The Butlers' house guest, Mrs. Eugene T. Scott, will serve as secretary of the show. Mrs. Scott, a former Chicagoan now living in Ottumwa, Ia., while Lt. Scott is stationed there with the navy, will return to Iowa shortly but will come back to Hinsdale about 10 days before the show to attend to last minute details.

Here and There.

Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard has gone to New York to welcome the Ballards' newest grandchild, the son born Sunday at the Bronxville hospital to Lt. and Mrs. John H. Hobart [Mary Ballard]. The baby, their first child, has been named Ralph Hastings Hobart II., after his paternal grandfather, who with the baby's grandmother will go east later to see the baby after young Mrs. Hobart and the child have returned to their Larchmont home. Lt. Hobart is stationed in New York with the army.

Capt. and Mrs. Benjamin Sears Hunter [Maryphyllis Barber] are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Marian Sears, July 25 in Temple, Tex. The baby is a granddaughter of Mrs. Albert Harris Barber of Hubbard Woods and of Robert J. Hunter of Monroe, N. Y.

Dr. and Mrs. Karol Ripa's Chicago friends soon will be saying farewells to them, for Dr. Ripa has been transferred from the post of consul general of Poland here to the Polish foreign office in London, England. Dr. and Mrs. Ripa are now in Twin Lakes, Wis., where he is recuperat-

Bride Elect Visiting in Evanston

Miss Nan Latimer, who is here from Great Neck, N. Y., as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Bowles of Evanston. Miss Latimer and the Bowles' son, Ronald Woodbury, who recently received an honorable discharge from the army air forces after serving overseas nearly two years, will be married Oct. 28 in Great Neck.

Buy Christmas Tickets Early.

Lawrence Langer of the Theater guild was in town a few days ago to make some decisions about the Erlanger's "Oklahoma!" It is now definite that the musical will stay here at least until the first of the year—provided, of course, that business continues to boom at the boxoffice. After that time it will have to find a new leading man, because John Raitt will step into the title role of the guild's musical based on "Liliom" by those crack "Oklahoma!" craftsmen, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. So you might as well start filling in your playgoing calendar with tickets for "Oklahoma's" Chicago birthday Nov. 15, or for Thanksgiving, Christmas, and even New Year's eve.

John Raitt.

Gordon Ousts 'Kiss and Tell.'

Ruth Gordon is now definite for the Harris Monday night, Sept. 11, and this means that her comedy, "Over Twenty-One," will oust "Kiss and Tell" after 70 bumper weeks. The Abbott comedy is still flourishing, as it should, and may move to the Studebaker to continue its run. That capacious house will be empty after Saturday night when "Personal Appearance" calls it a mistake and an engagement. Incidentally, altho Miss Gordon has several cast changes, Loring Smith still is playing the millionaire publisher, and that rates as reassuring information.

Rambunctious 'Ramshackle.'

Over at the Selwyn, "Ramshackle Inn" is feeling its boxoffice oats and starting to shadow box with the Oct. 2 booking of "The Voice of the Turtle," which it hopes may have to wait its booking turn. Zasu Pitts is certainly doing all right, but she also is getting homesick for Hollywood. Anyway, almost two months remain to settle the problem, should it turn out to be one.

Blackstone Revisited.

Word having arrived that Harold Kennedy was rewriting Gloria Swanson's "A Goose for the Gander," I trundled down to the Blackstone to take another look. The general pace is far smoother than opening night, but the second act is still a desperately dead duck. The audience, tho, seemed to be having a fine time. My own second trip attention centered on Forrest Orr, that quietly expert comedian who has more technique than all the rest of the cast put together. That man even makes silence work in his favor.

Extra Items.

What the New York reviewers did to "School for Brides" was a caution, which couldn't have reassured the producer, who had stormed off saying that Chicago just didn't know a good thing when it had one. . . . Oscar Homolka will co-star with Mady Christians in "I Remember Mama," formerly "Mama's Bank Account." . . . "Song of Norway" opens in New York Aug. 21. . . . Fulton Oursler has written a new mystery play called, of all things, "The Ear of a Dead Girl." . . . A free choral concert will be staged at Columbus park's outdoor theater at 8:30 this evening by the Chicago Concert and Opera guild, under the direction of Silvio Insana. This is the fifth performance in a series of eight.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Shirley Flesham, 5306 Hyde Park blvd., has shelved a peace time career in radio to take part in the war time industry turning out radar-radio equipment for the army air forces. Formerly a network performer appearing in serials and feature programs Miss Flesham, whose broadcast name was Shirley Foster, now is the only woman expediter at the Hallicrafters company, 2611 Indiana av. She also is said to be the only woman purchasing agent in the radio industry.

Shirley Flesham.

"After Pearl Harbor," Miss Flesham said, "the glamor of acting on the air seemed trivial. I had to do something more important."

In September, 1942, she entered the army air forces' radio instructors' school at St. Louis university. Upon graduation, she was one of the first six women in the nation to qualify as instructors in the technical training command's school for army radio operators in the Stevens hotel. It was when that installation closed that Miss Flesham went to work at the Hallicrafters company.

WACs working on a "graveyard" shift at Fort Sheridan are expediting furloughs for overseas soldiers in the rotational section of a service unit processing records of men from 12 midwestern states.

The women of the 4632d WAC detachment were assigned to night work when officers handling furloughs noted that most of the overseas veterans arrive at Fort Sheridan in the afternoon or evening. In order to cut the time which these men spend at the post while awaiting clearance orders, the special night shift was set up to check records and make out forms.

The shift begins at 11 p. m., and the WACs work until 8 a. m. They operate graphotype machines and typewriters and check papers. Many of the WACs have brothers, sons, and husbands in uniform.

In addition to handling records of overseas veterans, the women also fill out initial forms for recruits from the 6th service command who enter the army thru Fort Sheridan.

The Women's Service Corps of Evanston now is two years old. When it first began its program of service to men in uniform, only about 20 soldiers and sailors a week received hospitality at the organization's canteen in the Evanston Y. M. C. A. The average number of guests now is 1,500 a month. They are given hot meals and offered recreation facilities, including dinner-dancing, billiards, table tennis, basketball, and swimming. Young women who are members of the girls' service group act as hostesses.

The club maintains a lounge for service men at 608 Davis st. and an office at 839 Chicago av. in the suburb. Parties are made possible thru funds allotted by churches, women's organizations, civic groups, and the Evanston war chest. Besides maintaining the service center, the women's group packs knapsack books for shipment overseas.

Mrs. Ella M. Hill is president of the corps.

Hospital Group to Plan Lecture at Session Today

Members of the ladies' auxiliary of the Frank Cuneo Memorial hospital who are in charge of ticket sales for a forthcoming benefit will be entertained at a luncheon today in the South Shore Country club by the auxiliary president, Mrs. Maurice W. K. Byrne. The group will present Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, theologian and speaker, in a benefit lecture Thursday, Sept. 28, in Orchestra hall. Money raised by the lecture will be used for a pediatrics ward in the new Cuneo hospital. Associated with Mrs. Byrne in planning the benefit are Mrs. A. F. Cuneo, Mrs. John F. Cuneo, Mrs. Daniel M. F. McMahon, Miss Rosemary Rocca, Miss Rosalie Casey, Mrs. Nicholas Pope, Miss Rosemary Brennan, and Miss Mary McGuire.

Cool Off While You Buy That New Fur Coat

BY REA SEEGER.

Some of the coolest spots in town are the air conditioned fur shops which are now offering August special values in winter furs and coats. Luxury minks, as well as practical persians, silky silver sheened beavers, and moderately priced all-purpose fur coats are now ready for the inspection and selection of shrewd shoppers who buy now for winter. Since there isn't anything sensational in new silhouettes or sleeves or other fashion details, emphasis is properly on workmanship, the quality of the pelts, and the durability of the skins and the finished coat.

August is the month in which to order a fur coat made to individual measure from a selection of beautifully matched and blended skins. Then it will be waiting for you when the snow and winter wind make a fur coat not only a superb fashion comfort but a necessity. August also is the ideal month for ordering repairs and high fashion remodeling on any old coat that is worth the additional cost. Short jackets may be made out of well worn long fur coats.

Smartest new fashion is the all-purpose cape. For capes are back, smarter than ever. Hip length capes cut with dolman or square outline shoulders, dashing flared affairs that just clear the beltline, and the longer, more dramatic, models that swing around the knees or even longer, showing about three inches of the dress or suit.

Fur lined capes, fur lined coats, fur collars and deep cuffs, bands of fur to outline the edge of the coat, fur buttons, small, medium and huge muffs, even the high new hats of fur, are all important fur shopping "musts" for the smart woman who plans ahead and shops now while the available collections are varied and new. This is the time to have her particular furs made with unhurried skill and super workmanship and design.

OPA Orders Ceilings on Low Priced Attire for Maternity Wear

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Price ceilings as low as $1.89 each for maternity dresses and $1.05 for maternity slips were ordered by the office of price administration today on garments produced according to government specifications in the program to boost supplies of those scarce items.

The lowest prices will apply at retail stores which buy directly from manufacturers. The dresses will sell for $2 each and the slips for $1.15 each in stores that purchase from other sources.

Under its program to increase the manufacture of essential and inexpensive garments, the war production board has allotted fabric from which the garments are to be made and established minimum standards of quality.

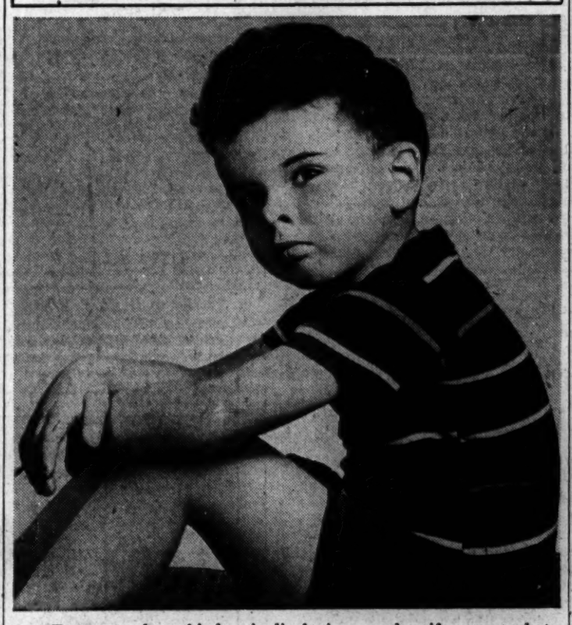
Normal Child Outgrows Temper



Temper such as this boy is displaying may horrify parents, but, with wise handling, he'll outgrow it, Mrs. Bevans says in her article today. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Billy and his mother had been spending the day at the home of a friend, and the 4 year old boy was fascinated with the see-saw and swing in the yard. He had behaved beautifully all day, had a wonderful time, and he didn't want to leave when it came time to go home.

He protested vigorously and finally worked himself into a temper, refusing to cooperate in any way. They left amid apologies from the mother and sobs from Billy.

Later that evening the mother telephoned.

"What am I to do with Billy?" she asked. "How am I to manage this temper business? It is so embarrassing. He is perfectly normal and in good health, so the doctor tells me, but I tremble to think what he'll be like when he grows older if he hasn't any more control than he showed today. He'll come to grief with such a trigger temper . . ."

Again and again I think to myself, "If parents would only stop expecting their children to be perfect how much worry it would save them, and how much conflict with their children it would prevent."

The point is that expecting children to be perfect, not to react naturally when upset, as did this small boy, is to expect them not to be human.

Among the human traits that, I believe, most horrify a parent is a display of temper. But temper, as it is normally displayed in a young child, is nothing to be horrified about. It simply doesn't justify the apprehension that so many parents voice.

We see comparatively few human beings who carry into mature life, or even into the teens, violent displays of temper. There is a kind of sense that comes to children as they develop.

Many displays of temper are merely the protest of a child against something which he is sure he'll have to do but doesn't want to. Many others are due to frustration; still others to inability to make his grownups understand.

So, parents may comfort themselves with the fact that a normal child, wisely handled, outgrows explosions of temper.

A word as to the child who really has a violent temper, who in frequent and long continued paroxysms of rage will hurl a rock or use a weapon with, at the time, almost murderous intent. The mother of that child has one great responsibility: To watch him so as to protect his playmates against him. Also, a tragedy might wreck his life and hers. But I have seen even such children come thru to normal reactions with understanding guidance.

Thru the Looking Glass

This is the time of year when bath crystals are manna from heaven.

We speak with authority, because lately we've been happy as a kid playing with some bath crystals and cologne that recently came our way. They're in a scent named "blue fern," which is a pretty nice twin bill of words but doesn't half tell the story of the fragrance that's been so artfully captured. It's woodsy, cool, shadowy, and somehow wonderfully therapeutic for heat frazzled nerves!

The crystals—one little handful does tricks with a whole tub—dissolve instantly, scenting and softening the hardest water. Your bath, whether it be the leisurely one when you're weary or the quick one when you must be up and about your business, turns out to be festive. It leaves you refreshed and daintily fragrant. The nice perfumed water, suddenly soft as rain, feels wonderful against your skin. And you feel pretty wonderful, too.

You feel even better when you use the cologne as an after bath body lotion. It's brisk and tingling and again it imparts that altogether charming scent that is sweet and fresh as forest air. This is our notion of a pleasant perfume for the working girl to use; it's on the clean, tangy side but feminine, too, and it's in good taste. Vulgar perfumes being an abomination with us, we may be biased, but we think this is beautiful and so do all we've permitted to sniff it.

These bath trimmings, both the cologne and the sparkling crystals, are packaged in handsome clear glass. They're ideal gifts, incidentally, and not nearly as expensive as their appeal and quality might lead you to think.

3,000 Attend Old Settlers' Annual Picnic

More than 3,000 persons, many of them over 90 years old, attended the 70th annual Old Settlers' picnic and reunion yesterday at Harms park, 4200 N. Western av.

The program included dancing to the tunes of music of bygone days, with hundreds of couples participating despite advanced ages. The oldest dancing couple was Mrs. Sarah Donohue, 93, of 4741 N. Kenneth av., and H. G. Holtau, 95, of 6016 N. Nina av.

To William Immenhausen, 90, of 155 Eugene st., who came to Chicago from Hanover, Germany, in 1855, went the medal for being the oldest settler present who has resided continuously in Chicago for the greatest number of years. Immenhausen, a Republican who has voted in every Presidential election since 1876, was attending his 67th Old Settlers' reunion.

Mrs. Anna Vedder, 86, who was born in Chicago in 1858, was given the medal for being the oldest woman settler present who has lived continuously in Chicago for the greatest number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Jennings, 3855 N. Pulaski rd., whose combined ages total 165 years, won the medal for being the oldest married couple present.

Peter P. Conter, 71, of 1530 Frontier st., who has lived at the same address since birth, also was given a medal. William Busse, 80, of Mount Prospect, Ill., who has seven children, 23 grandchildren, and 12 great grandchildren, won the medal for having the greatest number of children and grandchildren living.

Also present at the reunion was John B. Galli, 94, 627 N. Lotus av., who was born in Italy and came to Chicago 90 years ago. He recalled having seen Abraham Lincoln walk down Market st.

Among others present were Fred Frank, 92, of 2025 Cleveland av.; Neils Kronquist, 94, of 4938 Dakin st., and Richard M. Williamson, 92, of 2020 Sunnyside av.

White Collar GIRL

August Aberration.

A day or so ago, reports Edna L. Killian, a WCG came into the personnel office of one of Chicago's railroads and asked: Was it this office in which she had secured a job yesterday? No, said the employment manager, no, it was not, which seemed satisfactory to the girl, who said that was all she wanted to know. She'd been given a job somewhere, she said, but couldn't remember just where among the several offices she visited.

Random Thoughts of a WCG.

Last night I was sitting on the back porch delighting in the soft, warm air, and the summer sounds around me when suddenly I felt a great surge of love welling up inside me—the intense, throat-catching kind—for the things about me. I looked with grateful eyes at each familiar object as I have known them for so many summers: Stiff rows of perky zinnias bordering the sidewalk, the telephone pole next to the back gate, the hiss of the hose next door, the sandbox of the kids on the other side now shadowy in the haze of moonlight.

I knew then with unwavering certainty that I must keep this dear, familiar pattern of things; if necessary I must give my time, effort, strength, money, and ideas to insure the beauty of a summer night on the back porch for my children and in turn, for their children. I can enjoy it tonight only knowing that it will remain so for tomorrow night—that its strength and peacefulness will not be demolished by the lust and greed of men who no longer find contentment in sitting on the back porch. It stands for home and America—I must keep it ever so. G. SMITH.

22 Adelines Make Their Bids Tonight

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Early dancers at the Trianon ballroom tonight will leave such songs as "I'll Get By" and "Swingin' on a Star" to latecomers, for Lawrence Welk and his orchestra will play a medley of tunes of the gay '90s as an introduction to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S "Sweet Adeline" contest, to be featured promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

Adeline Rosz.

Twenty-two young women, all with a given name Adeline and working in war plants of the Chicago area, will compete in a contest which may start them on the road to becoming the "queen" of the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival in Soldier's field Saturday night, Aug. 19. Ten will be chosen tonight by the ballots of the dancers, and a like number will be selected in a competition among 25 Adelines tomorrow night at the Aragon ballroom.

All the Adelines have to do is appear before the stage microphone and say, "I wish to be your Sweet Adeline." When the 10 winners are announced they will be serenaded by the audience singing "Sweet Adeline," led by Frank Bennett. The 20 victors of the two nights' contests will compete in Grant park Saturday night, Aug. 12, at the Chicago Theater of the Air concert, and the 10 winners there will go to the finals at the festival luncheon Friday noon, Aug. 18, in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel. The "queen" and her court of nine ladies will be presented before 90,000 persons in Soldiers' field, and the winner will be crowned with a wreath of flowers by Harry Armstrong, composer of "Sweet Adeline."

The balloting in the "Sweet Adeline" contests will be under the supervision of Nelson J. Goodsell of the accounting firm of McCoy, Holland & Goodsell, and all the results will bear the signature of this certified public accountant.

Both the Trianon and Aragon managements have offered free admissions to all the Adelines and their escorts. One Adeline, who accepted, replied as follows: "However, I don't believe it will be possible for me to appear with an escort. Since my boy friend has gone across I have not gone out with any one."

Among the Adelines to appear at the Aragon will be Adeline Rosz, 22, of 1846 S. Ashland av., a file clerk at the Cuneo ordnance division. THE TRIBUNE will give a $100 war bond to the winner, and each runner-up will receive a $25 war bond.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 7.—It was Valdemar Vetlugin who got Red Book to advance the money for Somerset Maugham to write "Razor's Edge," now the rage. Two years ago, when they lunched together, Maugham was telling him the story. Vet said, "Go on talking." Then Maugham finished and said, "I'm a writer—not a troubadour. If you want the story pay for it." and Red Book, thru Vet, did. Now Vetlugin is head of original projects at Metro, which means all originals are scraped together and he picks 'em. . . . It was D. A. Doran from Columbia who went back east to set the play, "When the Sun Shines," with Max Gordon and George Kaufman directing, to open in New York in the fall. The play's still running in London. Columbia owns movie rights. . . . Herbert Yates is so pleased with John Wayne and Ann Dvorak in "Flame of the Barbary Coast" that he's planning to co-star them in another.

How About It, Hollywood?

An army nurse wrote from Saipan that they'd just been looking at "Stormy Weather." Her note went on: "Wouldn't you think your March hare industry could give the G. I. Joes and Janes better pics after the hell they've been thru?" . . . Just a silly. On the day before the Normandy invasion, a waggish aid to Gen Eisenhower joined him at breakfast and said, "General, I guess we've got to move. Here's an ad in a Hollywood sheet which says, 'I demand a second front!' and it's signed by Joe Mankiewicz." Eisenhower read it and said, "We'll invade at once." They did, the following morning. . . . A marine wrote Jimmy McHugh from Guam that the natives over there, without knowing the words or meaning, are whistling his song, "I couldn't sleep a wink last night."

A Sheaf of Short Shorts.

Esther Williams changes from bathing suit to a skin-tight chartreuse evening gown—looks even sexier. . . . Billie Burke's gone commercial. She's backing "Ziegfeld girl compacts" which are selling like hotcakes. . . . Lt. Bob Taplinger, stationed in Washington, spends week-ends with Margaret Hayes in New York. . . . Dimitrios Dilan hails from Youngstown, O., and is being written up in the home town papers as a constant companion of the duchess of Kent. Sounds like a movie star, huh? . . . Orchestra Leader Bob Wills is on Harry Sherman's pay roll, but not as an actor. Bob, who's Texas born, promised Sherman to break in one of his horses. Sherman said, "You do and you're on my pay roll." . . . Johnny Walker, who used to act for Twentieth Century, is now a producer of his own story called "Where Flowers Once Grew." It's laid in the South Seas. . . . Georgia Gibbs claims that four out of every five women haters are women. . . . Bill Gargan, hearing some one complain about the 30 per cent tax, said, "Gosh, you're lucky. In China, Angostura bitters sell for 1,500 Chinese dollars or $7.50 American money." Who wants Angostura bitters? . . . Juanita Quigley, now 13, has been entertaining soldiers hereabouts with a very funny seven minute monolog, and now she's trying to get her mother to let her be the first child entertainer to go overseas.

The Right Way.

One of my columns reached the fellows in Alaska and I had the following note: "I had an eye opener this winter. Yehudi Menuhin came thru here on tour. He played in a mess hall which was busy boiling up a mess of cabbage. None of us smelled like violets. The wind outside would have blown the hair off a dog, but he played for us that afternoon, and it sounded like a symphony orchestra, for he burst the walls of the hut away, banished the smell of cabbage, and ourselves. I hung around afterwards and a private was introduced to him. This fellow had heard him years ago in Munich. This fellow also watched his parents killed in a concentration camp. When he told Menuhin about the concert in Munich, he said in his simple, sincere way, 'O, if I'd only known, I'd have played that concert for you this afternoon.' Signed Lt. Winston Jones." . . . Note from Lon McCallister: "You lighted the candle for me, and it seems it's burning as brightly now as on that first night. I will always consider you a friend, and hope that my actions during the next five or seven years will never cause you to lose faith in me. I never realized how many Hollywoods there were until recently, and the revelation isn't nice. I trust I can keep them separated."

'Miss Lieutenant' . . . . . By Nina Wilcox Putnam

(Copyright: 1944: By Ines Eliot.)

SYNOPSIS: Lt. Carol Melton of Kansas, an army nurse in North Africa, overhears a military conference in which the need for maps and photographs of the crooked little towns along the Riviera is discussed. She tells Col. Barlow that her identical twin, Lita, is married to a Frenchman who has a collection of maps, drawings, and photographs of all the secret passageways along the coast, that she was educated at Nice, speaks French fluently, and knows every inch of the coastline. She persuades the colonel, who is in love with her, to recommend her for the mission. Carol is called to American headquarters, warned of the danger, and transferred to intelligence. Two experienced Commandos will accompany her. Col. Barlow confides to her that information known only to trusted officials about the troops in Africa has been leaking out. The informer knows the Riviera well. Taken by ferry to a submarine, Carol discovers one of the Commandos is Bright Stoner of Kansas, a childhood sweetheart, who has always stood between her and other men. From the submarine they go by fishing smack to the shore. Carol will lead the way to Le Bastion, home of Lita and Carol's old nurse, Mme. Victorine.

INSTALMENT XIII.

DISGUISED.

"Mme. Lita we are devoted to, comme habitude," Brochard said distinctly. "But she remains with her husband, M. Cassard." This was puzzling and vaguely alarming. Why, in heaven's name, should Lita not remain with her husband? There must be a reason—some horrid reason. Carol sensed it even before she heard the answer.

"Tell me, what occurs?" she asked.

"M. Jacques Cassard eats the menus of Vichy," said Brochard sternly.

"Jacques Cassard a collaborationist!" Carol tried to dismiss the thought. "Papa, tell me truly! Lita can't be that? She simply can't be!" Brochard shrugged, his eyes clouded.

"I think, indeed I hope not," he said simply, "but how is one to feel sure? They are very friendly with the German officials, with the military, both monsieur et madame!"

"And Victorine is still with them? Surely Victorine. . . ." Brochard drew himself up proudly.

"Victorine is a true one, as ever," he said twisting his long lower lip. "I allow her to remain at the castle because of Mme. Lita. And also because in that way we can get food."

"I understand," Carol said dully. But she didn't understand. For the first time an uneasiness about her sister crept into her consciousness.

"Nice mess of rattlers we appear to have stepped into!" said Bright, pouring wine. "We'd better go easy. Take a quiet look-see around that movie set of your sister's before we make a formal call. And now how about a touch of bean soup? I'm hungry as a coyote."

When they had eaten Papa Brochard suggested that they sleep. He had rooms upstairs where they would be reasonably safe for a few hours at least.

"It is true that even the Gestapo hesitate to venture in here at night," he assured them. "Only when there is some extreme emergency do they come."

Carol exchahged a meaningful glance with Bright. They were both remembering the sentry lying back there on the terrace of the restaurant. Papa Brochard was quick to sense something wrong.

"Was there perhaps an incident of some kind on your way here?"

They told him what had happened and he rubbed his bald head uneasily.

"That is bad!" he said. "Such episodes are never without consequences. At best, a handful of innocent citizens will be held as hostages—and shot in the end. At worst they will send soldiers looking everywhere, perhaps even here altho so far we have not been under suspicion because of Victorine's association with the castle."

"Posse or no posse, I've got to sleep!" Bright declared yawning mightily.

Papa Brochard led the way up narrow stone stairs, and pausing at an upper landing motioned the two men toward a rear chamber. Dugan ducked in quickly but Bright Stoner hesitated a moment, his tired eyes on Carol's. Bright still had a weary sickness when killing had been done and she sensed it deeply. But all she said was:

"We'll find a happy landing yet. Good night, Bright."

"Good night, Kansas!" he said softly. "I like carrying your books!"

The room into which Papa Brochard showed Carol was evidently that which he and Mme. Victorine habitually shared. The window was tightly shuttered and barred. Old Brochard apologized for not leaving her the candle.

"It is wiser so, little song of Christmas," he said gently in the old, fatherly manner to which she had been accustomed when she was a child. "I hope thou will sleep well," he added.

"Thank you, papa!" she said, her eyes filling. "I shall sleep in your care." He would, she realized, keep guard downstairs for what was left of the night.

It was late as mornings go in French peasants' lives when they drank a foul ersatz coffee and listened to Papa Brochard's advice.

He had a friend who ran a small vegetable stall in the public market, a man named Ricci Cento, an ex-Italian national and a member of the underground. Brochard bought such fruits and vegetables from this man as were obtainable after the invaders came thru. Ricci had a two-wheeled cart and an old mule and could be persuaded to take Carol in it as far as Villefranche, where the farmer had a little place on the Middle Corniche road. From there it would be only a short walk down the military trail which led to the shore and Le Bastion, Lita's castle on the shore. An inconspicuous method of travel.

"That wagon will have to haul two beside the driver," Bright announced firmly. Carol was doubtful.

"I'd be safer alone," she retorted.

"You're not going alone," he said quietly. And somehow the protest on her lips died there.

"Looking so like Mme. Lita," Brochard suggested, "mademoiselle will probably pass unchallenged. But as for monsieur l' American, I am not so sure."

"I'll take a sack of cabbages or something and be the porter," said Bright. "In this smock and this soft tomato of a hat I'll get by if I keep my mouth shut."

Carol considered this carefully. If Lita were at home and alone, they would be safe. Lita was still loyal. In the broad light of day, nothing else was conceivable, no matter what any one else might believe; Carol knew it had to be so. But it would be good to have Bright along. As he had already suggested, they would probably do little more than reconnoiter. It was important, first of all, to know just what the setup at Le Bastion really was.

In the end it was decided that Dugan lie low at Brochard's. Carol went upstairs to prepare for the journey.

In the old armoire there were two dresses which had obviously been passed on to Victorine by Lita. The old girl is probably still thin as a lath, Carol reflected as she examined the garments. Choosing the least conspicuous, she put it on, and it fitted perfectly. She and Lita had always been the same size. Then Carol fluffed out her magnificent red-gold hair in the fashion they had both affected, and added a touch of lipstick. Hesitating a moment, she slipped the gun Bright had given her into a black handbag of Mme. Victorine's, added her forged papers, and was ready. A few minutes later, to all appearances Mme. Cassard, accompanied by a powerful young porter and the husband of her bonne a tout faire were buying vegetables from the meager assortment in the public market.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	6 diamonds

South's three no trump bid was a shade too strong, but he certainly had a good hand. After that bid North would have been timid to stop short of a slam.

West led the spade jack, and when the dummy went down on the table, declarer could not have been pleased over his prospects, since there was grave danger that two heart tricks would have to be lost. However, he did what he could to get around that hurdle. He drew trumps in two leads, cashed his top cards in spades and clubs, discarding a club from dummy, then ruffed the club jack. Now, with the hands "stripped," he cashed the heart ace and, not even troubling to reënter his own hand, led a low heart from the dummy.

As he had hoped, one of the defenders, specifically East, had started with a doubleton heart honor, and there was no escape for him. Thrown in with the heart queen, he had to return a black card, and declarer hastily got rid of his last heart while he was ruffing in dummy.

Sugar isn't just a cooking and canning necessity; it's an essential war material. Sugar makes bombs, strange as that may seem. Sugar makes synthetic rubber, plastics, dyes, varnishes, medicines; hundreds of other war necessities.

Sugar which goes to war isn't the refined sugar we buy for food—it's molasses which is converted into industrial alcohol, which in turn is used to make explosives, synthetic rubber, and hundreds of other important war products.

In spite of the huge quantities of molasses diverted to war uses, there's still enough molasses for our baked beans and enough sugar for our canning—if we aren't extravagant.

You've probably bought some cinnamon recently which seems pale in color and not particularly pungent. Maybe you thought it a war time substitute. Chances are that it's real cinnamon from Ceylon, and that what you've always considered cinnamon is the stronger, darker cassia which we used to get from Indo-China and Sumatra. Ceylon is the only place in the world where true cinnamon grows.

There's not much cinnamon and cinnamon stick to be had, and practically no cassia. Use allspice instead if you need a substitute. A teaspoon of whole allspice [from the West Indies] will do duty for a piece of cinnamon stick or a tablespoon of cassia buds in your pickles.

A warm fresh peach coffee cake tastes awfully good with a light luncheon or at Sunday morning breakfast. Get out that square cake pan before you misplace this recipe!

Fresh Peach Coffee Cake.
[8 inch square pan.]

1 egg
⅓ cup sugar
1 cup sifted enriched flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Topping: 2 cups sliced peaches, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons raisins or currants.

Beat egg; add sugar gradually, beating well. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt. Combine milk, melted shortening, and extracts, and add alternately with flour mixture to egg and sugar. Spread batter in greased pan. Arrange the sliced peaches on top, pressing the slices slightly into the batter. Sprinkle mixture of sugar, cinnamon, and raisins on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

You can try the same cake base and the same topping with another fruit—blueberries or sliced plums, to name two likely possibilities. Any fresh fruit coffee cake tastes pretty wonderful with a cold plate luncheon or supper.

Spinach Mushroom Loaf.
[Serves six to eight.]

1 cup chopped fresh or canned mushrooms
1 medium onion, grated
1 green pepper, minced
3 tablespoons margarine
3 cups cooked spinach or other greens, chopped
2 cups bread crumbs
3 hard cooked or scrambled eggs, chopped
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon marjoram, thyme or poultry seasoning

Cook mushrooms, onion, and green pepper in margarine for 5 minutes. Add spinach, bread crumbs, and chopped eggs. Stir in beaten eggs and seasonings and pat into greased loaf pan. Bake in moderately hot [375 degrees] over for about 1 hour. Turn out and serve with any preferred sauce. Garnish loaf with sieved, hard cooked egg yolk, if desired.

SATURDAY SET BY MAYOR KELLY AS 'PAPER DAY'

3,000 Volunteers Out After 5,000 Tons.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly yesterday proclaimed Saturday, Aug. 12, as city-wide waste paper collection day which he designated as "Fighting Paper Day in Chicago." His message stressed the urgent need for waste paper, which is listed as America's No. 1 critical war material shortage. The mayor called upon every Chicagoan to contribute at least 10 pounds.

A fleet of 600 army and paper industry trucks will collect the paper at curbs early Saturday. Assisting will be 3,000 Boy Scouts, members of the office of civilian defense, and veterans' organizations. The city's goal has been set at 5,000 tons.

Scouts to Canvass.

Boy Scouts will make house to house canvasses Friday to remind home owners to tie their waste paper in bundles and stack it on street curbs as early as possible Saturday.

Every pound of paper picked up will be weighed on city scales by city employes and sold to waste paper dealers at current rates. Proceeds will be divided among Chicago service men's centers, Boy Scouts, and other youth organizations participating in the drive.

Early Drives Net $25,000.

Previous city waste paper drives netted $25,000 for service men's centers. Saturday's pickup is expected to bring a similar figure.

Sixty suburban towns within a 100 mile radius of Chicago also will collect waste paper Saturday. Collections will be made thru the various town salvage committees, with an over-all goal set at 5,000 tons.

FIFTH WAR LOAN QUOTA TOPPED HERE BY 30.62%

The record breaking fifth war loan sales in Chicago and Cook county totaled $1,167,799,850, exceeding the quota by 30.62 per cent, Philip R. Clarke, general chairman of the drive, reported yesterday. Clarke said that quotas in all divisions were passed in the drive that ended July 31.

"The people of Chicago and Cook county," Clarke said, "have risen magnificently to the support of the war effort." He disclosed that sales to individuals, which lagged at times, were $278,407,464, or 100.35 per cent of the $277,439,000 goal.

Sales of "E" bonds, pressed by the treasury department, totaled $138,319,197, or 110.22 per cent of the quota, while sales to corporations totaled $889,392,386, which was 144.25 per cent of the quota in this division.

Y. M. C. A. TO OPEN DATA BUREAU ON WAR PRISONERS

Information about enemy military prison camps will be given Chicago families of war prisoners thru a new service to be established in the 23 neighborhood branches of the Young Men's Christian association.

The Y. M. C. A. is the international agency authorized to conduct educational, recreational, and spiritual work in all enemy and allied prison camps in the world, and its secretaries consult with camp commanders and prisoners.

From these secretaries the Chicago Y. M. C. A. will obtain information about camp facilities and rules, the procedure for writing to prisoners, and other details. Mrs. Harriet Hester has been appointed staff director of the next of kin program in Chicago.

International House Group Will Visit Art Institute

Students at International house at the University of Chicago are organizing a party to visit the Art institute Saturday to view the current American exhibition of water colors and drawings. The group will lunch at the institute.

Sugar Rations' Use Urged in Fruit Canning

Home canners may obtain up to 25 pounds of sugar for each person in the family, the office of price administration said yesterday in announcing an "Every one can all you can" campaign. Officials said there is danger that a considerable part of fruit and berry crops may be wasted unless home canning is stimulated.

Marion Isbell, acting area director, announced that spare stamp 37 [not sugar stamp 37] has been made valid for up to 20 pounds of sugar for canning, in addition to 5 pounds in exchange for sugar stamp 40 for the same purpose. The latter is good automatically at food stores, but spare stamp 37 must be presented to local ration boards and need of sugar for canning established by applicants. Boards will issue certificates for "proved needs" up to 20 pounds per stamp.

"Sugar supplies are not plentiful, but in order to avoid waste of useable foods, any family may obtain sufficient sugar, up to 25 pounds per person, to put up fruit and berries, and thus help conserve our food supplies," Mr. Isbell said.

Vocational Guidance Needs of Youth Told at N.U. Conference

High school pupils of today may become a "forgotten generation," L. H. Fitzmeier, placement director of Oak Park-River Forest Township High school, warned yesterday if educators fail to assume partial responsibility in obtaining jobs for them. He spoke at the eighth annual guidance and personal work conference at Northwestern university.

Leonard Calvert, guidance director of public schools in Davenport, Ia., told the conference that community agencies, as well as schools, must provide vocational guidance both for youths and adults.

"Community agencies separate from the schools must share in guidance," he said, "so that the community school will be free to do its primary job of teaching. That vocational guidance is largely lacking is the chief reason that the majority of youth drops out of school."

Opera Guild Juniors Have Own Ticket Drive

In line with the Illinois Opera guild's drive to sell certificate books, which later can be exchanged for tickets for the Chicago Opera company's fall season, the Opera guild juniors are carrying on their own campaign by telephone and by a letter of appeal illustrated by Miss Alys Faurot. As an incentive for their drive Mrs. James G. McMillan, president of the senior group, is giving a box party the opening night of the opera, Oct. 16, for the four juniors selling the greatest number of books and their escorts. Miss Mary Jane Brummel heads the juniors' drive.

MISS SESSIONS WINS MEDAL IN WOMEN'S GOLF

Paces Amateur on Record 74.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Sally Sessions, the bespectacled little Michigan swinger who gave up a championship career in tennis for golf four years ago, yesterday captured the qualifying medal in the 44th annual amateur tournament of the Women's Western Golf association at Lake Forest's Onwentsia club. Playing in her third W. W. G. A. amateur, she fired a tidy 74, one under par for Onwentsia's 6,600 yards and a new record for the lengthened course. Her performance also tied the best previous qualifying effort in tournament history, 74s having been shot by the late Marion Miley in 1939 at Detroit, and again by co-medalists Catherine Fox and Kay Byrne at Evanston last summer.

Sally Sessions.

Second best in the huge field of 161 seeking the 32 places in the championship match play bracket, which opens this morning, was Betty Jean Rucker, tall 20 year old brunette from Spokane, Wash. Betty Jean who was a quarter-finalist in 1943, came thru with a 78, one stroke better than the 79 posted by Phyllis Otto of Omaha, runnerup for the 1942 Western open title.

Dorothy Germain Has 81.

Dorothy Germain, the Philadelphia collegian who won last year's amateur crown and was runnerup in the 1944 W. W. G. A. open, was around the first nine in 37, one under par, against Miss Session's 36, but bogeys on the last four holes cost her six shots and she finished with a 44 for an 81. This presently was matched by Miss Fox, and Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur. Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O., and Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., submitted 82s.

The fight for the Marion Miley trophy, awarded to the player with the lowest combined qualifying score for the women's Western Open and Amateur tournaments, resulted in a tie between the Misses Germain and Otto. It will be played off at a later date. Miss Germain had a 79 in the Open event at Park Ridge in June and added her 81 yesterday. Miss Otto reversed those figures. Miss Sessions, who turned in an 87 at Park Ridge, took third place with a 161.

Breeze Proves Troublesome.

Altho playing conditions were perfect, the girls found a spanking breeze quite cantankerous, so that the scoring was generally high. Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., runner up to Miss Germain last year, posted an 83, while May Byrne, the New Yorker who shared the medal with Miss Fox in 1943, took an 87, as did Mrs. Lawrence Selz of Northmoor, last week's winner of the Chicago Women's District championship.

Eleven players who shot 88 were forced into a play off for the last nine berths in the championship bracket. The losers, on the first extra hole, were Jean Whitmore of Little Rock, Ark., and Mrs. Frank Mayer of Lake Shore, both taking sixes. The nine winners included Virginia Nilles of Rolling Green, runnerup in the 1944 state and district tournaments; Rena Nelson of Exmoor, 1934 district titleholder who was making her first competitive appearance in two years; Mrs. Mary Wilder Welsh of Skokie and Mrs. Harry Sherman of Northmoor.

Miss Sessions, the new medalist, is 21 and the daughter of a Muskegon, Mich., lawyer. She had confined her activities to tennis until four years ago, winning the Michigan junior title in 1939 and capturing the senior net crown for her state in 1940. It was in this year that she decided to follow the example of her parents, both ardent golfers, and the following winter she made a tour of the southern circuit, dropping out of her freshman year at the University of Michigan.

Thanks Berg for Success.

Her professional is Lee Kosten of Muskegon's country club where two weeks ago Sally set a course record of 70. She ascribes much of

Sox Pound Out 2 Hits; Lose to Sailors, 1-0

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox yesterday were able to hold the Great Lakes Bluejackets to one run, but that one was enough to give Lt. Comdr. Mickey Cochrane's proteges a 1 to 0 victory at the training center. The Sox pounded out two hits off Virgil Trucks, former Detroit Tiger, who went all the way for his seventh victory. Not a major leaguer reached third base.

Thus the White Sox, who shoved all their strength at the Sailors, joined the Cubs, Red Sox, Phillies, and Browns as 1944 victims of the Bluejackets. The Great Lakes fellows now have won 39 out of 40 games and expect to have no trouble with the Brooklyn Dodgers this afternoon in a scheduled match at Great Lakes.

Schalk, Michaels Sox Sluggers.

Trucks did not yield a hit until LeRoy Schalk connected at the start of the sixth inning. Up to that point seven White Sox had whiffed. After he had been deprived of a no hitter, Trucks eased up and yielded a single to Cass Michaels in the seventh and bothered to accomplish only one more strikeout.

While the Sox's two-single slugging did not make them appear very dangerous, they did actually get two runners to second base. Wally Moses walked at the start of the game and got to second on a sacrifice by Schalk. After Hal Trosky and Ralph Hodgin had fanned in the fourth Thurman Tucker walked and stole second.

Ross Yields Lone Run.

The lone run of the afternoon was scored off Buck Ross in the fifth when Walter Millies, Trucks, and Roy Hartsfield put together three singles after the first two batsmen had been retired. Hartsfield, an 18 year old from Atlanta, drove in the run on a line single to left. He was in the game because Billy Herman was in the hospital with a spike infection. Al Glossop, regular shortstop, shifted to second, while Hartsfield performed at short.

Johnny Humphries pitched the first three innings and had little difficulty in keeping the Bluejackets away from the plate. He yielded only two hits. Ross was the second Sox pitcher. He retired the first five Sailors he faced. Millies singled with two out in the fifth and went to third on a single by Trucks. Hartsfield then lined that single to left, scoring Millies. Merrill May walked, loading the bases, but Glossop filed to Moses.

Michaels Makes Two Errors.

Schalk's single at the start of the sixth inning was a low line drive to short right field. It promptly was nullified when Ed Carnett bounced into a double play. Ross stood off the Bluejackets in the sixth inning despite two errors by Michaels. A double play, Trosky to Michaels to Trosky, helped him do it.

The second Sox hit was a single by Michaels with two out in the seventh. Mike Tresh then filed out. Jade Wade took over the Sox pitching assignment at the start of the seventh. Millies lined to Trosky and Trucks fanned. Then the bases were loaded by two passes and a scratch single by Glossop. Schalk then threw out John McCarthy. Score:

The head coach will be announced tomorrow.

Add $80,000 to Washington Purse Totals

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Last winter the management of Arlington and Washington Parks notified the turf world that this summer's 70 day coördinated meeting at Washington Park would set the pace for the nation in purses offered. A total of $1,700,000 was allotted for the program.

Then, shortly after the recent 40 day Arlington Park meeting had started, an additional $40,000 was added to various events. Now comes an announcement from Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of the Washington Park Jockey club, that beginning next Monday an additional $80,000 will be spread out over the remaining 22 days of the Washington Park meeting.

Set Minimum of $2,000.

Minimum purses will be set at $2,000. Grade E events will go from $2,000 to $2,500, grade D from $2,500 to $3,000, and grade C from $3,000 to $3,500. A minimum of $5,000 will go into effect for overnight handicaps.

Simultaneously it was announced that the value of the Sheridan handicap, a stake race of a mile for 3 year olds and up on Aug. 22, will be increased from $10,000 to $15,000.

"Our 1944 racing program is the finest in the country," Lindheimer said in announcing the increases. "We believe that the coördinated Arlington-Washington meeting presents the best balanced and richest stake program ever offered the horsemen of America."

African Sun Wins Feature.

African Sun, Jules Fink's 4 year old son of Sun Teddy, made off with yesterday's feature race, the $3,000 Duke of Magenta purse at six furlongs in which six started.

Jockey Jess Higley got the big gelding off in front and never was headed, scoring by two lengths over D. V. McClure's Gold Princess, which finished four lengths in front of the Brolite farm's Roman Sox.

A meager $34.80 was the daily double refund when Frances Gray's Gray's Bay, ridden by Jess Higley, took the opener, and W. M. Waldridge's Sunny Ceres won the second with Bobby Campbell aboard. Gray's Bay scored her first victory in eight starts and paid $12. Sunny Ceres paid $5. The Ladies' day crowd, estimated at 18,000, wagered $952,263.

In addition to the usual eight race card today, there will be a quarter mile event for old time jockeys mounted on saddle ponies, the purse to consist of war bonds.

BEARS TO PUSH OFF FOR INDIANA QUARTERS TODAY

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Chicago Bears received a pleasant surprise yesterday and it somewhat relieved their fears of what may be in store for them the night of Aug. 30 when they meet the College All-Stars in Dyche stadium. It was a 225 pound surprise in the form of Al Hoptowit, veteran Indian tackle, who in 1938 was himself a College All-Star.

Al Hoptowit.

Hoptowit notified Chicago Bear officials that he is on his way from Yakima, Wash., and hopes to arrive in time to leave with the National Football league champions, 45 strong, late this afternoon for their new training base at St. Joseph's college, Collegeville, Ind.

Now If They Can Get Sid.

Having heard from this important man from the west, the Bears were anticipating some news from the east which would let them know whether the man they most need, Ensign Sid Luckman, will be available.

Luke Johnsos, co-coach of the Bears, has memorized the names of the 71 All-Stars who will throw their speed, skill, and bulk against a professional team which must be repaired in many spots.

Sigillo Is Doubtful.

Dom Sigillo, whom the Bears have been counting on as a starter at tackle, has a job in a Chicago war plant and is reported undecided as to whether he'll play.

"We'll have to change our coaching tactics this time," said Luke, the "we" including Hunk Anderson and Paddy Driscoll. "In other years at least 75 per cent of our players knew what our routine would be. They were grounded in the T formation as we play it. This time we'll have to start from scratch, which means much more time devoted to fundamentals."

The Bears will drill twice a day for the first two weeks, then taper off to a single workout the final third of the session. There will be the usual classroom talks and study periods, a feature of the champions' leave-nothing-to-chance policy. Because of injury dangers, the Bears will have only two scrimmages.

[ALL-STAR ROSTER ON NEXT PAGE.]

Jeff Cravath, whose Southern California team defeated Washington, 29 to 0, in the Rose Bowl last New Year's day, will represent the Pacific Coast on the All-Star coaching staff.

The Trojans' head football master is the third famous gridiron leader to accept an invitation to join the All-Star board. The others are Bo McMillin of Indiana and Henry Frnka of Tulsa. The head coach will be announced tomorrow.

While Southern California has sent some of the game's brightest stars to Chicago's big charity football game, this will be the first year a Trojan coach has participated in the enterprise. Cravath will arrive Saturday to help prepare the All-Stars for their game with the Chicago Bears in Dyche stadium the night of Aug. 30.

Uses T Formation.

Cravath, an alumnus of Southern California, was appointed head coach two years ago after Sam Barry joined the navy. Barry had been named coach in 1941 upon the death of Howard Jones. Last season Cravath departed from the Jones' style of play and came up with the T formation. There was some criticism of his judgment in switching systems, but after his team won eight of 10 games, losing only to two service teams loaded with former college stars, his verbal antagonists were silenced.

This will be Cravath's seventh season as a head coach. He made his debut in 1929 at Denver university, where he remained three years. From Denver he returned to Southern California as assistant to Jones. He was appointed head coach at San Francisco university in 1941, where his team established the high scoring record for that institution.

Stars at Center for Trojans.

The coach of the Trojans was born in Breckenridge, Colo., on Feb. 5, 1905, but moved early in his boyhood to Santa Ana, Cal., where he developed into one of the coast's greatest high school centers. He enrolled at Southern California in 1923 and played center on the freshman team that season, an undefeated unit that was scored upon only once. His three-year record with the Trojan varsity earned him recognition as the best pivot man Southern California ever has had. The Notre Dame-U. S. C. game of 1926, first of that spectacular series, brought together Bud Boeringer of the Irish and Cravath and, while Boeringer was the popular All-America choice of that season, he had none the better of the center play that afternoon.

As head coach of U. S. C. Cravath had his 1942 team in the fight for the Pacific Coast conference championship up to the last game of the season. Last fall the Trojans were undefeated by collegiate opponents and were unscored on in the first six contests.

Is Record Breaker.

Cravath and his associates of the All-Star staff will have the largest squad that ever has come to football's glamor game. The roster will include 71 of the most widely known players from collegiate ranks. Many of them are from the services, others are undergraduates who will represent their alma maters this season and a few are 4-F's who have been away from the game a year or two. None of them, however, has played professional ball.

Ade Schumacher, chief commissary officer of the All-Star staff, is busy moving in food, cooking utensils, beds and dozens of other articles of equipment required to house and train the players. Billy Andrews of the University of Texas, football's All-American student manager, is coming back to help handle the details of the training camp.

For gallant service in behalf of all
That far exceeds exacting duty's call,
High honors are bestowed. And it is true
On life's great battlefield, whate'er you do,
There is a fertile realm for eager hands
Beyond compulsion of the day's demands,
Where rare rewards are waiting to be won
And toil is something more than duty done.

The touch of beauty added to the thing
You do will stir the silent heart to sing
And bring a joy more lasting, it may be,
Than all the gain of pure utility.
Each kindly service wrought at love's behest
Is by some inner substance doubly blest;
It adds the doer's name to honor's scroll
And pins a shining medal on the soul. —B. L. Bruce.

PENNSYLVANIA HEAVY IS GIVEN SPLIT DECISION

7,635 Pay to Watch Cubs Park Fight.

Fight Decisions

LAST NIGHT.
At Wrigley Field—Joe Baksi beat Lee Savold [10]; Larry Lane knocked out Georgie Parks [2]; Johnny Flanagan beat Roosevelt Thomas [4]; Freddy Schott knocked out Buddy Roper [1]; Jimmy Scherrer stopped Mickey Dugan [3]. Scherrer stopped Mickey Dugan [7]; Arronzio Ferrera beat Doyle Hirt [4].
At Marigold Gardens—Sgt. Lou Woods beat Lou Angelucci [8]; Jimmy Hunt beat Mike Sopko [8]; Collins Brown knocked out Tito Taylor [3]; Johnny Bratton beat Ted Christie [8].
At Baltimore, Md.—Pedro Hernandez beat Hubert Samuels [10].

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Joe Baksi, leading civilian heavyweight contender from Kulpmont, Pa., scored a convincing decision over Lee Savold of Paterson, N. J., in a 10 round bout in Wrigley Field last night.

Altho the decision was not unanimous, the crowd of 7,635 paying fans and an estimated 5,000 service men and women guests of the promoters, cheered the verdict. Referee Walter Brightmore voted 54-46 and Judge Ed Hintz, 57-43, for Baksi, but William O'Connell, the other judge, called it even.

Baksi won five of the rounds, Lee three, and two rounds were even.

That Makes Two for Joe.

It was their third meeting, the first of which was won by Savold and the rematch by Baksi. It was an interesting duel until the seventh round, when Joe took the play away from his rival. Baksi's superior strength began to tell in this period as the tired Savold fell into repeated clinches.

The fans clamored for action, and when Savold followed the same procedure in the eighth round the booing became a roar. Then Savold seemed to snap out of his lethargy in the ninth and landed a couple of solid lefts to the face at the start of the round which brought his supporters out of their seats. Near the end however, Savold's weariness overtook him again. It was all Baksi in the 10th.

Savold weighed 199 pounds, one and one-half more than he did for the last engagement and the extra poundage apparently slowed him down. Baksi, who carried 213¾, was a weaving, aggressive foe who never gave Lee a chance to get set.

Gross receipts were $36,746.50, according to the Illinois Athletic commission.

Lane Surprises Parks.

Larry Lane, Trenton, N. J., 191 pounder, scored a surprise knockout over Georgie Parks of Washington, D. C., in the second round of a scheduled eight round semi-windup. Parks obviously was awed by Larry, who was making his first appearance since his fatal knockout of Lem Franklin in Newark on July 24.

ROBERT SMIDL, OAK PARK STAR, DIES IN ACTION

Sgt. Robert C. Smidl of River Forest, former Oak Park High school basketball and tennis captain, was killed in action in France July 19, according to notification received yesterday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smidl. His father is athletic director of Wilson Junior college, Chicago.

Sgt. Smidl entered the army in February, 1943, and had served overseas with the tank corps since February of this year. He captained the Oak Park basketball and net squads in 1940 and the same year paired with Jimmy Evert of Chicago to win the doubles title in the national junior tennis tournament in Culver, Ind. For three years he and Bill Bauman of Oak Park held the Illinois state junior doubles championship.

INDIANS LOSE REYNOLDS' HELP FOR ROAD TRIP

Cleveland, O., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians will start their eastern road trip without the services of Allie Reynolds, their leading starting pitcher. CUBS ARE READY TO MAKE BID FOR SECOND PLACE

Play 16 Games Against Four Eastern Clubs.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, now the people's choice for second place in the National league race, may be able to do something about that very thing during the next couple of weeks. Their program for that stretch, starting tomorrow afternoon at Wrigley field, provides for competition exclusively with the four eastern clubs and a glimpse at the percentage column is satisfactory proof that they are not especially hot. The Cubs, of course, have helped to keep them cool and will endeavor to prolong the treatment.

The first of the callers at Charley Grimm's north side place of business will be the Dodgers, who rate as beloved cousins because of their contributions to the Cubs' welfare. The Phillies, Braves, and Giants will follow in turn to round out a 16 game stretch at home after the Cubs will be confronted by a different problem. They have to go down to St. Louis for two night games with the run away Cardinals whom they haven't beaten in 11 games.

Pitching Still Shaky.

Nominating the Cubs for a second place finish sounds good and there is a possibility they might be able to make it, but there also is a possibility their present well wishers are seeing things because of the surprising winning streak that ended at 11 games last Sunday in Pittsburgh. It was bad pitching that caused the Cubs to ride in the league cellar until a feew weeks ago and while the latter department has improved it is not exactly steady. Proof of this is that only six starters finished during the 11 game splurge.

The real secret of the Cubs' rise from one floor below street level is their defensive work. Grimm, after taking over in the depths of the spring depression, fiddled around with every possible combination and finally hit the fielding jack pot. That's true of the outfield as well as the infield. And, of course, Bill Nicholson's revival as a hitter, after his spring feebleness, hasn't hurt anything but the other teams.

At Michigan City Tonight.

Some of the Cubs will engage in an electric light affair at Michigan City tonight, but Grimm has enough second string pitchers for such occasions so won't have to dip into the supply he hopes to have available for the four single games with the Dodgers. The bulk of the staff underwent a fairly thoro going over at Pittsburgh on Sunday, but the victims didn't include Claude Passeau, Henry Wyse or Bill Fleming, three of the regular starters. The opener tomorrow will be a job for either Wyse or Passeau.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 7 (AP).—Lydiamite became a doubtful starter today in the $42,000 Hambletonian Wednesday afternoon and Barbara Babcock a probable entrant.

Lydiamite, owned by E. J. Barker, has figured among the probable starters for the last two weeks but had not arrived at Good Time park late today. Meanwhile, there were indications that Trainer Ben White intended to start Barbara Babcock, filly owned by W. N. Reynolds.

250 FOURSOMES PLAY TOMORROW IN CAMEL TRAIL

The Medinah Country club will hold its 18th Camel Trail tomorrow, when 250 foursomes compete in 18 holes of golf on Medinah's No. 1 and 3 courses. Prizes will be awarded to low gross and low net players and to the low gross and low net foursomes.

The Medinah affair has been one of the outstanding one day events held by a Chicago District Golf association club.

All-Star Roster

THE list of college football players who have accepted invitations to join the All-Stars for the game Aug. 30 in Dyche stadium against the Chicago Bears follows:

ENDS—Abe Croft, Southern Methodist; Dub Wooten, Oklahoma; Jack Dugger, Ohio State; George Dick, Kansas; Bill Huber, Notre Dame; Roy Grefe, Franklin; Paul Sisemore, Furman; Van Davis, Georgia; Jack Morton, Missouri.

SMILIN' JACK

Woods Beats Lou Angelucci at Marigold

Sgt. Lou Woods of Camp Grant won an eight round unanimous decision over Lou Angelucci of Chicago last night in Marigold Gardens. A record crowd of 2,801 paid $5,106 to witness the show. Woods weighed 154 and Angelucci 160.

Angelucci was dangerous with his right hand for the first four rounds, but once the speedy Woods got the range he maintained an advantage thruout the remainder of the contest. There were no knockdowns but the Camp Grant soldier came on in the seventh and eighth rounds to score freely with rights and lefts. Angelucci suffered several cuts on his face in the eighth and Woods won the last round by a wide margin.

Johnny Bratton of Chicago won a close eight round decision from Ted Christie of New York in an earlier bout. The latter suffered a cut over his left eye in the sixth round and was down for a one count in the fourth.

Collins Brown of Chicago knocked out Tito Taylor, another Chicagoan, in two minutes and 41 seconds of the third round of their scheduled eight rounder. Taylor was down in the third twice before he was knocked out and also was down for a two count in the first. Jimmy Hunt of Chicago won an eight round decision over Mike Sopko of East Chicago.

TWILIGHT TEAR SARATOGA RACE FAVORITE TODAY

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Twilight Tear, Miss America of the 1944 turf world, cost the Belmont Racing association $14,000 the last time she ran on a New York track and she probably will cost the Saratoga organization a similar amount tomorrow in the 65th running of the Alabama stakes.

The New York state racing law provides that 5 cents must be paid for every dollar bet on the winner and the Warren Wright filly, potentially the horse of the year, scared away all but three rivals for tomorrow's event.

With two of the challengers carrying the colors of William Woodward's Belair stud, only three interests will be involved in the race, with straight betting the rule.

Because of her 11 consecutive triumphs this year, Twilight Tear will be the odds on favorite against Vienna and Thread o' Gold from Woodward's barn and Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Dare Me.

SEAHAWKS ADD BUNKER HILL TO FOOTBALL CARD

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 7 [Special].—The Iowa Seahawks football schedule reached 10 games with the announcement today by Athletic Director Lt. Comdr. Harvey Harman that the pre-flight school will meet the Bunker Hill [Indiana] naval air station eleven here on Nov. 11. This brings the Seahawks home schedule to four contests, the largest number in the two year history of the station.

GRANT HEMSLEY 30 DAY DELAY IN CALL TO ARMY

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Rollie Hemsley, first string catcher for the New York Yankees, said today he reported to the selective service board here, to which he had requested transfer of his papers from his Vienna, Mo., home and was told his induction had been delayed a month. Hemsley, 37, said failure of the papers to arrive in time was reason for the delay.

WILKS LEAVES HOSPITAL.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 7 [AP].—Ted Wilks, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher who was knocked out by a line drive in Sunday's ball game with the Cincinnati Reds, was discharged from Christ hospital today and returned to St. Louis.

CITY TRACTION LINE OFFER SET AT 84½ MILLION

Complete Plan Sent to Council Group.

The complete report and recommendation for expediting settlement of Chicago's traction problem, which was ordered prepared last week by the city council committee on local transportation, was made public yesterday on its receipt from Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways. The major points:

1. The city offers to pay 75 million dollars in cash for the Chicago Surface Lines properties [51 millions for physical properties and 24 millions for release of renewal reserves], and $9,650,000 for the elevated lines.

2. As of April 30, 1945, which appeared to be the earliest possible date the traction properties could be transferred to the city, an estimated 85½ million dollars would be available for distribution to surface lines security holders, while 14 million to $14,592,000 would be available for elevated line security holders. These figures include cash from liquidation of assets not to be purchased by the city.

Urges Bus Line Purchase.

3. Inclusion of Chicago Motor Coach company properties in the unified city owned system is desirable and purchase should be negotiated as soon as the street car and elevated lines are acquired. Net income of the system would be increased about $700,000 annually by this move if present costs do not increase.

4. The city cannot afford to pay for the properties more than an amount which will leave sufficient margin to defray the cost of modernization. The surface and elevated lines must be rehabilitated and modernized by the city during the next 10 years at a cost of at least 100 million dollars.

5. To acquire the properties and effect complete modernization there would be an initial sale of $84,650,000 of 3½ per cent revenue certificates, payable as to principal and interest solely from the revenues of the publicly owned transit system. Sinking fund provisions would be set up to retire the entire debt in 25 years.

Varying Net Income Forecast.

6. Net income of the city owned system after operating expenses, depreciation, taxes, city compensation, and annuity reserves would vary from 6 million to $11,450,000 a year. The revenue forecast is based on existing fare schedules and transfer privileges. Operating expenses are based on prevailing wage and price levels.

7. The reserve fund proceeds of the initial purchase—24 million dollars—plus annual earnings and unused depreciation charges, plus 15 million dollars from a second sale of revenue certificates at the end of five years would cover debt service and modernization costs.

8. The entire program of acquisition and operation would be supported without resort to taxes or pledging the faith and credit of the city of Chicago.

The report asserted that the city's offer is fair to all interests and offers more than the security holders can hope to realize under the present setup, or under any plan of private unification.

The report will be considered today by the council transportation committee. If the report is approved the committee is expected to request a special council meeting for next Monday or Tuesday so council approval could be given in time to present the city proposals to Federal Judge Igoe at a traction hearing on Wednesday.

CITIES SERVICE UNITS' MERGER PLAN APPROVED

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP).—The securities and exchange commission today approved a plan for the simplification of the Cities Service Power and Light company system thru the merger of four Missouri and Arkansas operating subsidiaries.

Ozark Utilities company, Lawrence County [Mo.] Water, Light and Cold Storage company, and Benton County [Ark.] Utilities corporation will be merged into the Empire District Electric company, Joplin, Mo.

Rheem to Lease Shell Plant in Pennsylvania

Rheem Manufacturing company has concluded negotiations with the government to operate a plant in Williamsport, Pa., for the production of eight inch shells for the Philadelphia ordnance district, R. S. Rheem, president, said yesterday. The plant will be purchased by the government and leased to Rheem. With this additional unit Rheem will be manufacturing artillery shells and cases in five of its 15 plants.

Canned Meats for Civilians to Be Scarce

Supplies of canned meats and pork for civilians may be curtailed, and supplies of beef will decrease during the last half of this year, Wesley Hardenbergh, president of the American Meat institute, told the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers conference in the Palmer House yesterday.

Total meat production for the year is estimated at 25½ billion pounds, he said, an increase of 6 per cent over last year and 58 per cent above a five year pre-war average. About two out of three pounds will go to civilians.

Civilian Supply Smaller.

Government plans to obtain large quantities of canned meat products and of frozen pork, beef, lamb, mutton, and veal, beginning immediately and until the end of the year, will mean less meat for civilians, Hardenbergh said. Large quantities of hog sides, which include hams, loins, and shoulders, are desired, he said, pointing out that the request comes in the face of diminishing receipts of hogs and almost immediately after a period when receipts were so heavy that the industry had difficulty in handling them.

Increased needs of the army and navy, now taking 45 per cent of prime thru utility grades of beef, and a decrease in the amount of finished beef coming to market will mean reduced supplies of beef for civilians, Hardenbergh predicted.

Assails OPA Orders.

Office of price administration directives covering retail meat selling practices were assailed by Edwin F. Janssen, president of the association.

"I know you are here to repeat your demands for the right to return to those business practices which have been the custom in the past, and which are in no way inflationary," he said. Mentioning the right to sell beef tenderloins, to roll rib roasts in advance, and to cube steaks in advance, he called the directives "the most senseless and needless, yet the most discriminatory regulations forced upon the meat dealers of the nation."

HOGS SELL AT CEILINGS

Another reduction in hog receipts caused a scramble for supplies at the Chicago stock yards yesterday and buyers paid office of price administration ceiling prices for almost all available. They gave $14.75 a hundred pounds for all hogs weighing 240 pounds or less, except a few pigs and inferior lights, and $14.00 for all over 240 pounds, except boars and a few heavier stags.

More cattle arrived, but strong demand maintained steady prices for most stock. Some types of steers rose to new 1944 highs. The $18.00 top for full loads was paid for steers that averaged 1,064 pounds, a new high for these weights. Two 4-H club steers sold at $18.25.

The small supply of sheep and lambs sold at steady prices.

ELECTRIC RANGE PRODUCTION BY 3 FIRMS APPROVED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The WPB today authorized three manufacturers to produce standard, four burner model electric ranges in October, November, and December. The producers will be able to meet quotas without interference with war work, WPB said. Because standard ranges have not been made for about two years, WPB said production may be delayed by equipment preparation.

The government hopes to authorize production of 88,000 electric ranges for household use this year, about 16 per cent of pre-war output. None of the four burner ranges will reach stores until late this year and most of them not until early 1945, WPB said. They will be available only for essential civilian replacements.

Manufacturers receiving fourth quarter authorizations include: Frigidaire division, General Motors corporation, Dayton, O., 2,344 ranges; Gibson Refrigerator company, Greenville, Mich., 2,500 ranges, and A. J. Lindemann & Hoverson, Milwaukee, Wis., 794 ranges.

STOCKS MIXED; JUNIOR MOTORS EXTEND DRIVE

Post-War Plans Aid Low Priced Autos.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Altho persistent heavy demand for low priced motors buoyed the stock market today, many leaders lacked support and the market closed uneven.

As during last week, large scale bidding for junior automobile issues was based on reports of management changes, new financing sources, merger discussions, and plans for larger production when the war in Europe ends.

Peace Outlook Brings Bids.

Scattered bidding elsewhere emanated from those who believed quick victory over the Nazis might not find reconversion difficulties at home as great as some had expected. Numerous skeptics, however, continued either to trim their accounts or await developments.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.1 at 54.3. Only 811 issues appeared. Of these, 294 were up and 291 down. Transactions in stocks of the independent motor companies accounted for nearly half of the volume of 1,071,000 shares, which compared with 1,114,600 Friday.

Peaks for the year or longer were registered by Graham-Paige, which opened up 1¼ on a 35,000 share block; Hupp Motors, Packard, and Hayes Manufacturing, each of which came out in deals running to 10,000 shares. In most cases extreme gains were reduced at the close.

Westinghouse Electric advanced 2 and du Pont 1.

BOND PRICES IRREGULAR.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Most price changes were limited to fractions in today's bond market and the trend was lower despite firm spots among rails and industrial specialties. The session was the slowest since one year ago today when sales totaled $4,725,900, against $7,092,900 Friday. Last Aug. 7 during the summer lull sales totaled $4,246,200.

Rails opened irregular and changed little as a result of the speech by Assistant Atty. Gen. Wendell Berge at Kansas City hinting at anti-trust actions against carriers as a result of what he termed "monopolistic conditions" within the industry. The speech was circulated an hour or more before the close.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices rose in turnover of 32,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Hupp Motor Car, among volume leaders, closed at 5½, up 1¼, after reaching a new 1944 high of 5¾. Also active were North Western preferred, up ⅝; Standard Dredging, unchanged, and Chicago corporation, down ⅛. Bunte Brothers closed at a 1944 peak of 28, up 1.

People and Events

Pierre S. du Pont yesterday resigned from the board of directors of General Motors corporation after serving since 1917 and holding at times the presidency and chairmanship. Angus B. Echols, chairman of the finance committee of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., which has a large investment in General Motors stock, was elected to succeed du Pont. Thomas P. Archer, vice president, who recently was appointed general manager of the Fisher Body division to succeed Edward F. Fisher, also was elected a director.

Truck Strikes Spread; 5,000 Out in 4 States

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

With Philadelphia's transportation system restored to normal yesterday, the transport labor spotlight shifted to the midwest, where a three state strike of over-the-road AFL truck drivers spread to Des Moines and six other Iowa cities.

A total of 20,500 workers thruout the United States and Canada were idle, compared with Friday's peak of more than 37,000.

The new disputes brought to almost 5,000 the number of drivers and helpers not working in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, and several Iowa cities.

A Montreal, Que., tramways walkout of 4,000 and 20 continuing strikes thruout the United States kept 15,500 additional employes from their jobs.

Await Presidential Order.

Dexter Lewis, director of the Central States Drivers' council, termed the truckers' strikes unauthorized. He said the majority of the union members were awaiting a Presidential order authorizing seizure of truck lines whose operators have "defied" a war labor board directive to increase drivers' wages.

Chairman M. M. Krupinsky of the Nebraska Truck Operators' association said in Omaha the state's strike-bound over-the-road lines would not resume operations despite Dexter's statement in Chicago that striking drivers would be ordered back to work. The strikes began Friday.

"We know definitely that the strike was called by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters of which Lewis is international organizer, because their own representative personally made the contacts," Krupinsky said.

Insists Issue Be Settled.

"The operators will not go back to work until the issue is settled definitely and we know we can operate without interruption. It is impossible for us to open up, close up, open up, and so on. We can't stay in business that way."

Representatives of the operators conferred with government officials in Washington, D. C., an office of defense transportation official reported.

As transportation of war materials was curtailed, union leaders in central Pennsylvania were ordered by the war labor board to end "immediately" a strike of 761 employes of the Pennsylvania Truck Lines in York, Harrisburg, and Lancaster. The company has appealed to WLB from a wage award by the WLB's truck commission.

Disputes involving 1,200 persons at the St. Louis Car company and the same number at the Chicago Screw company remained unsettled. Another 1,200 employes remained away from their jobs at the Carbondale [Ill.] ordnance plant.

DISSOLUTION ORDERED BY NLRB OF TWO OHIO INDEPENDENT UNIONS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The national labor relations board today ordered dissolution of two independent unions at Thompson Products, Inc., Cleveland, and Thompson Aircraft Products company, Euclid, O., on the ground they are dominated by the company. Elections at both plants to determine the collective bargaining agent were also ordered.

The board's decision said the Aircraft Worker's alliance and the Brotherhood of Independent Workers are "company unions" and no longer should have any contract or arrangement with the company.

The board affirmed the finding of a trial examiner that elections in May, 1942, in which the independent unions defeated the CIO United Automobile Workers, were influenced by the company. The new elections are to be held within 30 days.

WLB TO PONDER SECURITY FUND STRIKE DEMAND

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—A two month strike in which a union demands that the company set aside 3 per cent of its gross earnings for a post-war social security fund today was made the subject of a special hearing by the war labor board.

WLB summoned officials of the Upholsterers International union, Awning and Tent Workers and Decorators of St. Louis, Mo., to a hearing Thursday to explain why the strike has continued since June 13 without resort to "peaceful procedures for settlement."

The walkout of 175 men occurred among employes of the Associated Tent and Awning Manufacturers of St. Louis. The union demand is the first of its kind to come before the national board, spokesmen said. The St. Louis regional board called a hearing July 19, but union officials failed to appear.

NAT. CYLINDER GAS REGISTERS SENIOR SHARES

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP).—National Cylinder Gas company, Chicago, today registered with the securities and exchange commission 35,000 shares of $100 par value cumulative preferred stock. Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, and F. S. Moseley & Co., both of Chicago, were named underwriters.

The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Transport company asked SEC approval of its proposed reacquisition from Wisconsin Electric company of 10,000 shares of its $100 par value capital stock and $400,000 of its 4 per cent first mortgage bonds.

NEW ANTI-TRUST SUIT INDICATED AGAINST RAILS

Berge Charges Plot for Wide Control.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 7 [Special].—Pressing of new anti-trust charges against the railroads was indicated here today by Wendell Berge, assistant United States attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, in a speech before Kansas City business men. He charged that the railroads were attempting to control all forms of transportation thru regional, integrated transportation systems.

Berge made the following specific allegations of anti-trust violations by the railroads:

1. Maintenance of discriminatory freight rates which have placed an unfair burden upon industry and agriculture in the west and south.

2. Establishment of the discriminatory rates thru private conspiracies and not by public authority.

Charges Improvements Delayed.

3. Operating in such a way as to place the development of motor truck operators and water carriers at a disadvantage.

4. Delaying the introduction of new equipment and technical improvements because of the monopolistic conditions.

Berge said the regional systems considered would control and operate rail, motor, water, and air facilities thruout large geographical areas.

"To achieve this plan they would advocate the repeal of the 'charter of American freedom,' the Sherman anti-trust act as it applies to transportation," he said. "The sponsors of this program in one of their public pronouncements remarked that they—the railroad owners—were not concerned whether their returns come from water, rail, bus or air service.

"Leaves No Question."

"This expression of the railroad cases leaves no question but that the purpose of this scheme to bring all forms of public transportation under the domination of the railroads is designed to preserve the excessive capitalization of the railroads, regardless of the economic effects upon the nation."

Berge declared that regional monopolies of transportation would give the railroads the power of life and death over communities, because their rates would determine locations of industries and the sources of raw materials.

He said the department of justice would do all it could to remove "the dead weight of the restraints which have been laid on certain areas of the country thru secret private agreements which we have uncovered."

Sears' July Gross Sales 10.7 Pct. Above Year Ago

Sears, Roebuck & Co. announced yesterday its gross sales last month amounted to $67,798,892, compared with $61,240,189 in July, 1943, an increase of 10.7 per cent. For the six months, February thru July, sales were $440,670,679, an increase of 11.7 per cent over the corresponding period in 1943 when sales totaled $394,652,754.

MajesticRadio Profits Cut by Material Pinch

Majestic Radio and Television corporation had reduced earnings in its fiscal year ended May 31 and the decline reflected curtailed production caused by delays in obtaining raw materials, E. A. Tracey, president, yesterday told stockholders in his annual report.

E. A. Tracey.

Net income totaled $201,109, compared with adjusted profit of $236,678 a year earlier. Profit in the 1944 period was after provision of $21,500 for renegotiation of war contracts.

1944 Sales Climbing.

Production difficulties "seem to be well on the way to solution," Tracey said. "Billing in both May and June exceeded the largest previous month's volume by a substantial percentage. Sales for the first two months of the new fiscal year will total more than 30 per cent of sales in the full year ended May 31."

Production of electronic and communication equipment for the military services in the period rose 89 per cent above the previous year, he said. Cancellation of war contracts will not present any serious problems, he added. Arrangements have been made for prompt filing of any resulting claims and prompt and adequate settlement seems assured.

Competitive Line Planned.

Majestic's post-war radios and radio-phonographs "will be extremely competitive," Tracey said, and will incorporate frequency modulation. Television receivers will be included in the Majestic line.

Pillsbury Flour Mills company in its fiscal year ended May 31 had net income of $1,163,547, equal to $2.12 per share, compared with $1,170,616, or $2.13 a share. Sales rose to $133,072,329 from $99,826,146.

U. S. TO PROBE CHARGE UNIONS CUT TIRE OUTPUT

Akron, O., Aug. 7 [Special].—Government agents are expected this week to investigate complaints that labor union restrictions are chiefly responsible for the lag in production of heavy duty tires, which the war department said last week are vitally needed for heavy trucks and heavy artillery movers used in the invasion of France, it was learned today.

The investigations were ordered by Charles E. Wilson, WPB executive vice chairman, after he conferred with 19 tire manufacturers in Washington last Thursday on the need to step up production 30 per cent in the next 60 days.

Some of the manufacturers told Wilson and high war department officials they could increase production 15 per cent overnight if the union restrictions were removed. After getting the facts, Wilson is expected to call the manufacturers and leaders of the CIO United Rubber Workers of America to Washington for another conference.

PROMISE SOME FREEDOM FROM MONOPOLY LAW

Biddle Offers Help in Shift to Peace.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The justice department announced today a policy intended to assure protection from anti-trust law prosecution to industries which are cooperating with the war production board in developing plans for conversion from war to civilian production.

Atty. Gen. Biddle said the policy was established in correspondence with John Lord O'Brian, WPB general counsel, who had inquired as to the status of persons and companies discussing reconversion with the war agencies.

The department said consultations by members of industry advisory committees with the WPB on reconversion matters during the war will not constitute violation of the anti-trust law, under certain limitations.

Private Plans not Exempt.

"If members of the committees would themselves privately agree on any plan or program or take part in any such private plan or program involving directly or indirectly the production of commodities, such a plan would be subject to the anti-trust laws," Biddle wrote.

He emphasized that each specific plan must be "submitted to me for advice and individual clearance."

Biddle added that the justice department reserves "the right to take any action under the anti-trust laws of either civil or criminal nature if a particular plan is used to accomplish unlawful private ends."

The new policy supplements a letter from the attorney general in April, 1941, permitting similar consultation for quick action on war production problems.

Position Made Clear.

"I wish to assure you," Biddle told O'Brian, "that the policy of the department as expressed in 1941 will extend to emergency programs which the chairman of the war production board determines are necessary in order that the changes requisite to civilian production may be made without impairing the orderly progress of war production, provided that operation of these plans be confined to a limited and relatively brief period of time."

Biddle declared, however, that it is important that the spirit of the anti-trust act "be preserved in dealing with the reconversion of American industry to peace time production."

Maritime Renegotiations Save U. S. 217 Millions

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Renegotiation of contracts by the maritime commission's price adjustment board has saved the government $217,615,931 in two years, the commission reported today. The proceedings were described as costing the government $300,000, about 0.1 per cent of the savings.

The normal "working force" of women in the United States (according to 1940 figures) is 13,000,000.

6 REALTY DEALS TOPPING MILLION PUT THRU IN DAY

Sale of Hotel Maryland at $327,500 Is Largest.

BY AL CHASE.

Four large apartment and two business buildings were sold yesterday in transactions involving more than 1 million dollars. The largest of the six deals was the purchase of the 16 story Hotel Maryland at 20 E. Delaware pl. by Dorothy Harrison from Chicago Title and Trust company for $327,500 cash.

The building, at the northwest corner of Rush st., contains 146 small apartments and three shops. Milton J. Wohl was broker and Julius J. Schwartz attorney for the buyer. Miss Harrison obtained a new first mortgage loan of $275,000 on the property thru Irvin Jacobs & Co.

Jeffery Terrace Sold.

The five story Jeffery Terrace apartments, at the southwest corner of Jeffery av. and 71st pl., was sold at auction before Special Master Joseph F. Elward for $275,500. The highest bidder was Mrs. Doris Goodman, wife of Lewis Goodman, burlap dealer, represented by Jacob G. Hamer and Earle Kallen, attorneys. A minimum price of $233,020 recently had been set. The building contains six stores on Jeffery and 70 unfurnished apartments.

The seven story Malden Towers, 4521 Malden av., containing 68 apartments and a penthouse, was sold by Sidney M. Keller, trustee for Malden Towers liquidating trust, to Liberty National bank, trustee, for $115,000, thru William J. Pancoe, broker. Irvin Jacobs & Co. took a $75,000 mortgage on the property. Hyman J. Rosenberg was attorney for the buyer and Swanson & Dodge for the seller.

Paulina Mansions Building corporation sold to Metropolitan Trust company, trustee, the flat building at the southwest corner of Wesley av. and Garfield st., Oak Park, containing 31 suites and four stores, for $115,000. The firm of Fisher & Fisher was attorney.

Business Building Sold.

The six story business building at the southeast corner of Franklin and Huron sts., 100 by 187 feet, was sold by the Alexander Bauer estate to La Salle National bank, trustee, for $120,000. Seay & Thomas was broker for the buyer and Paul Loeber for the seller.

Marshall Field sold the southwest corner of Elston and Monticello avs., and Irving Park rd., fronting 75 feet on Irving and Elston, and 102 feet on Monticello, to George Pappas, for $75,000. It is improved with a two story business building containing stores, offices, and flats. Ward Farnsworth & Co. represented Field, and H. W. Croxton & Co. and Theodore Kachiroubas the buyer. Wilson & McIlvaine and Robert J. Nordhold were attorneys.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

WARD'S SALES DECREASE.

My attention has been called to a statement by the Workers Defense league contrasting a decrease in Montgomery Ward & Co. sales this year with a gain reported by Sears, Roebuck & Co. and suggesting that the former's showing is related to its labor policies. Are there other reasons for the decline?—P. I.

Answer: During the five months ended June 30, Ward's sales decreased $24,119,000, or 9.3 per cent from the same period of 1943, and Sears' volume rose $39,459,000, or 11.8 per cent. Ward's labor disputes have had some adverse effects on sales, but there are other factors which may have influenced these respective showings.

Ward's largest monthly decline during the period, 20.4 per cent, occurred in April, when its dispute with a CIO union led to a 13 day seizure by the government of the company's Chicago properties, beginning April 27. The company has blamed interruption of its mail service for some of the adverse effects on its business at that time.

Sears and Ward businesses are not comparable in all respects, and differences have become more marked during the war. Of Sears' 596 retail stores, 79 are class A department stores in large cities. Ward on the other hand has comparatively few large department stores. Its 640 retail stores are mainly medium sized units located in smaller communities which may have had a smaller gain per capita in consumer buying power than the great war production centers.

In the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1944, Ward's annual report said that the company's mail order customers sent orders for 105 million dollars which could not be filled because of shortage of merchandise.

Despite the decline in sales, Ward reported a profit of 73 cents a common share for the three months ended April 30, 1944, compared with 70 cents a year ago.

GRAIN FUTURES PRICES BREAK ON ALLIED ADVANCE

Wheat and oats prices broke 2 cents a bushel and rye 3 cents yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade on general selling of futures impelled by continued favorable war news. All deliveries of wheat and rye sold at new seasonal low prices. September wheat touched $1.53⅛; 1⅞ cents under the price the Commodity Credit corporation will pay for No. 1 hard or red winter cash wheat in elevators, and rye $1.02¾.

Altho short covering caused a strong rally, the lowest prices of the day on rye and oats were made shortly before the close. Wheat showed resistance to pressure after the break and maintained part of its rally, closing 1¼ to 1⅜ cents lower. Rye was down 2⅛ to 2⅝ cents, oats 1⅞ to 2¼ cents, and barley, ⅞ to 1½ cents.

CONGRESS COOL OVER POST-WAR AID TO BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Any New Deal administration plan to extend our lend-lease billions to Great Britain after Germany falls in order to bolster England's domestic economy with American taxpayers' dollars will be studied carefully by a congress decidedly cool to the idea, it was indicated today.

The report that Britain had asked for post-war lend-lease aid was made yesterday by the National Association of Manufacturers, which noted that the British have managed to keep their entire national debt down to 75 billion dollars while ours is soaring toward an estimated 300 billion dollar mark.

Sen. Wilson [R., Ia.] said he certainly would "not be hasty about extending lend-lease after the collapse of Germany," and Rep. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the house ways and means committee, said the facts behind the British request would "naturally have to be scrutinized and studied from a thousand different angles."

Sen. Murray [D., Mont.], said post-war lend-lease aid to Britain might impose a burden that we should not be called on to carry, and asserted congress would have to be convinced that such aid was necessary to prevent a complete collapse of Britain's economy.

Rep. Voorhis [D., Cal.], a member of the house committee on post-war economic policy, said that after Germany's defeat "it seems to me that the war in the Pacific would present a wonderful opportunity for reverse lend-lease because of the numerous British possessions in the far east," he said.

The maintenance of British strength in the war with Japan is of vital concern, Senators Hill [D., Ala.] and Burton [R., Ohio] said, but Burton asserted that the lend-lease program should require "a great deal of consideration before it is extended beyond the day of peace."

Meanwhile, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., acting secretary of state, issued a formal statement saying that Great Britain has not yet raised the question of future lend-lease operations. He said no one can possibly foresee the changes in the situation the fortunes of war may bring or how soon these changes may be reflected in lend-lease operations.

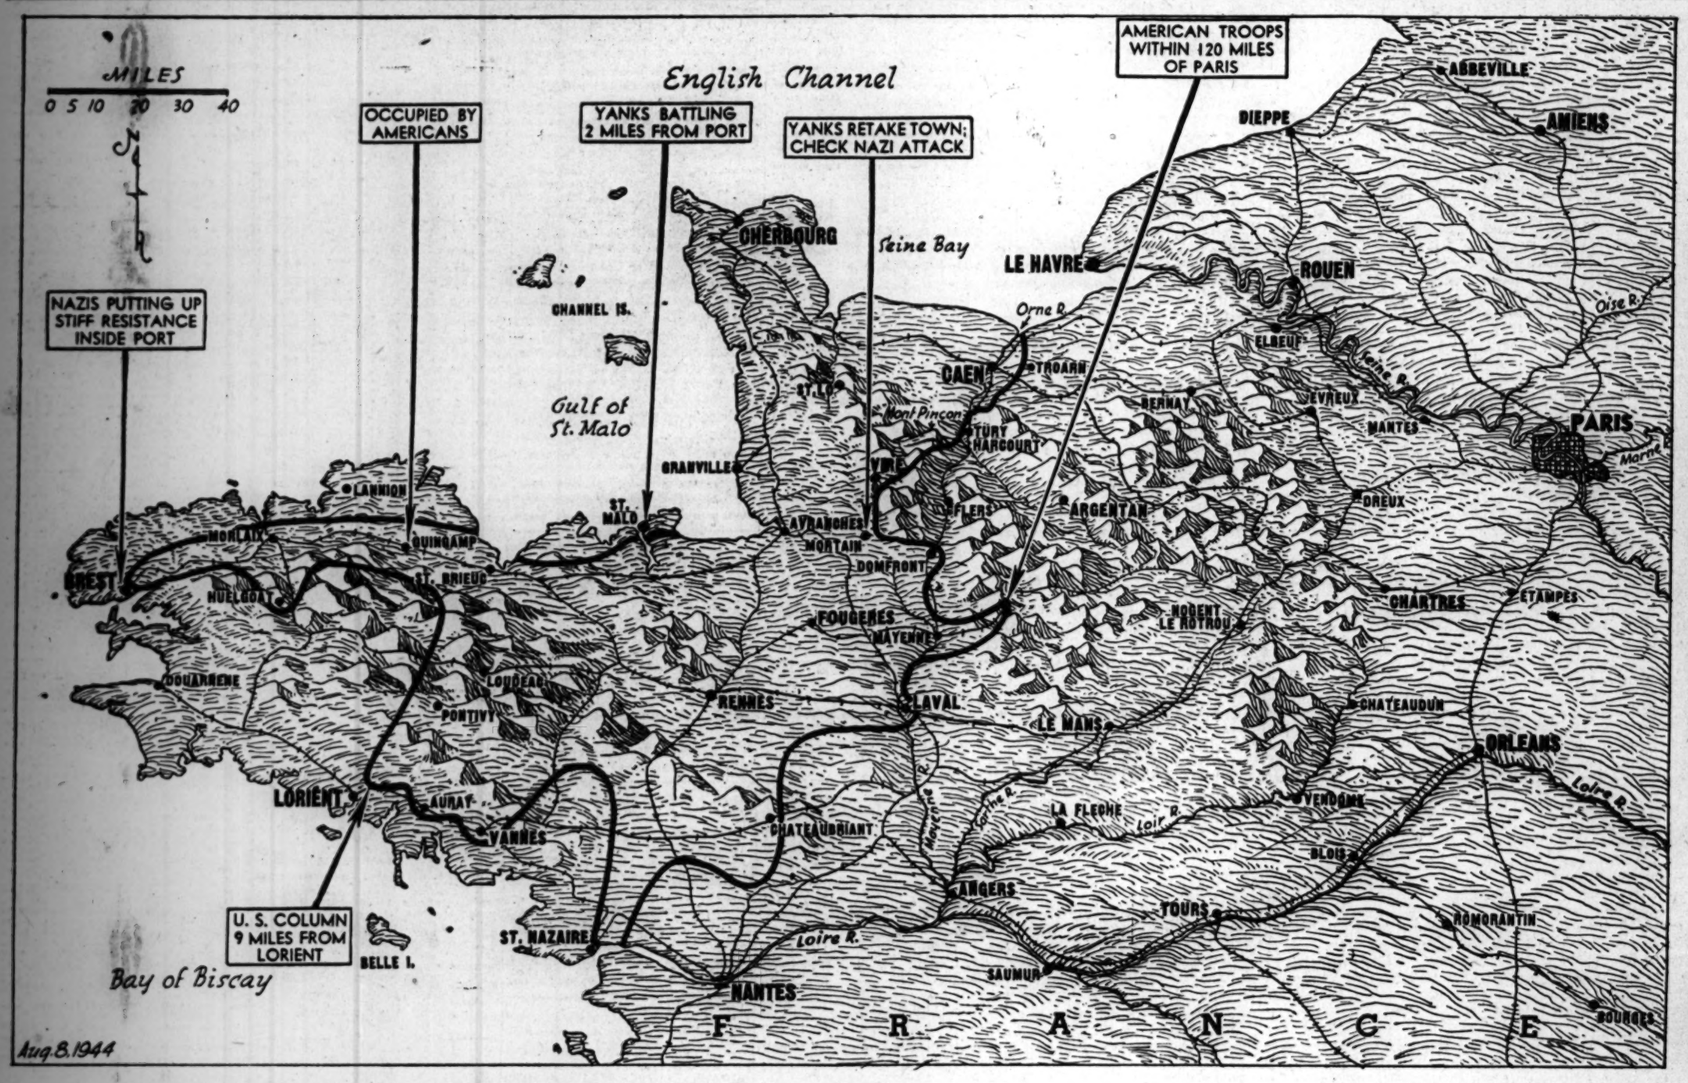
Nazi Counter-Attack in France Checked by Americans—Philadelphia Strikers' Spokesman Is Fired



Heavy black line indicates the approximate position of allied lines in the continuing battle for France, while the map illustrates the topography of the country thru which American, British, and Canadian troops are advancing against the Germans. Americans driving toward Paris from the west were reported approximately 120 miles from goal.
